PREFACE

THE present volume of the Catalogue of Papyri deals with the acquisitions made by the Department between the middle of 1895 and the end of 1903. During the greater part of this period, however, nearly all the documents acquired had been previously published—Papp. 482-603 in Prof. Mahaffy's Flinders Petrie Papyri, Papp. 605-650, 654-680, and 688-731 by Messrs. Grenfell and Hunt in their Greek Papyri, parts i and ii, and Papp. 739-834 by the same editors in their Oxyrhynchus Papyri, parts i and ii, and Fayum Towns and their Papyri. It was not until the purchase of some large collections in 1901 and 1903 that sufficient materials were in hand for the preparation of a third volume of the Catalogue. A portion of these collections, consisting of documents belonging to the eighth century after Christ, discovered at Kom Ishgau (the ancient Aphrodito), is reserved for a separate volume, which it is hoped may be published before very long.

The volume of texts is accompanied, as before, by an atlas of facsimiles, containing 100 plates. Of these, twelve represent the Ptolemaic period, fifty-two the Roman, sixteen the Early Byzantine, fifteen the Late Byzantine, and five the Aphrodito papyri of the eighth century.

APPENDIX. CORRIGENDA TO VOL. II	381

INTRODUCTION

THE plan of the present volume is on the same lines as that of its predecessor. The reasons for it were explained in the introduction to that volume; but in one respect a further explanation is necessary. It is undoubtedly an inconvenience that the texts do not follow one another in numerical sequence; and although practically the time taken in looking first at the numerical table and then turning at once to the precise page is not much greater than that taken in finding the required text among a numbered series of documents of very unequal length, a numerical arrangement would certainly be preferable. A more serious objection arises with regard to the indices, in which it would be much more convenient to be able to give references to the lines of the papyrus than to the pages of the volume. The difficulty has hitherto been that before the appearance of each volume of the Catalogue the inventory of the papyri contained in it has appeared in the periodical catalogues of accessions to the Department of Manuscripts, and the papyri having been known and quoted by those numbers it would produce confusion if they were then republished under other numbers. This difficulty has not arisen in the case of other collections, since no other Museum has published its inventory, so that their papyri are known only by their numbers in the publications in which they are given to the world. It would appear, however, that the advantage of the publication of the inventory is more than counterbalanced by the disadvantages which it entails in the volumes of the Catalogue of Papyri, and it has been decided to make a change in future. In the new volume of the Catalogue of Accessions to the Department of Manuscripts (1907), the inventory of papyri is given in a much abbreviated form, without descriptions of individual documents. On the other hand, the next volume of the Catalogue of Papyri will take up the numeration where the present volume leaves it, and the texts will be printed in numerical order, as in the similar publications of other collections.

The texts printed in the present volume, 248 in number, are of the usual miscellaneous character. As in the preceding volume, they are classified first by periods and then by subjects. The Ptolemaic papyri include a considerable series of contracts from Pathyris (Gebelên), akin to those which have been published already. Among the documents of the Roman period, the most noticeable are the registers relating to customs-receipts (pp. 40-47), the two long land-registers of A.D. 47 (pp. 70-87), the list of persons assigned to the duty of furnishing various supplies for an impending visit of the Prefect (p. 112), the group of texts from Antinoöpolis which give information as to the organization of that town in tribes and demes (pp. 154-167), the accounts of the commissioners of waterworks (pp. 180-190), the accounts of Heroninus (pp. 193-205), the short letter describing a voyage up the Nile (p. 205), and (the most novel of all) the diploma of membership in a famous athletic club, conferred at the great games at Naples and confirmed at Sardis (pp. 214-219). The Byzantine documents have no very special or unusual feature, but are of some legal and economic interest.

With regard to the provenance of the various documents, internal evidence is the only guide. With the exception of a few papyri from Oxyrhynchus (presented by the Egypt Exploration Fund, but not printed in Messrs. Grenfell and Hunt's volumes), all came through the hands of dealers, and documents from the Fayum and Upper Egypt were indiscriminately mixed together. A large proportion comes from Hermopolis, including a considerable group of well-preserved papyri relating to a single family (see p. 29). The pressure of other official work has made it impossible to attempt to give any detailed commentary; but this is perhaps not wholly a disadvantage. With the great increase of documents and of special knowledge it is becoming increasingly evident that each group of texts must be studied by the appropriate specialists—the jurists, the economists, the linguists, and so on; and that the duty of the first editor of a miscellaneous collection is to provide texts as sound as his skill and time allow him to make them, with such a minimum of commentary as may facilitate a first appreciation of them and call attention to their chief points of interest.

The preparation of the present volume has been shared between Mr. Bell and myself. The sheets of it have been seen by Messrs. Grenfell and Hunt, who made many valuable suggestions and corrections, most of which (at their own request) are not separately acknowledged. In addition, Dr. Grenfell re-examined several of the papyri relating to taxation (in connexion with his forthcoming volume of Tebtunis papyri), and contributed some amended readings, which appear (with the initial G) among the 'Addenda et Corrigenda.' Further help on certain points has been received from Mr. F. Ll. Griffith and Mr. W. E. Crum. For this assistance the thanks of the editors and the readers of these texts is due to the gentlemen named.

ADDENDA ET CORRIGENDA

- Page xxxiii, Pap. 774. For 11 Sept. read 11 Oct., and for a month read two months.
- Page xlvi, Pap. 925. The text of this papyrus is printed on p. 55.
- Page 4, Pap. 1201, l. 2. For Σος read Σος.
- Pages 5-6, Pap. 879, introd. The Leipzig Papp. 1, 2, and 7 (ed. Mitteis, 1906) also belong to this series.
- Page 6, ib. For Pelaeus read Pelaeas. Mr. F. Ll. Griffith points out that the form is established by Amherst Pap. 51 and Paris Pap. 5 (col. 10, l. 3). The same correction should be made in the descriptions of Papp. 880, 1203, 1207, 1208.
- Page 8, Pap. 880, note on l. 5. Gerhard's article, here cited, quotes some evidence for the use of πῶλος in the sense of a young priest or priestess, which gives some support to this interpretation of ἱερός πῶλος, but does not explain the non-translation of it in demotic. Gerhard attributes the priesthood, on demotic evidence, to Cleopatra III.
- Page 9, ib., note on l. 31. For l. 5 read l. 55.
- Page 33, Pap. 1234, l. 6. It is possible to read ἀπεδω^[κ] (or ἀνεδω^[κ]) δημ^μ . . . με[τα] χειρογρα (G). In the note δημόσιον should be read rather than τῷ δημοσίῳ.
- Page 34, Pap. 845 b, l. 6. For μεδ. read μαγδωλ (G). The same word (μαγδωλοφυλακία) occurs also on p. 35, Pap. 1235, l. 12 (not the place Magdola).
- Page 35, Pap. 1235, l. 11. For φερρον read Φαμε[νωθ], and delete βωμῶν in l. 12 (G).
- „ l. 12. For αλκε read αλικ, sc. ἀλικῆς (G).
- „ l. 13. For Μεσορ read Μεσο^ο ξ (G).
- Page 38, Pap. 1266 a, note on l. 7. σπάθιον, in the sense of a measure of wine, is not recognized in the lexicons, but it occurs in several of the papyri in vol. II, and in BGU. 21, ii. 18, iii. 7, 21, and Oxy. Pap. 155, 3. In BGU. 21, ii. 18, ἄγξ should presumably be read, to make the arithmetic right. It is difficult to connect this sense of the word with any of those previously known, which refer to something broad and flat, not to a vessel for liquids; and it may therefore be convenient to give it the regular accentuation of a tribrach diminutive (σπάθιον), in place of the paroxytone accentuation assigned to the word in its other senses.
- Page 42, Pap. 929, note on l. 23. The term σχοινίοις σεβενίνοις recurs in Pap. 1164 h, l. 10 (p. 164) as part of the tackle of a boat. It presumably means ropes of palm-fibre.
- Page 47, Pap. 1107, l. 2. For το καταπρακτορ[ευθεν] read probably το κατα πρακτορ[ειαν], cf. Pap. 1170, l. 9 (p. 93).
- Page 50, Pap. 851, l. 30. For . . . δ read perhaps ἐπὶ, sc. ἐπὶ λόγῳ (G).
- Page 51, Pap. 913, l. 3. For Προδ read Προδ, i. e. Πρόδι(κος) (G).
- „ ll. 4, 7. For Εσταο^λ read probably Νειλουπο^λ, though the letters are extremely cursive and ill-formed (G).
- „ l. 7. The symbol before αρταβας is doubtful, and rather resembles υ' (G).
- Page 54, Pap. 844, note on l. 3. For 6 obols read 6 chalchi. It may be noted that it is to this tax, and not the poll-tax (unless the συντάξιμον be some variant of the λαογραφία) that the account printed by Preisigke in Archiv, iv. 95 ff. (from Fayum Pap. 153) no doubt relates.
- Page 55, ib., l. 5. Above αφχ^ο the scribe has inserted ο' (G).
- „ ll. 6, 8. For εις read ε', sc. ἐπιμερισμοῦ (G).
- „ l. 7. For σ αποροις read ε' απ^ο ιδς (G).
- Page 56, Pap. 919 a, l. 5. Read probably παιδ Κερβασηει, sc. πεδίων Κερβασήεως.
- Page 61, Pap. 1217 a, l. 6. For β^ο υθ read βοηθ (G). In l. 3 υθ is doubtful, and πθ may perhaps be read.
- Page 72, Pap. 604 A, l. 35. For Κολαν[ι]ον read Κολαν[θ]ου.
- Page 75, ib., l. 138. For Αμυλιτου read Αμυντου.
- Page 76, ib., l. 199. For Ηρωνακ[read Ηρωνακ[τος].
- Page 91, Pap. 856, l. 1. Restore [η]λικίας, and so also in l. 13 (G).
- „ l. 2. After καθηκοντων insert —, i. e. 1 obol (G).
- Page 92, ib., l. 7. After μοσχου, ας has been added above the line (G).
- „ l. 12. Βουκαλου is also possible. For λεατουνται read απαιτουνται (G).
- „ l. 19. For ο δε λημτωρ read ο εγλημτωρ (G).
- „ l. 30. For ολ[κ]ων read ολ[μ]ων, cf. Hibeh Pap. 27, l. 26 (G).
- „ l. 31. For εξ perhaps read εφ (G).
- „ l. 33. Before <ν read πλοι^ο (G).
- „ l. 35. For τουτων των read το [α]υτων τω δ< (G).
- Page 94, Pap. 1170, l. 32. For ισα read Ισα.
- Page 98, ib., l. 328. For [Θε]οξενου read Φι[λο]ξενου, cf. l. 342.
- Page 105, Pap. 1166, l. 13. For Σινκερ^κ read probably Σινκερ^η, the village which occurs in Strassb. Pap. 23 (ed. Preisigke, p. 90, and note) and BGU. 552, 553. In Amh. Pap. 126, l. 23, the second κ of Σινκυρκ(εως) is marked as doubtful, and might therefore perhaps be an η, but in Pap. 122, l. 6, Σενκυρκεως is written at length.
- Page 107, Pap. 1171 verso, b, l. 19. αδροκ (sic) occurs as a measure of wine (= 2 κολοφώνια) in Wilcken's ostr. 16co (Gr. Ostr. 1. 766).

- „ l. 3. The doubtful word should probably be read σπαριμειων.
- Page 119, Pap. 942, l. 5. For των γ̅ ονεων read των γ̅ γονεων.
- Page 124, Pap. 1219, l. 3. For κατα μηγα read και Σαμαρειας (G), and delete note.
- „ l. 4. At end of line read μαι (sc. μοι) ανηκον (G).

- Page 128, Pap. 955, l. 21. For [Ιουλιου] read [Ιουνιου].

- Pages 129, 130, Papp. 895, 1218. These documents belong to a group of petitions of which the rest were bought by Messrs. Grenfell and Hunt, and are now in the John Rylands Library at Manchester. Sarapion (Pap. 895, l. 1) was ἐπιστάτης φυλακιδῶν in the 16th year of Tiberius (A. D. 29/30).
- Page 130, Pap. 1218, ll. 10, 11. Read υβριν ου [τ]ην τυ[χουσαν] (GH).

- „ l. 7. Read Ϛ δ και προς, cf. Oxy. Pap. 488, l. 17, ἀρούρη μιᾷ καὶ πρὸς (GH).
- „ Pap. 924, l. 9. For εκπυρικοις (the reading of the papyrus) GH suggest εμπυρικοις.
- Page 135, ib., l. 16. For η τας πασας νομας GH suggest τα εις τας νομας (cf. Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. i. 265), but this does not wholly suit the remains.
- „ Pap. 1168, introd. For A. D. 18 read A. D. 44, and for Tiberius read Claudius.
- Page 140, Pap. 839, date. For A. D. 123 read A. D. 124.
- Page 141, Pap. 842, l. 2. For [Π]τολλιωης read [Π]τολλιωνος.
- Page 144, Pap. 1179. Pap. Fior. 51 (ed. Vitelli) is very similar to this, and may perhaps be part of the same roll.
- Page 145, ib., l. 37. For Σωσικοσ[μειου] read Σωσικοσ[μω].
- Page 147, ib., l. 115. For Ουσκουσιω[read ου εκουσιω[ς επεσπασατο?], cf. Pap. 1164 d, l. 6 (p. 161).

- „ l. 4. For Αντινοῖ[τιδ]ος read probably Αντινοῖ[δ]ος.
- „ l. 8. For] Σαρητιωνος read]ς Αρητιωνος.
- Page 157, Pap. 1164 b, l. 3. Note that here and in all the other documents included in this roll the month Panemus is equated with Pharmouthi. Normally the equations are Pharmouthi = Daisius, and Pachon = Panemus, and it does not appear what the explanation of the abnormality here can be.
- Page 162, ib. f, l. 34. For Απεμφορειος read Θεσμοφορειος.
- „ l. 38. For Εκλο[read ενδο[κω].

- Page 227, Pap. 1249, l. 17. For Τυγ'χανοντος read τυγ'χανοντος.
- Page 228, Pap. 1245, l. 3. For Φιλων read φ ιλων, cf. BGU. 974, l. 4, διαδόταις ι ιλων (Hunt). The φ is certain.
- „ l. 8. For κανονοσι read κανονος ι (Hunt). There is a wide space between ι and ινδικτιονος, and perhaps ε or δ should have been written there, to correspond with ιε in l. 3.
- Page 233, Pap. 978, note on l. 10. It appears from Pap. 1023, l. 19 (p. 268), that πεσσός is a part of the building. See also Pap. 210, l. 29 (ed. Grenfell in Journ. of Philol. xxii, pp. 272, 276, where the reference should be to Strabo xvi. 1, 5), and Pap. Fior. 5, l. 9.

ACQUIRED IN 1896-1903.¹

TEXT. PLATE.

[Papp. 485-603 form part of the collection of papyri extracted by Prof. W. M. Flinders Petrie from the cartonnages of Ptolemaic mummies found by him at Gurob in 1889-1890. Pap. 485 was presented to the Museum by Jesse Haworth, Esq., the remainder by H. Martyn Kennard, Esq. Most of them have been edited by Prof. J. P. Mahaffy in the Cunningham Memoirs, nos. VIII and IX, of the Royal Irish Academy, On the Flinders Petrie Papyri (Dublin, 1891 and 1893), and revised, mainly by Prof. J. G. Smyly, in Cunningham Memoirs, no. XI (Dublin, 1905). References to the original publications (P. P. i. and ii.) are attached to the descriptions below, in which the original order is preserved, and the numbers assigned to them in the supplementary volume (P. P. iii.) are also given. Some of the papyri which had been assigned to the Museum, when the distribution of the collection was made, were never transferred to it, having been previously mislaid. These are included in the descriptions (see nos. 505, 506, 509-512, 515), but are marked as missing].

Pap. 485. The Antiope of Euripides; three fragments containing 112 lines, mutilated or complete. Written on papyrus $8\frac{1}{2}$ in. high, in columns measuring $3\frac{3}{8}$ in. in width (including margin), and containing thirty-six or thirty-seven lines each, in a small, firm, but rather uneven uncial hand. 3rd cent. B.C. [P. P. i. 1 and 2]

Pap. 486. (a) Fragment from an Anthology, containing portions of four lines from Epicharmus and three from Euripides, otherwise unknown. 3rd cent. B.C. 4 in. \times $3\frac{1}{2}$ in. Written in a rather large semi-uncial hand. [P. P. i. 3 (1)]

(b) Fragment of a tragedy, relating to Agamemnon and the delay of the Greeks at Aulis; the beginnings of seventeen lines are preserved. 3rd cent. B.C. 5 in. \times $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. Written in a rather large semi-uncial hand. [P. P. i. 3 (2)]

(c) Fragment of an epic poem, perhaps the Hoiai of Hesiod; portions of six lines are preserved. 3rd cent. B.C. 2 in. \times $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. Written in a rather large semi-uncial hand. [P. P. i. 3 (3)]

(d) Homer's Iliad, xi. 502-537, with five additional lines, not found in the ordinary texts. Only the endings of ll. 502-517 are preserved, and the beginnings of ll. 518-537. The additional lines follow ll. 504, 509, 513, 519, and 528. 3rd cent. B.C. $6\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. Written in a rather large semi-uncial hand. [P. P. i. 3 (4)]

Pap. 487. (a) Fragment of a drama of the New Comedy; the name Demeas occurs in it. Portions of twenty lines are preserved, in two columns. 3rd cent. B.C. $4\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. Written in a rather large semi-cursive hand. [P. P. i. 4 (1)]

(b) Fragment of a drama, probably a tragedy. Small portions of twenty-five lines are preserved, but the papyrus is much mutilated. 3rd cent. B.C. $5\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $5\frac{1}{2}$ in. Written in a large and strong semi-uncial hand. [P. P. i. 4 (2)]

Pap. 488. The Phaedo of Plato; portions of pp. 67 E-69 A, 79 C, 80 D-81 D, 82 A-84 B, with readings differing notably from the vulgate text. 3rd cent. B.C. Written on papyrus $8\frac{1}{4}$ in. high, in columns measuring $3\frac{1}{2}$ in. in width (including margin) and containing twenty-two lines each, in a small, neat, firm, uncial hand, somewhat resembling that of Pap. 485, but finer and better written. [P. P. i. 5-8]

Pap. 489. Fragments of an historical or philosophical treatise containing descriptions of the customs of some barbarian peoples, including the Causiani. Six fragments, the largest $9\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 3 in., none containing a complete line. 3rd cent. B.C. Written in a rather large semi-uncial hand. [The text of the three largest fragments is given in P. P. i. 9]

Pap. 490. Fragment of a rhetorical composition, dealing with the subject of friendship. Portions of three columns are preserved. 3rd cent. B.C. $6\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $6\frac{1}{2}$ in. Written in a medium-sized, rather thick uncial hand. [P. P. i. 10]

¹ The descriptions of Papp. 485-738 are revised from those already published in the Catalogue of Additions to the Department of Manuscripts in the British Museum, 1894-1899.

- Pap. 491. Will of Peisias, a Lycian, resident in the Arsinoïte nome, and owning property there (in the village of Bubastus) and at Alexandria. There are traces of an adjoining column. 3rd cent. B.C., probably about B.C. 238. $6\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $7\frac{1}{2}$ in. Imperfect; in a medium-sized cursive hand. [P.P. I. 12 and II. pref., p. 22 = III. 9]
- Pap. 492. (a) Portion of a register of wills; two fragments, containing parts of three wills, one being that of Antipater of Cyrene and another that of Calas, a Macedonian. The name of the other testator is lost. Dated in the twelfth year of Ptolemy, son of Ptolemy [Philadelphus, i.e. Euergetes = B.C. 236-235]. 7 in. \times 9 in., and $5\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $4\frac{1}{4}$ in. Written in a rather small cursive hand. Cf. also Pap. 596, which is probably part of the same register. [P.P. I. 17 (1) and (2), with an additional fragment identified by Prof. Smyly; = III. 14, 15]
- (b) Fragment of a will. The names of the priest and priestess mentioned in the date, who are known from other documents, show that the date is the tenth year of Ptolemy Euergetes, = B.C. 238-237. $6\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 3 in. Written in a medium-sized cursive hand. [P.P. I. 17 (3) = III. 8 (1)]
- Pap. 493. Portion of a register of wills, containing parts of two wills. The second, which is nearly perfect, is the will of Aphrodisius, son of Heracleides, dated at Crocodilopolis in the Arsinoïte nome, the 1st Xandicus in the twenty-second year of Ptolemy, son of Ptolemy [Philadelphus, i.e. Euergetes, = B.C. 226-225]. $10\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $8\frac{3}{4}$ in. Written in a large semi-cursive hand. [P.P. I. 19 = III. 19 (a)]
- Pap. 494. Portion of a register of wills, apparently the same as Pap. 493, being written in the same hand. The name of the testator is lost. $5\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $6\frac{1}{2}$ in. [P.P. I. 20 (1) = III. 19 (b)]
- Pap. 495. (a) Additional portions of the same register of wills as Papp. 493, 494, written in the same hand, and containing a date in the month Xandicus of the twenty-second year. Portions of two wills are preserved, but the names of the testators are lost. In the second the names of the testator's wife Artemidora and his son Aristo[crates] are mentioned. Two fragments, forming parts of the same column, but not contiguous. 7 in. \times 3 in. and 4 in. \times $1\frac{3}{4}$ in. [P.P. I. 20 (2) = III. 19 (c)]
- (b) Another fragment of the same register, containing a further part of the last-mentioned will. The names of Artemidora and Aristocrates recur in it, with that of another son, Ptolemy. $5\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $6\frac{1}{2}$ in., with another small fragment, perhaps from a different document. [P.P. III. 19 (c)]
- Pap. 496. Additional portions of the same register of wills as Papp. 493-495, written in the same hand, dated apparently in the same year, and twice mentioning a witness, Nicanor, who is presumably the same as the person mentioned in 494. Four fragments, measuring $2\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times 5 in., $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 1 in., 2 in. \times $1\frac{1}{2}$ in., and $5\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $3\frac{3}{4}$ in. [P.P. III. 19 (d-f)]
- Pap. 497. Portion of a register of wills; remains of two columns, the second containing the will of Menon (?), son of Euphranor, a Libyan, made at Crocodilopolis in the Arsinoïte nome, probably in the tenth year of Ptolemy Euergetes, = B.C. 238-237. $6\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $9\frac{3}{4}$ in., including a narrow strip of a different document attached to the left-hand side. Written in a medium-sized hand, very cursive. [P.P. I. 21 = III. 1]
- Pap. 498. Fragment from the beginning of a business document, containing a date in the thirty-sixth year of Ptolemy, son of Ptolemy Soter [i.e. Philadelphus, = B.C. 250-249]. $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $7\frac{1}{2}$ in. Written across the papyrus-fibres in a rather small cursive hand, in faded ink. [P.P. I. 22 (1) = III. 145]
- Pap. 499. Fragments of business documents:—
- (a) A date, 23 Daisius = 2 Thoth. 3rd cent. B.C. (probably circa B.C. 250). $1\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $3\frac{1}{4}$ in. Written across the papyrus-fibres. [P.P. I. 24 (1) = III. 52 b (1)]
- (b) Certified copy of a document, dated in the sixteenth year of Ptolemy [Philadelphus, = B.C. 270-269]. $3\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $7\frac{3}{4}$ in. Imperfect; written across the papyrus-fibres in a rather large semi-uncial hand. [P.P. I. 24 (2) = III. 52 b (2)]
- (c) Fragment of a document dated the 21st Pharmouthi in the thirtieth year [of Ptolemy Philadelphus, = B.C. 256-255]. 2 in. \times $6\frac{1}{2}$ in. Written across the papyrus-fibres in a small cursive hand. [P.P. I. 24 (3) = III. 52 b (3)]
- Pap. 500. Fragment of the Μουσείοιον of Alcidas (the original form of the later Contest of Homer and Hesiod). Portions of two columns are preserved, but no complete line. 3rd cent. B.C. $5\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $4\frac{3}{4}$ in. Written in a rather thick uncial hand of medium size. [P.P. I. 25 (1)]
- Pap. 501. Order with reference to the transport of corn, dated the 25th Thoth in the thirty-fifth year [of Ptolemy Philadelphus, = B.C. 251-250]. Mention is made of the priests of Suchus and [Arsinoë] Philadelphus, and of the ἐρημοφύλακες. $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 8 in. Imperfect, the left-hand portion being lost; written across the papyrus-fibres in a medium-sized cursive hand. [P.P. I. 25 (2) = III. 126]

- Pap. 502. Official letter from Agenor to Theodorus, inclosing copy of a letter sent by the strategus Aphthonetus with a minute received by the latter from Andronicus, with reference to an alleged evasion of the duty of furnishing quarters to public officials on the part of the inhabitants of Crocodilopolis. Dated the 22nd Artemisius in the sixth year [of Ptolemy Euergetes, = B.C. 242-241]. $7\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 14 in. Nearly perfect; in a rather large and broad cursive hand. [Partly in P.P. I. 26, fully in P.P. II. 12 (1) = III. 29 (a)]
- Pap. 503. (a) Letter from Philonides to his father [Cleon, cf. Papp. 545, 585] on private affairs. 3rd cent. B.C. $4\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $9\frac{1}{2}$ in. Nearly perfect; in a broad semi-cursive hand. [P.P. I. 30 (1) = III. 42 H (4)]
- (b and c) Fragments of uncertain character, written in large and broad cursive hands. 4 in. \times 3 in., and $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $4\frac{3}{4}$ in. [P.P. I. 30 (2) and (3)]
- Pap. 504. Petition from Athenodorus, a land surveyor, to an official whose name and description are lost (probably the $\epsilon\pi\mu\epsilon\lambda\eta\tau\eta\varsigma$) for redress of injuries and release from imprisonment. Late 3rd cent. B.C. $11\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times 5 in. Imperfect, the left-hand portion of the papyrus being lost; in a large semi-uncial hand. [P.P. II. 1 = III. 36 (c)]
- Pap. 505. Petition addressed to Diophanes, the strategus, by Onetor, Asclepiades, and Musaeus, complaining of the violent conduct of Lysander, of whose land near Euhemeria, in the division of Themistus in the nome of Arsinoë, they were tenants. Circ. B.C. 261-260. [P.P. II. 2 (1) = III. 28 (a); now missing]
- Pap. 506. Official letter from Moschion to Diophanes [cf. Pap. 505], reporting his action with regard to a petition submitted by Dorimachus. Dated the 5th Pharmouthi in the twenty-fifth year [probably of Ptolemy Philadelphus, = B.C. 261-260]; with endorsement dated the 10th Apellaeus, = 6th Pharmouthi. [P.P. II. 2 (2) = III. 28 (b); now missing]
- Pap. 507. Letter from Dioscurides to his father Diophanes, introducing Asclepiades to him. Circ. B.C. 260. 11 in. \times $3\frac{3}{4}$ in. Imperfect; written across the papyrus-fibres in a rather large semi-uncial hand. [P.P. II. 2 (3) = III. 28 (c)]
- Pap. 508. Letter to Diophanes, apparently from some member of his family, of a similar character to the preceding. Circ. B.C. 260. $5\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times 5 in. Written across the papyrus-fibres in a rather large and irregular semi-uncial hand. [P.P. II. 2 (4) = III. 28 (d)]
- Pap. 509. Miscellaneous fragments, resembling the preceding documents in quality of papyrus and in writing. One contains a date in the twenty-fifth year. [P.P. II. 3; now missing]
- Pap. 510. Petition addressed to Cleon, chief commissioner of works ($\alpha\rho\chi\iota\tau\acute{\epsilon}\kappa\tau\omega\nu$), by the head men ($\delta\epsilon\kappa\acute{\alpha}\tau\alpha\rho\chi\omicron\iota$) of the quarrymen, complaining that they are overworked by their taskmaster ($\epsilon\rho\gamma\omicron\delta\iota\omega\kappa\tau\eta\varsigma$) Apollonius. Dated the 24th Phaophi in the thirtieth year [of Ptolemy Philadelphus, = B.C. 256-255]. [P.P. II. 4 (1) = III. 42 c (3); now missing]
- Pap. 511. (a) Letter to Cleon from Apollonius, the taskmaster, with reference to the complaint of the quarrymen contained in the preceding document, recommending that they be supplied with wedges to lighten their work. [B.C. 256-255.] Imperfect, the conclusion being lost. [P.P. II. 4 (2) = III. 42 c (4); now missing]
- (b) Fragment, perhaps from the conclusion of the same document, mentioning the wedges. $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $5\frac{1}{2}$ in. Written in a small semi-cursive hand. [P.P. II. 4 (2 b)]
- Pap. 512. Letter, apparently relating to the supply of tools to the quarrymen. [B.C. 256-255.] Imperfect, the left-hand portion being lost. [P.P. II. 4 (3) = III. 42 c (5); now missing]
- Pap. 513. Letter from [Clea]rchus to Cleon, enclosing a copy of a letter from a sub-commissioner of works. Two fragments, one containing the greater part of the covering letter, the other part of the enclosure. Circ. B.C. 256-255. 3 in. \times 8 in., and $3\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $8\frac{3}{4}$ in. Written across the papyrus-fibres in a well-formed, broad, semi-cursive hand. [P.P. II. 4 (4) = III. 42 c (6)]
- Pap. 514. Fragment of a letter, presumably to Cleon, asking that money and tools may be supplied for the quarrymen. Only the end of the letter is preserved. Circ. B.C. 256-255. 2 in. \times $13\frac{1}{4}$ in. Written in a very broad column across the papyrus-fibres in a rather irregular and angular semi-cursive hand. [P.P. II. 4 (5) = III. 42 G (1)]
- Pap. 515. Letter to Cleon from Demetrius, complaining that he has been assaulted by the workmen when he went down to distribute bread to them. Dated the 1st Choiach in the thirtieth year [of Ptolemy Philadelphus, = B.C. 256-255]. [P.P. II. 4 (6) = III. 42 c (11); now missing]

- Pap. 516. Letter to Cleon from Demetrius (presumably the same as the writer of the preceding document), complaining that, in addition to being persecuted on the works, he has now been put in prison, and begging that he may be released. [B.C. 256-255.] 4 in. \times 11 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. Nearly perfect; written across the papyrus-fibres in a large irregular semi-uncial hand. [P.P. II. 4 (7) = III. 42 G (2)]
- Pap. 517. (a) Letter from Philoxenus (perhaps to Cleon), reporting that 140 quarrymen are idle, owing to their not having received some necessary supply. Perhaps part of a letter-book, since a small portion of a preceding column is visible, containing a date of the 2nd Thouth in the thirtieth year [= B.C. 256-255]. 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. Imperfect, the right-hand portion being lost; in a rather small cursive hand. [P.P. II. 4 (8) = III. 42 c (1)]
- (b and c) Small fragments of accounts. 3rd cent. B.C. 2 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ in., and 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 1 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. Written in small cursive hands
- Pap. 518. (a) Letter to Cleon from the quarrymen in Pastoutis, with regard to their work. Dated the 9th Thouth in the thirtieth year [of Ptolemy Philadelphus, = B.C. 256-255]. 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 8 in. Nearly perfect; written across the papyrus-fibres in a very rough cursive hand. [P.P. II. 4 (9) = III. 42 c (2)]
- (b) Small fragment, in a different hand, apparently the conclusion of a similar letter. 2 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. Written across the fibres in a rather broad semi-cursive hand. [P.P., ib.; for P.P. II. 4 (10), see Pap. 532]
- Pap. 519. Letter to Cleon from Olmou (??), on business matters. Circ. B.C. 256-255. 7 in. \times 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. Nearly perfect, but much defaced by plaster; written across the papyrus-fibres in a thick and very cursive hand. [P.P. II. 4 (12) = III. 42 G (3)]
- Pap. 520. Letter, probably to Cleon, on business matters. Dated the 7th Tubi in the thirty-first year [of Ptolemy Philadelphus, = B.C. 255-254]. 5 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times 9 in. Imperfect, the left-hand portion being lost, and somewhat mutilated; written across the papyrus-fibres in a rather small cursive hand. [P.P. II. 4 (13) = III. 42 D (1)]
- Pap. 521. Fragments of an official letter, from a superior to his subordinate, giving instructions; but the details are lost through mutilation. Dated in Athur of the thirtieth year [of Ptolemy Philadelphus, = B.C. 256-255]. Four unconnected fragments, written across the papyrus-fibres in a rather peculiar semi-cursive hand of medium size. [P.P. II. 5 a and b, with two additional fragments = III. 42 B (5); for P.P. II. 5 c, see Pap. 532]
- Pap. 522. Letter from Dionysius to Dorus, enclosing copy of a minute received from Petechnosis, sub-commissioner of works, with regard to measures for the safety of the embankments. Dated the 4th Athur in the thirtieth year [of Ptolemy Philadelphus, = B.C. 256-255]. 7 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times 13 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. Imperfect, wanting the lower left-hand quarter; written across the papyrus-fibres in a thin cursive hand of medium size. [P.P. II. 6 = III. 42 c (7)]
- Pap. 523. Official correspondence, containing the end of one letter and the beginning of another from Theodorus [chief commissioner of works, cf. Pap. 526] to Diotimus, instructing him to require Androsthenes and the nomarchs to furnish the regular supply of beasts of burden for the strengthening of the embankments. Circ. B.C. 240. 6 in. \times 12 in. Written across the papyrus-fibres in a broad, straggling, cursive hand, considerably faded. [P.P. II. 9 (1) = III. 43 (8)]
- Pap. 524. Letter from Hermogenes to Theodorus, enclosing copy of a letter from Harmachorus [see Pap. 525] embodying the complaints of certain workmen in the copper-mines at Philoteris. Dated the 9th Pauni in the seventh year [of Ptolemy Euergetes, = B.C. 241-240], with endorsement on the 11th. 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 12 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. Nearly perfect; written across the papyrus-fibres in a rather broad, even, cursive hand. [P.P. II. 9 (2) = III. 43 (3)]
- Pap. 525. Copy of letter [from Harmachorus to Hermogenes], reporting that the workmen under his charge are grumbling at being kept for ten months consecutively at their work. Dated the 9th Pauni in the seventh year [of Ptolemy Euergetes, = B.C. 241-240]. This is the letter referred to in Pap. 524, and originally formed part of the same sheet of papyrus, being written in the same hand. 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 1 ft. 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. Nearly perfect. [P.P. II. 9 (3) = III. 43 (3)]
- Pap. 526. Official letter to Theodorus, chief commissioner of works, from Hermaphilus, enclosing a copy of a minute received from Teos with regard to irrigation works, and instructing him to carry out the works therein recommended. Dated the 3rd Epeiph in the seventh year [of Ptolemy Euergetes, = B.C. 241-240]. 4 in. \times 14 in. Imperfect, only a small part of the copy of Teos' letter being preserved; written across the papyrus-fibres in a large semi-uncial hand. [P.P. II. 9 (4) = III. 43 (5)]

- Pap. 527. Memorial from Petubastis and Petechon to Theodorus (the chief commissioner of works), asking him to write to Theodorus the oeconomus on their behalf; the precise favour to be asked is lost through the mutilation of the papyrus. Dated in the eighth year [of Ptolemy Euergetes, = B.C. 240-239]. 4 in. \times $6\frac{1}{2}$ in. Written across the papyrus-fibres in a large straggling hand. [P.P. II. 9 (5) = III. 43 (6)]
- Pap. 528. Letter to Phaies, the oeconomus, from Ammonius, secretary of Phaues, a resident near Oxyrhynchus, complaining that he has been arrested while at his official work and put in prison. 3rd cent. B.C. 7 in. \times $6\frac{1}{2}$ in. Perfect; in a large, well-formed, semi-uncial hand. [P.P. II. 10 (2) = III. 32 (6)]
- Pap. 529. (a) Petition, addressed to the strategus Aphthonetus, from a woman whose name is mutilated, begging for a hearing of a case in which she is concerned. Circ. B.C. 242 (cf. Pap. 502). 5 in. \times $3\frac{1}{2}$ in. Nearly perfect; in a rather thick cursive hand. [P.P. II. 12 (2) = III. 29 (b)]
 (b) Similar petition to Aphthonetus from Philippus and Ptolemaeus, likewise asking for prompt justice. Circ. B.C. 242. $5\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times 3 in. Nearly perfect; written in a thick cursive hand on bad papyrus. [P.P. II. 12 (3) = III. 29 (c)]
 (c) Beginning of petition to Aphthonetus from Menes; the purport of it is not preserved. Circ. B.C. 242. 2 in. \times $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. Written in a medium-sized cursive hand. [P.P. II. p. [32] = III. 29 (d)]
- Pap. 530. Petition to Cleon [cf. Papp. 510-520] from the foremen of the quarrymen, complaining that in spite of the promises of Apollonius the διοικητής, they have not received certain supplies of which they have immediate need. Dated the 19th Pachon in the thirtieth year [of Ptolemy Philadelphus, = B.C. 256-255]. $5\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $7\frac{1}{2}$ in. Perfect; written across the papyrus-fibres in a large, rough, semi-cursive hand, in faded ink. [P.P. II. 13 (1) = III. 42 c (12)]
- Pap. 531. Letter to Cleon from a person whose name is mutilated, with regard to the repair of three sluice-gates. Dated the 23rd Pauni in the thirtieth year [of Ptolemy Philadelphus, = B.C. 256-255]. $9\frac{2}{3}$ in. \times 3 in. Nearly perfect; in a thick cursive hand, closely resembling that of Pap. 519, but the writer's name, though similar in termination, is shorter. [P.P. II. 13 (2) = III. 42 c (10)]
- Pap. 532. Letter to Cleon from Niceratus, reporting that the wall of a prison is unsafe, and that the prisoners had better be removed pending repairs. Dated the 16th Athur in the thirtieth year [of Ptolemy Philadelphus, = B.C. 256-255]. 5 in. \times $5\frac{1}{2}$ in. Perfect; written across the papyrus-fibres in an even, medium-sized, cursive hand. [P.P. II. 13 (3) = III. 42 c (8)]
- Pap. 533. Letter, probably to Cleon, enclosing a copy of a letter from Niceratus, on the same subject as Pap. 532. Dated the 27th Pauni in the thirtieth year [of Ptolemy Philadelphus, = B.C. 256-255]. $8\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $6\frac{1}{2}$ in. Imperfect; written across the papyrus-fibres in a thin, wide, even, cursive hand. [P.P. II. 13 (4) = III. 42 c (9)]
- Pap. 534. Letter to Cleon from Panakestor, urging him to come and inspect a certain portion of the irrigation works. Dated the 21st Mesoré in the twenty-ninth year [of Ptolemy Philadelphus, = B.C. 257-256]. 5 in. \times 12 in. Nearly perfect; written across the papyrus-fibres in a rather thick cursive hand. [P.P. II. 13 (5) = III. 42 B (2)]
- Pap. 535. Letter to Cleon from Archestratus with regard to some quarry work. Circ. B.C. 256. 10 in. \times $5\frac{1}{4}$ in. Imperfect, the right-hand portion being lost; in a thick semi-cursive hand. [P.P. II. 13 (6) = III. 42 G (4)]
- Pap. 536. Fragment of a letter to Zopyrus with reference to the payment of a sum of money due from Horus the ὑποπρυττανάρχος to Isidoté, daughter of Theodorus. 3rd cent. B.C. $12\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 6 in. Written in a rather large cursive hand. [P.P. II. 13 (7) = III. 64 (b)]
- Pap. 537. Portion of a letter, probably to Cleon, with reference to the opening or closing of the sluices. Dated the 5th Epeiph in the twenty-ninth year [of Ptolemy Philadelphus, = B.C. 257-256]. $3\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $7\frac{1}{4}$ in. Imperfect, the left-hand portion being lost; in a rather thick cursive hand, in faded ink. [P.P. II. 13 (8) = III. 42 B (1)]
- Pap. 538. (a) Letter to Cleon, from an official whose name is lost, with reference to a request that he had received for the opening of a sluice. Circ. B.C. 256. $3\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $3\frac{1}{4}$ in. Imperfect, both beginning and end being lost; in a medium-sized cursive hand, in a narrow column. [P.P. II. 13 (9) = III. 42 B (3)]
 (b) Letter to Cleon, from an official whose name is lost, giving a list of names followed by figures, the exact purport of which is not clear. Allusion is also made to the opening of the sluices. Circ. B.C. 256. $3\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $6\frac{3}{4}$ in. Imperfect; written across the papyrus-fibres in a rather thick cursive hand. [P.P. II. 13 (10) = III. 42 B (4)]

- Pap. 539. Letter to Cleon from Zenon, reporting the state of the inundation in some quarter, and applying for the opening of certain sluices. Dated the 23rd Mesoré in the twenty-eighth year [of Ptolemy Philadelphus, = B.C. 258-257]. 3 in. × 12 in. Mutilated; written across the papyrus-fibres in a rather small cursive hand. [P. P. II. 13 (11) = III. 42 A]
- Pap. 540. (a and b) Fragments of letters from Cleon to Theodorus [i. e. Theodorus, sub-commissioner of works]. Only the beginnings are preserved. Circ. B.C. 257. $2\frac{1}{4}$ in. × 6 in. Written (frag. a across the papyrus-fibres) in cursive hands. [P. P. II. 13 (12) = III. 42 G (5)]
- (c) Letter to Cleon from Philiscus, enclosing copy of a petition addressed to the King; but only the first line of the petition is preserved. Circ. B.C. 256. $3\frac{3}{4}$ in. × 5 in. Written across the papyrus-fibres in a rather rough semi-cursive hand. [P. P. II. 13 (13) = III. 42 G (6)]
- Pap. 541. (a) Letter to Cleon from Harmais (?) with reference to some building operations. Dated in the month Pharmouthi in the thirty-second year [of Ptolemy Philadelphus, = B.C. 254-253]. $3\frac{3}{4}$ in. × $10\frac{3}{4}$ in. Mutilated; written across the papyrus-fibres in a medium-sized cursive hand, in faded ink. [P. P. II. 13 (14) = III. 42 E (3)]
- (b) Fragment of letter, probably to Cleon, with regard to the letting out of water. Dated the 26th Fauni in the thirty-second year [of Ptolemy Philadelphus, = B.C. 254-253]. 3 in. × 7 in. Imperfect, the left-hand portion being lost; written across the papyrus-fibres in a medium-sized cursive hand. [P. P. II. 13 (15) = III. 42 E (2)]
- Pap. 542. Letter, probably from Dionysius to Cleon, enclosing copy of a letter from Philippus to Dionysius, with regard to the distribution of the irrigation-water. Circ. B.C. 256. $7\frac{3}{4}$ in. × $5\frac{1}{4}$ in. Imperfect, wanting the beginning of the covering letter, and the right-hand portion throughout; written across the papyrus-fibres in a rather small cursive hand, in faded ink. [P. P. II. 13 (16) = III. 44 (1)]
- Pap. 543. Memorandum from Cleon to Diotimus with regard to certain charges made upon him by the tax-collector. Circ. B.C. 255-254 (the thirty-first year being mentioned). 9 in. × $8\frac{1}{4}$ in. Imperfect; in a good semi-cursive hand, well spaced out. [P. P. II. 13 (17) = III. 42 D (3)]
- Pap. 544. Recto. Draft of letter, perhaps from Cleon, with regard to the execution of certain works at the sluice-gates, in preparation for a visit from the King. Circ. B.C. 256. 9 in. × 6 in. Imperfect; in a rather small cursive hand, with many erasures and corrections. [P. P. II. 13 (18 a) = III. 42 G (7 a)]
- Verso.* Draft of letter to Archestratus (?), inclosing memorandum from Cleon with regard to inviting tenders for the contract for some public work. Circ. B.C. 256. Imperfect; in the same hand as the recto. [P. P. II. 13 (18 b) = III. 42 G (7 b)]
- Pap. 545. Letter [from Philonides to his father Cleon, as appears from other letters in the same hand]. Circ. B.C. 256. $9\frac{1}{2}$ in. × 13 in. Imperfect; written across the papyrus-fibres in a large, thick, semi-uncial hand. [P. P. II. 13 (19) = III. 42 H (5)]
- Pap. 546. Letter to Cleon from Alexander, with reference to some payments that are to be made. Circ. B.C. 256. $5\frac{3}{4}$ in. × $7\frac{3}{4}$ in. Imperfect; written across the papyrus-fibres in a rather large cursive hand. [P. P. II. 13 (20) = III. 42 G (8)]
- Pap. 547. Official letter (the names of the parties are lost), reiterating a request that certain payments may be made from the royal treasury to some sailors, to prevent their dispersing. 3rd cent. B.C. $5\frac{1}{2}$ in. × $6\frac{3}{4}$ in. Imperfect; written across the papyrus-fibres in a medium-sized semi-cursive hand, in faded ink. [P. P. II. 15 (1) = III. 45 (3)]
- Pap. 548. Letter from Asclepiades to Hephaestion, requiring him to supply Theodorus, chief commissioner of works in the nome [cf. Papp. 523-527], with the due amounts of corn and wine for the tenth year [of Ptolemy Euergetes, = B.C. 238-237]. $5\frac{3}{4}$ in. × 6 in. Imperfect (an enclosed letter from Eutyches the διοικητής to Theodorus being absent, with the exception of a small fragment which may belong to it); written across the papyrus-fibres in a medium-sized cursive hand. [P. P. II. 15 (2) = III. 43 (7)]
- Pap. 549. Official letter (the names of the parties are lost), asking for the engagement of a certain individual as workman. 3rd cent. B.C. 5 in. × $6\frac{3}{4}$ in. Imperfect, wanting the beginning; in a rather thick and irregular cursive hand. [P. P. II. 15 (3) = III. 43 (4)]
- Pap. 550. Letter on private affairs, perhaps from Cleon. The names of Philonides and Polycrates [the sons of Cleon, cf. Pap. 545 and P. P. II. 11 (1)] are mentioned. 3rd cent. B.C. 6 in. × $11\frac{3}{4}$ in. Much mutilated; written across the papyrus-fibres in a clear semi-uncial hand. [P. P. II. 16 = III. 42 H (3)]
- Pap. 551. Petition addressed to the King by a person whose name is lost, for an inquiry by the strategus Aristomachus into a charge of assault brought against him by a woman named Lamisca. 3rd cent. B.C. $7\frac{3}{4}$ in. × $4\frac{1}{4}$ in. Very imperfect; in a thick semi-cursive hand. [P. P. II. 17 (1) = III. 22 (a)]

- Pap. 552 (a-c). Three fragments, probably from the same document or series of documents, containing the evidence of witnesses, one being named Nephthichis, in a case relating to Lamisca [cf. preceding papyrus], in the town of Crocodilopolis. 3rd cent. B.C. $3\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 5 in., $2\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $6\frac{3}{4}$ in., and $3\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $7\frac{1}{4}$ in. Written across the papyrus-fibres in rather small cursive hands. [P. P. II. 17 (2)-(4) = III. 22 (b-d)]
- Pap. 553. Petition addressed to Dionysodorus, οἰκονόμος of the division of Heracleides [in the Arsinoïte nome], by Apollonius, son of Theon, of Ptolemais Nova, complaining of an assault committed upon him by Cotys, son of Evenus, on the 21st Mesoré in the second year [of Ptolemy Euergetes, = B.C. 246-245]. 8 in. \times $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. Imperfect; in a medium-sized semi-cursive hand. [P. P. II. 18 (1) = III. 32 (c)]
- Pap. 554. Evidence of a witness in a case of assault committed by Apollodorus on Serambus; many of the details are lost through the mutilation of the papyrus. 3rd cent. B.C. Three fragments, $4\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times 5 in., 3 in. \times $7\frac{3}{4}$ in., and $2\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $6\frac{3}{4}$ in. Written across the papyrus-fibres in a medium-sized semi-cursive hand. [P. P. II. 18 (2) = III. 23]
- Pap. 555. Letter to Cleonymus from Dionysius, who is in prison, begging him to bear witness in his favour before a magistrate (apparently named Mezacus). 3rd cent. B.C. $3\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $5\frac{1}{4}$ in., with a detached fragment, $1\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $3\frac{1}{2}$ in. Imperfect; in a thick cursive hand, with very black ink. [P. P. II. 19 (1) = III. 35 (a)]
- Pap. 556. Letter (the names of the parties are lost) in which the writer asks his correspondent to use his influence that he may not be imprisoned for failing to fulfil a contract. 3rd cent. B.C. 4 in. \times $7\frac{1}{2}$ in. Imperfect, all the upper part being lost; in a rough semi-cursive hand, in much faded ink. [P. P. II. 19 (2) = III. 35 (b)]
- Pap. 557. Record of a dispute at law between Sotaerus and Sosus, with regard to a loan from the former to the latter; with the deposition of a witness, named Diogenes, in favour of Sotaerus. The loan was made at Theogonis, in the Arsinoïte nome, in the month Loius of the fifteenth year [probably of Ptolemy Euergetes, = B.C. 233-232]. Portions of at least two columns are preserved. Two fragments, 10 in. \times 8 in., and $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. Imperfect; in a rather small cursive hand, in faded ink. [P. P. II. 21 = III. 24]
- Pap. 558. Receipt from Cephalon, a livery-stable keeper, to Charmus for payment of the hire of horses engaged for the use of Asclepiades the οἰκονόμος, in accordance with the order of Artemon the ἐπιστατής in Ptolemais; dated the 24th Tubi in the twenty-first year [of Ptolemy Euergetes, = B.C. 227-226]. $5\frac{3}{4}$ in. by $6\frac{1}{2}$ in. Perfect; in a small cursive hand. [P. P. II. 25 (a) = III. 61 (a)]
- Pap. 559. Similar receipt from Cephalon to Charmus, dated the 3rd Mecheir in the same year. $7\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $6\frac{1}{2}$ in. Imperfect at the bottom; written across the papyrus-fibres in the same hand as the preceding document. [P. P. II. 25 (b) = III. 61 (b).] With a small scrap of another receipt of the same nature
- Pap. 560. (a) Receipt from Cephalon to Charmus for hay and other necessities according to agreement. [B.C. 227-226.] $2\frac{3}{4}$ in. by $6\frac{1}{4}$ in. Perfect; in a thick semi-cursive hand. [P. P. II. p. [74], with no. 25 (c)]
- (b) Receipt [from Cephalon to Charmus] for horse-hire, similar to Papp. 558 and 559 and in the same hand. [B.C. 227-226.] $5\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times 6 in. Imperfect at the beginning; written across the papyrus-fibres. At the bottom is another receipt similar to Pap. 560 a, but somewhat mutilated and in faded ink. [P. P. II. 25 (c) = III. 61 (c)]
- Pap. 561. (a) Receipt from Horus, a donkey-driver, to Charmus for necessities for his beasts. [B.C. 227-226.] $1\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times 4 in. Imperfect at the bottom; written in a rough cursive hand. [P. P. II. 25 (d) = III. 61 (d)]
- (b) Portion of receipt [probably from Horus to Charmus for donkey-hire], followed by a receipt similar to that in a. [B.C. 227-226.] $3\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $6\frac{1}{4}$ in. Written across the papyrus-fibres in a small cursive hand. [Ibid.]
- Pap. 562. Receipt for horse-hire, similar to the preceding, but the names of the parties are lost. [B.C. 227-226.] $6\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times 4 in. Imperfect at the beginning; written across the papyrus-fibres in a small cursive hand. [P. P. II. 25 (e) = III. 61 (e)]
- Pap. 563. Fragment of a similar receipt from Horus to Charmus, dated the 24th Tubi in the twenty-first year [= B.C. 227-226]. 3 in. \times 4 in. Imperfect; written across the papyrus-fibres in a small cursive hand. [P. P. II. 25 (f) = III. 61 (f)]
- Pap. 564. Receipt from Apollonius [to Charmus?] for food and fodder. [B.C. 227-226.] $5\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $4\frac{1}{4}$ in. Imperfect at the beginning; in a small cursive hand. [P. P. II. 25 (g) = III. 61 (g)]

- Pap. 565. Receipt from Apollonius, son of Menelaus, a Libyan $\tau\eta\varsigma \epsilon\pi\epsilon\gamma\omicron\nu\eta\varsigma$, for hay and other necessities for horses and mules, dated the 2nd Athur in the twenty-first year [= B.C. 227-226]. $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 4 in. An abridged copy of Pap. 564, imperfect at the end; in a small cursive hand. [P. P. II. 25 (h) = III. 61 (h)]
- Pap. 566. Contract between eleven donkey-drivers [probably of Ptolemais], in the division of Polemon in the Arsinoïte nome, and Asclepiades the $\omicron\iota\kappa\omicron\nu\omicron\mu\omicron\varsigma$, for the hire of twenty-four donkeys. Dated in the reign of Ptolemy, son of Ptolemy [Philadelphus, i. e. Euergetes, probably in the twenty-first year = B.C. 227-226]. $5\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $5\frac{1}{2}$ in. Imperfect, wanting the end and the right-hand side; in a rather small cursive hand. [P. P. II. 25 (i) = III. 62 (a)]
- Pap. 567. (a-f) Six fragments of receipts similar to those given in Papp. 558-565 and belonging to the same series. In one the donkey-driver Horus is mentioned. [B.C. 227-226.] $3\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $2\frac{1}{4}$ in., $2\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $2\frac{3}{4}$ in., 2 in. \times $2\frac{1}{2}$ in., 7 in. \times $2\frac{1}{2}$ in., $5\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $1\frac{3}{4}$ in., and 6 in. \times 3 in. Frag. c is written across the papyrus-fibres. Written in small cursive hands. [Part of e is printed in P. P. III. 61 (i)]
- Pap. 568. (a) Register of amounts of money (in drachmas) received, presumably as taxes, on successive days (seventh to twenty-first) of an unnamed month from various individuals in different villages of the Arsinoïte nome. Portions of eleven columns are preserved. 3rd cent. B.C. $12\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times 3 ft. 9 in. Written in a clear semi-cursive hand of good size. [P. P. II. 28 = III. 66 (a)]
- (b) Continuation of the above account, including the twenty-third and twenty-fourth days, in a different hand and on papyrus of different size. Three fragments, containing four columns. $6\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $5\frac{3}{4}$ in., $6\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times 1 ft. $3\frac{1}{2}$ in., and $1\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times 6 in. Written in a rather thick cursive hand. [P. P. III. 66 (b)]
- Pap. 569. Petition addressed to Dorotheus the $\epsilon\pi\iota\mu\epsilon\lambda\eta\tau\eta\varsigma$ by Petosiris, a tanner, who complains that a certain tax-collector, Dionysius, has unjustly carried off property belonging to him of the value of 2,600 drachmas. The text is continued on the verso, in reverse direction. Dated the 17th Mesoré in the tenth year [of Epiphanes or Philometor, = B.C. 196-195 or 172-171]. 13 in. \times $6\frac{1}{4}$ in. Nearly perfect; in a semi-cursive hand of good size. [P. P. II. 32 (1) = III. 36 (d)]
- Pap. 570. Recto. Two letters, (1) from an official whose name is lost, to his superior, complaining that a watchman who had been set to guard a $\psi\upsilon\gamma\mu\omicron\varsigma$ has been assaulted by a certain Ptolemy and his friends; somewhat mutilated, and written in a rather rough uncial hand; (2) from Ptolemy, son of Protarchus, to Posidonius the $\omicron\iota\kappa\omicron\nu\omicron\mu\omicron\varsigma$, complaining of a trespass by some cattle on a crop of croton; in a cursive hand, partially obliterated. In the second document mention is made of the fifth year [presumably of Ptolemy Euergetes, = B.C. 243-242]. $13\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $9\frac{1}{4}$ in. [P. P. II. 32 (2) = III. 32 (g)]
- Verso.* Drafts or copies of correspondence, including letters from Bacchius to Alexander, and Harmais to Bacchius. One letter is dated in Athur of the sixth year [presumably = B.C. 242-241]. Written in a thin cursive hand, in faded ink. [P. P. II. 32 (3) = III. 32 (g)]
- Pap. 571. Account of household expenses, mainly for the months of Athur and Choiach. One column is preserved, and part of another. 3rd cent. B.C. 13 in. \times $8\frac{1}{2}$ in. Imperfect; in a rather thick cursive hand, in faded ink. [P. P. II. 33 (a) = III. 143]
- Pap. 572. Account for unguents of various kinds, with sums in both silver and copper. Portions of two columns are preserved. 3rd cent. B.C. $13\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 7 in. Imperfect; in a rather neat uncial hand, approaching the literary type. [P. P. II. 34 (b) = III. 127]
- On the verso is a document relating to the land tax, written in a cursive hand in faded ink, which has suffered much from being covered with plaster
- Pap. 573. Register of cavalry horses, with their owners and description (colour, &c.). Dated in the sixth year [presumably of Ptolemy Euergetes, = B.C. 242-241]. Very imperfect, consisting of six irregularly-shaped fragments; in a rather large semi-uncial hand. [P. P. II. 35 = III. 54 (b)]
- On the verso are traces of an account in a similar hand.
- Pap. 574. (a) Estimate of work done in excavating a canal in the neighbourhood of Hephaestias, in the Arsinoïte nome. The calculations give the amount of earth excavated, and the measurements of length are given in $\sigma\chi\omicron\nu\iota\alpha$, those of depth and width probably in double cubits, and the product in $\acute{\alpha}\omega\iota\lambda\iota\alpha$, i. e. probably cubic double cubits [cf. Smyly, P. P. III. pp. 339-347]. Dated the 16th Phamenoth in the sixth year [presumably of Ptolemy Euergetes, = B.C. 242-241]. $13\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $8\frac{1}{2}$ in. Nearly perfect; in a rather small cursive hand. [P. P. II. 36 (1) = III. 45 (1)]
- (b) Fragment of a similar estimate, showing the number of $\acute{\alpha}\omega\iota\lambda\iota\alpha$ excavated in a month, and giving the rate of pay as four drachmas per sixty $\acute{\alpha}\omega\iota\lambda\iota\alpha$. 3rd cent. B.C. $5\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times 5 in. Written in a small cursive hand. [P. P. II. 36 (2) = III. 45 (2)]
- Pap. 575. Official correspondence with regard to the opening of sluices in the irrigation-canals [cf. Papp. 537-542]. The writing is continued on the verso, and portions of four columns are preserved on each side. 3rd cent. B.C. 1 ft. 1 in. \times 1 ft. 5 in. Imperfect; in a rather small cursive hand. [P. P. II. 37 = III. 44 (2)]

- Pap. 576. Copy of a legal decision sent to Aphthonetus [cf. Papp. 502, 529] by Argaeus, dated the 25th Hyperberetaeus in the nineteenth year [presumably of Ptolemy Euergetes, = B.C. 229-228]. The text is continued on the verso. 12 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times 4 in. Nearly perfect, but much defaced on the recto; in a medium-sized semi-cursive hand. [P. P. II. 38 (c) = III. 25]
- Pap. 577. Account rendered by an official named Theodotus of receipts from passengers and freight carried by boats on the canal by Ptolemais, stating the amount (generally a half) accruing thence to the royal treasury (βασιλικόν). The account (so far as preserved) is for the first twelve days of Thouth in the twenty-second year [probably of Ptolemy Euergetes, = B.C. 226-225]; and there are traces of a second column. 11 in. \times 5 in. Imperfect; in a medium-sized semi-cursive hand, well preserved. [P. P. II. 39 (c) = III. 107 (a)].
- Pap. 578. Tax-register, including entries for φυλακτικόν, χωματικόν, οικονομικόν, λειτουργικόν, κ.τ.λ., apparently paid by orphans. Reference is made to the second year [presumably of Ptolemy Euergetes, = B.C. 246-245, or Philopator, = B.C. 221-220]. Four fragments, the principal one measuring 10 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 5 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. Imperfect; in a small cursive hand. [P. P. II. 39 (e) = III. 110 (a)]. On the verso is a portion of another account, and some demotic writing.
- Pap. 579. Register of tax-payments for the thirty-sixth, thirty-seventh, and thirty-eighth years [of Ptolemy Philadelphus, = B.C. 250-247], principally in respect of the χωματικόν, φυλακτικόν, and ἀλική. Three principal fragments, containing portions of fifteen columns. 1 ft. 5 in. \times 1 ft., 1 ft. 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 6 $\frac{1}{4}$ in., and 1 ft. 2 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ in.; with a small additional fragment 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 4 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. Written in a thin and rather small cursive hand. [One column partly published in P. P. II. 39 (f); the remainder subsequently reconstructed by Prof. Smyly and republished as P. P. III. 109 (a)].
- Pap. 580. Copies of official correspondence with regard to wheat stored in the granaries. 3rd cent. B.C. 7 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times 7 in. Imperfect; in a rather small cursive hand. [P. P. II. 39 (g) = III. 53 (f)].
- Pap. 581. Fragments of an account of wood, &c., furnished to certain persons. 3rd cent. B.C. Eight fragments of various sizes, the height of the papyrus being 12 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches; in a small cursive hand, in much faded ink. [P. P. II. 39 (h) = III. 49].
- Pap. 582. Letter from Manres to a party of men, apparently on a distant station, encouraging them to hold on, and saying that relief is being sent to them. Reference is made to the hunting of elephants at Berenicé, and to the sinking of an elephant-transport. Dated the 14th Phaophi in the twenty-fourth year [of Ptolemy Euergetes, = B.C. 224-223]. 13 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times 4 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. Mutilated; in a medium-sized cursive hand. [P. P. II. 40 (a) = III. 53 (g)].
- Pap. 583. Portion of a lease or sale of a house (?) and courtyard, containing a detailed description of its dimensions. 3rd cent. B.C. 8 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 3 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. Imperfect at the beginning; in a rather thick semi-cursive hand. [P. P. II. 41 = III. 60].
- Pap. 584. (a) Notification from Cleandrus to the οικονόμοι, νομάρχαι, and other officials, that he has appointed Theodorus, the sub-commissioner of works [cf. Papp. 523-527], to the charge of the dykes and sluices. [Between B.C. 254 and 246.] 5 in. \times 6 in. Imperfect at the end; in a medium-sized semi-cursive hand. [P. P. II. 42 (a) = III. 43 (i)].
- (b) Letter from Cleon [cf. Pap. 510, &c.] to Paeon, asking for an ass to be sent to him. [Between B.C. 254 and 246.] 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 5 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. Mutilated; in a small, rough, cursive hand. [P. P. II. 42 (b) = III. 42 (i)].
- Pap. 585. Letter, apparently from Philonides (the hand being the same as in Pap. 503 a), to his father [Cleon]; too much mutilated for its subject to be ascertained. [Circ. B.C. 256.] 9 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. Very imperfect; in a broad semi-cursive hand. [P. P. II. 42 (c) = III. 42 H (6)].
- Pap. 586. Lease from Dionysius, Diodorus, and another, to Metrodorus and Epicurus of a pumpkin-garden and other ground. 3rd cent. B.C. Two fragments, 9 in. \times 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ in., and 8 in. \times 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. Very imperfect; written across the papyrus-fibres in a small cursive hand. [P. P. II. 44 = III. 74 (b)].
- Pap. 587. Acknowledgement by Donomazys, son of Taotius, of the receipt from Histiaeus, a mercenary soldier in the regiment of Maraeus, of the sum of 330 drachmas. Dated in Crocodilopolis, the 15th Pauni in the thirteenth year of [Ptolemy] Philopator = B.C. 210-209. 11 in. \times 5 in. Imperfect; in a small cursive hand, in much faded ink. [P. P. II. 47 = III. 55 (b)].
- Pap. 588. Acknowledgements by ship-owners of amounts of corn received from the σιτολόγος Dorion for transport down the river. Portions of three receipts are preserved, dated in Choiach and Tubi of the eighteenth year of Ptolemy, son of Ptolemy Philopator [i.e. Ptolemy Epiphanes, = B.C. 188-187]. 7 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. Imperfect; in a small cursive hand. [P. P. II. 48 = III. 116].

- Pap. 589. Fragment of an elegiac poem, containing portions of twenty-four lines. 3rd cent. B.C. $5\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $3\frac{1}{2}$ in., with a detached fragment 4 in. \times $1\frac{1}{2}$ in. Much mutilated; in a rather small and thick uncial hand. [P.P. II. 49 (a)]
- Pap. 590. Fragment of a drama, containing portions of twenty lines (a complete column). 3rd cent. B.C. $7\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 3 in. Mutilated; in a medium-sized uncial hand, rather irregular, and with a peculiar form of ω . [P.P. II. 49 (c)]
- Pap. 591. (a) Fragment of a drama, containing the ends of twenty-one lines and the beginnings of the same number; only a few letters are preserved in each case. 3rd cent. B.C. 5 in. \times $1\frac{1}{2}$ in. Written in a medium-sized uncial hand. [P.P. II. 49 (d)]
- (b) Fragment of a prose philosophical treatise on the subject of Humanity, containing portions of four columns. 3rd cent. B.C. $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $8\frac{3}{4}$ in. Written in a rather large and square uncial hand. [P.P. II. 49 (e).] On the verso are small remains of three columns of a literary work, in a similar but less well-written hand
- Pap. 592. Fragments of a prose narrative of the adventures of Heracles. 3rd cent. B.C. Fourteen small fragments, of irregular size, in a small, firm, uncial hand of early appearance. [P.P. II. 49 (f)]
- Pap. 593. Letter from Philonides to Cleon [cf. Papp. 503 a, 585], apparently on private affairs. [Circ. B.C. 256.] 6 in. \times 11 in. Very imperfect; in a large, broad, semi-cursive hand, with very black ink. [Not printed in P.P.]
- Pap. 594. Fragment of a letter relating to a misapplication of public funds; the names of the parties are lost. 3rd cent. B.C. 9 in. \times 6 in. Imperfect, the left-hand side being lost; in a medium-sized semi-cursive hand. [P.P. III. 125]
- Pap. 595. Fragment of a letter, perhaps official. 3rd cent. B.C. $3\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $3\frac{1}{2}$ in. Imperfect; in a medium-sized semi-cursive hand. [Not printed in P.P.]
- Pap. 596. Register of wills; two fragments, apparently from the same document, each containing portions of two wills, dated in the twelfth year of Ptolemy, son of Ptolemy [Philadelphus, i.e. Ptolemy Euergetes, = B.C. 236-235]. To the second will in frag. b is prefixed the number $\iota\delta$ [14]. Apparently part of the same register as Pap. 492. 7 in. \times 3 in. and $5\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. Written in a very regular cursive hand. [P.P. III. 16]
- Pap. 597. Official letter from Heracleides to S—— instructing him to advance a certain quantity of corn to the cultivators, through the medium of the κόμάρχαι and the κωμογραμματεῖς, with (apparently) a schedule of the several advances. Dated the 1st Athur in the twenty-fifth year [either of Philadelphus, = B.C. 261-260, or more probably of Euergetes, = B.C. 223-222]. 8 in. \times $8\frac{1}{2}$ in. Imperfect; in a medium-sized cursive hand, much defaced by plaster. [P.P. III. 89]
- Pap. 598. Fragments of a letter (?); but not enough is left to indicate the subject. 3rd cent. B.C. Two fragments, $3\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $3\frac{3}{4}$ in. and $5\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times 5 in. Written in a rough cursive hand. [Not printed in P.P.; formerly attached to Pap. 589 (cf. Mahaffy on P.P. II. 49 (a)), though having nothing to do with it]
- Pap. 599. (a-g) Seven fragments of miscellaneous Ptolemaic documents. 3rd cent. B.C. $5\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 3 in., $2\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $2\frac{1}{2}$ in., $4\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $1\frac{3}{4}$ in., $2\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $1\frac{1}{4}$ in., $5\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $\frac{3}{4}$ in., $3\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $3\frac{3}{4}$ in., and $2\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $3\frac{1}{4}$ in. Frag. a (an account) is written across the papyrus-fibres. [Frag. f = P.P. III. 84]
- Pap. 600. (a-e) Five fragments of miscellaneous Ptolemaic documents. 3rd cent. B.C. $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 3 in., $4\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $2\frac{1}{2}$ in., $3\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $1\frac{3}{4}$ in., 4 in. \times $2\frac{1}{2}$ in., and $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 4 in. Frag. a (a receipt) is written in an uncial hand approaching the literary type. [Not printed in P.P.]
- Pap. 601. Fragment of a Ptolemaic document, too much mutilated for its subject to be discovered. 3rd cent. B.C. $7\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 5 in. On the verso is some writing dated the 26th Pharmouthi in the seventh year [either of Euergetes, = B.C. 241-240, or Philopator, = B.C. 216-215]. [Not printed in P.P.]
- Pap. 602. (a) Fragment of an account. 3rd cent. B.C. $3\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 4 in. Written in a rather small cursive hand. On the verso is a little obscure writing. [P.P. II., introd., p. 32 = III. 135]
- (b) Portions of two receipts, perhaps from a pawnbroker, the first referring to a hoe, a shirt, and a basket, the values of which are given. Dated in Athur of the twenty-fourth year [of Ptolemy Euergetes, = B.C. 224-223]. $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 3 in. Imperfect; in a small cursive hand. [P.P. II., introd., p. 33 = III. 72 (c)]
- Pap. 603. Fragment of a petition asking for justice on some offenders: but the names of the parties and much of the substance of the petition are lost. 3rd cent. B.C. $6\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $3\frac{3}{4}$ in. Written in a medium-sized cursive hand, much defaced by plaster. [Not printed in P.P.]

Pap. 604. Roll of papyrus, formed by the conjunction of two distinct documents, the texts of which run in opposite directions:—

- A. Return compiled by Besas, also named Soterichus, κομογραμματεὺς of Crocodilopolis and the associated villages, of arable land irrigated by the inundation in the seventh year of Tiberius Claudius Caesar Augustus Germanicus [= A.D. 46-47], giving the names of the owners (or occupiers) and the amount of land held by each of them. Portions of nine columns are preserved, four being perfect; the end is wanting. 1 ft. 2 in. × 4 ft. Written in a medium-sized cursive hand 70 24
- B. Return of land, apparently giving the results of a revision of the register of land liable to the corn-tax, arranged under various headings. Twelve columns are preserved, but both the beginning and end of the return are wanting. Middle of the 1st cent. 1 ft. 2 in. × 4 ft. 6 in. Written in a hand similar to that of A, perhaps identical, but rather more compact 76 25

On the verso is an Egyptian romance, in demotic. Cf. F. Ll. Griffith, Stories of the High Priests of Memphis (Oxford, 1900). It was evidently for the purpose of receiving this text that the two documents forming the recto were fastened together

[Papp. 605-650 were acquired from Dr. B. P. Grenfell, who purchased them in Egypt in the winter of 1894-1895. The texts of most of them have been published by him in a volume entitled, Greek Papyri I: An Alexandrian Erotic Fragment and other Papyri (Oxford, University Press, 1896); and the numbers there attached to them have been appended in brackets to the following descriptions.]

Pap. 605. Recto. Record of a loan of a hundred (or more) artabas of wheat from Sosistratus, a soldier, to Druton, in the Pathyrite nome (probably at Crocodilopolis). Dated the 5th Thoth in the eighth year of Ptolemy Philometor (= B.C. 174-173), with a full list of the priests and priestesses of the dynastic cults in Alexandria and Thebes. $6\frac{1}{2}$ in. × 7 in. Imperfect, the left-hand portion being lost; in a small semi-cursive hand. [G. P. I. 10]

Verso. Fragment of an erotic composition, in rhythmical prose, or irregular verse, divided into stanzas or paragraphs by the use of the paragraphus. It contains the lament of a woman for her faithless lover. One column is complete, and the first letters of a second column are also preserved. Written in a small cursive hand. 2nd cent. B.C., later than B.C. 174. [G. P. I. 1]

Pap. 606. Record of a dispute at law between Panas and Thotortaeus, concerning the boundaries of some land in the Pathyrite nome; with the judgement of the officials before whom the case was decided. One of the documents quoted in it is dated the 25th Epeiph in the twenty-fourth year [probably of Philometor, = B.C. 158-157]. In two columns, the first being imperfect. 12 in. × $15\frac{1}{4}$ in. Written in a fine semi-uncial hand. [G. P. I. 11]

Pap. 607. Will of Druton, son of Pamphilus, of Crocodilopolis in the Thebaid. Dated in the reign of Philometor, the exact year being lost; but the inclusion of a priest of Eupator in the list of priests of the dynastic cults probably shows that it belongs to the later years of the reign, circa B.C. 150-146. About 12 in. × 5 in. Much mutilated; in a small cursive hand. [G. P. I. 12]

Pap. 608. Letter from an official to a subordinate, concerning a petition from the βασιλικοὶ γεωργοί. Dated the 15th Mecheir in the twenty-ninth year, which may be either of Ptolemy Philometor [= B.C. 153-152] or of Euergetes II [= B.C. 142-141]. $3\frac{3}{4}$ in. × $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. Imperfect, the left-hand portion being lost; in a medium-sized semi-cursive hand. [G. P. I. 13]

Pap. 609. Inventory of articles deposited in a temple with the priest Patous, dated the 23rd Phaophi in the thirty-second year [either of Philometor, = B.C. 150-149, or Euergetes II, = B.C. 139-138]. Written across the fibres on the recto of the papyrus; the verso contains remains of obliterated writing. $11\frac{1}{4}$ in. × $3\frac{1}{4}$ in. The inventory is complete, and is followed by an account of wheat, the end of which is lost; in a medium-sized irregular cursive hand. [G. P. I. 14]

Pap. 610. Record of a dispute between the priests of Hermonthis and Pathyris with regard to the possession of some land; apparently in the form of a petition from the former to Ptolemy Philometor and his queen Cleopatra, recapitulating the progress of the quarrel and quoting documents and official correspondence in connexion with it. The main petition is dated in Athur of the thirty-third year of Ptolemy Philometor [= B.C. 149-148]. Several columns are partially preserved, but none perfectly. Written in a good-sized cursive hand. [Unpublished; cf. note on G. P. I. 10, l. 4]

Pap. 611. (a) Fragment of a petition, wanting the beginning and the left-hand portion. 2nd cent. B.C. (earlier than the document which follows). Written in a medium-sized semi-cursive hand. [G. P. I. 15]

- (b) Account of Druton, relating to corn, dated in Mesoré of the thirty-fifth year [either of Philometor, = B.C. 147-146, or Euergetes II = B.C. 136-135]. Perfect; written across the bottom of the same sheet of papyrus as the preceding, in a small cursive hand, much abbreviated. [G.P. I. 16].
The papyrus measures 6 in. \times $4\frac{1}{4}$ in. On the verso is a corn-account of Senmonthis, similar to b above, and with the same date. Complete, but defaced by rubbing.
- Pap. 612. Petition from two women named Semminis and Senapathis (also named Heracleia), dwelling in Pathyris, for the restitution of some property inherited by them from their father, but unjustly seized by one Callimedes. The name of the official addressed is lost, together with all the left-hand portion of the papyrus, and the conclusion of it. The thirty-fourth year is mentioned [either of Philometor, = B.C. 148-147, or of Euergetes II, = B.C. 137-136]. 6 in. \times $5\frac{1}{4}$ in. Written in a rather rough cursive hand. [G.P. I. 17].
- Pap. 613. Loan of thirty-five artabas of wheat from Apollonia, wife of Druton, to Apollonius, also named Psennesis, and his wife Herais, also named Tisris. Dated at Pathyris the 12th Choiach in the thirty-ninth year [of Euergetes II, = B.C. 132-131]; the loan to be repaid without interest in Pauni of the same year. $11\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. Nearly perfect; in a small, regular cursive hand. [G.P. I. 18].
- Pap. 614. Loan from Apollonia, wife of Druton, to Nechutes, of 1 talent 5030 drachmas. Dated at Pathyris, the 23rd Pharmouthi in the forty-first year [of Euergetes II, = B.C. 130-129]. $3\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $3\frac{1}{2}$ in. Imperfect, wanting the lower part; written across the papyrus-fibres in a clear semi-cursive hand. [G.P. I. 19].
- Pap. 615. Fragment of a receipt dated in the Thebaid (probably at Pathyris), in the month Mecheir in the forty-second year [of Euergetes II, = B.C. 129-128]. The names of the parties are mutilated. 6 in. \times 3 in. Imperfect at both sides; in a thick semi-cursive hand.
- Pap. 616. Loan from Apollonia, wife of Druton, to Solon, also named Seëis, son of Horus, and Harmais, his brother, with their mother, Persians τῆς ἐπιγονῆς, of 1 talent 4000 drachmas. Dated at Pathyris the 15th Phaophi in the forty-fourth year [of Euergetes II, = B.C. 127-126]; the loan to be repaid at the end of Mecheir of the same year. $6\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $4\frac{1}{4}$ in. Imperfect, wanting the left-hand portion and a line or two in the middle; in a small semi-cursive hand. [G.P. I. 20].
- Pap. 617. Will of Druton, son of Pamphilus, executed at Pathyris on the 9th Pauni in the forty-fourth year [of Euergetes II, = B.C. 127-126]. Reference is made to a former will of the sixth year [= B.C. 165-164], which can hardly be the same as that preserved in Pap. 607. There is no mention of witnesses or counter-signature by the agoranomus, hence it is probably a draft or copy of the actual will. The names of the testator's daughters, mentioned here, recur in Pap. 405. $9\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $14\frac{1}{4}$ in. Mutilated at the left-hand side; in a rough cursive hand. [G.P. I. 21].
- Pap. 618. Report from Moschion to Petearsentheus, that he has received ten talents in respect of the τοπογραφματεία, the same in respect of the κωμογραφματεία, and thirty talents as the price of 150 artabas of wheat at 1200 drachmas each. Dated the 1st Athur in the fifty-third year [of Euergetes II, = B.C. 118-117]. $7\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 4 in. Perfect; in a neat uncial hand. [G.P. I. 22].
- Pap. 619. Loan from Caies, son of Pates, to Harpaësis, son of Portis (both being Persians τῆς ἐπιγονῆς), of twenty-five artabas of wheat. Dated at Pathyris, the 15th Choiach in the fifty-third year [of Euergetes II, = B.C. 118-117]; the loan to be repaid in Pachon of the same year. 8 in. \times $3\frac{1}{4}$ in. Perfect; in a clear semi-cursive hand. [G.P. I. 23].
- Pap. 620. Fragment of a will, dated at Crocodilopolis in the Pathyrite nome, the 25th Choiach in some year (the exact number is lost) of Euergetes II. The list of priests of the dynastic cults indicates the latter part of his reign, after the death of Philometor [B.C. 146-117]. 6 in. \times $4\frac{3}{4}$ in. Only the date and the opening words of the will are preserved, the former in a small cursive hand, the latter in a large uncial. [G.P. I. 24].
- Pap. 621. Record of sale by Naomsesis, daughter of Onnophris, a priestess, and her husband Stotoëtis, priest of Suchus and Aphrodite, to Sensuchus, son of Nechutes, of four πηχεῖς στερεοῦ of waste land for 4000 drachmas. Dated at Pathyris, the 24th Pharmouthi in the third year of Cleopatra and Ptolemy Soter II [= B.C. 115-114]. The date contains a complete list of the Ptolemies (including Eupator and Philopator Neos) down to that time. 6 in. \times 14 in. Imperfect, the third column, containing most of the actual record of sale, being lost; the body of the document is in a clear semi-uncial hand of good size, and is preceded by a summary of the contents in a small, very cursive hand. [G.P. I. 25].
- Pap. 622. Record of the repayment by Psenenupis, son of Onnophris, to Erianupis, son of Pathotes, of a loan of fifty-six artabas of wheat borrowed two years previously; with Erianupis's acknowledgment of the receipt. Dated at Pathyris, the 16th Athur in the fifth year [of Cleopatra and Ptolemy Soter II, = B.C. 113-112]. $6\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 6 in. Nearly perfect; written across the papyrus-fibres in a thick cursive hand. [G.P. I. 26].

- Pap. 623. Grant by Sebtitis, daughter of Harsiesis, a Persian, to her daughter Naamsesis, of half an aroura of land. Dated at Crocodilopolis in the Pathyrite nome, the 11th Mecheir in the eighth year of Cleopatra and Ptolemy Soter II [= B.C. 110-109]; the formula of the date includes a complete list of the Ptolemies, as in Pap. 621. $5\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 2 ft. 6 in. Nearly perfect; written in three columns (the first being a summary of the contents), in a rather small cursive hand. [G.P. I. 27]
- Pap. 624. Fragment of a loan of ten artabas of wheat by a person whose name is lost to Phalois. Dated the 6th Phaophi in the tenth year [probably of Cleopatra and Soter II, = B.C. 108-107]. $7\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $3\frac{1}{2}$ in. Imperfect; wanting the beginning and the right-hand portion; in a rough, small cursive hand, followed by five lines of demotic. [G.P. I. 28]
- Pap. 625. Loan from Sennesis, daughter of Patseous, a Persian, to Phagonis, son of Panobchunis, a Persian $\tau\eta\varsigma \epsilon\pi\iota\gamma\omicron\nu\eta\varsigma$, of six artabas of salt, without interest. Dated at Pathyris, the 30th Mesoré of the twelfth year [of Cleopatra] and 9th [of Ptolemy Alexander, = B.C. 106-105]. 7 in. \times 5 in. Nearly perfect; in a medium-sized, rough, semi-cursive hand, followed by three lines of demotic. [G.P. I. 29]
- Pap. 626. Fragment of a letter, dated the 15th Pauni in the fourteenth year [of Cleopatra] and 11th [of Ptolemy Alexander, = B.C. 104-103]. $6\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times 6 in. Imperfect, the upper part of the papyrus being in the collection of Lord Amherst (Amh. Pap. 39); in a thin, very cursive hand. [G.P. I. 30]
- Pap. 627. Loan from Erianupis and his $\sigma\upsilon\nu\theta\iota\alpha\sigma\iota\tau\alpha\iota$ to Nechutes of $7\frac{1}{8}$ artabas of barley. The exact date is lost, but it was executed at Pathyris in the fourteenth year [probably of Cleopatra, = B.C. 104-103]. 9 in. \times 4 in. Imperfect, the beginning being lost; in the same hand as Pap. 625, but rather less rough. [G.P. I. 31]
- Pap. 628. Portion of an order from some military authorities to send two men to a certain place. Dated the 2nd Pharmouthi in the fifteenth year [of Cleopatra] and twelfth [of Ptolemy Alexander, = B.C. 103-102]. $6\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 13 in. Imperfect; written across the papyrus-fibres in a medium-sized cursive hand. [G.P. I. 32]
- Pap. 629. Record of purchases of land made by Paësis, son of Peteuris, in the lower toparchy of the Latopolite nome. The latest date mentioned is in Phaophi of the fifteenth year [of Cleopatra] and twelfth [of Ptolemy Alexander, = B.C. 103-102]. $9\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 6 in. Imperfect; written on both sides of the papyrus in a very rough cursive hand. [G.P. I. 33]
- Pap. 630. Fragment of a sale of land in Pathyris. The names of the parties are lost. Dated in the sixteenth year of Cleopatra and thirteenth of Ptolemy Alexander [= B.C. 102-101]. 6 in. \times $3\frac{3}{4}$ in. Imperfect, wanting the right-hand portion; in a fairly regular cursive hand. [G.P. I. 34]
- Pap. 631. Fragment of a letter, with reference to the delivery of some wheat. Dated at Ptolemais, the 8th Thoth in the sixteenth year [either of Cleopatra, = B.C. 102-101, or Ptolemy Alexander, = B.C. 99-98]. 4 in. \times $4\frac{1}{4}$ in. Imperfect, wanting the upper portion; in a very cursive hand. [G.P. I. 35]
- Pap. 632. Sale by Petosiris, son of Paos, a Persian $\tau\eta\varsigma \epsilon\pi\iota\gamma\omicron\nu\eta\varsigma$, to Pakoibis, son of Patous, of land in Pathyris. Dated in the month Mecheir in the reign of Ptolemy Alexander [between B.C. 101 and 88, the name of the queen-mother Cleopatra being omitted]. The name of Berenice is also absent, as in BGU. 998 and Tebt. Papp. 104, 109. About $6\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times 11 in. Imperfect, wanting the right-hand portion, and much mutilated throughout; written on thin papyrus, in a rough, cursive hand. [G.P. I. 36]
- Pap. 633. Fragment of a petition, dated the 27th Pharmouthi in the ninth year [probably of Soter II, = B.C. 109-108]. The names of the parties are lost. At the foot of the papyrus, and continued on the verso, is the official docket. $5\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 5 in. Imperfect, only part of the lower half of the papyrus being preserved; in a small, very cursive hand. [G.P. I. 37]
- Pap. 634. Petition to Numenis, strategus [of the Thebaid, or of the Pathyrite nome], from Pokas, son of Onos, an unpaid policeman, complaining of an assault committed on him by Peadias, a priest of the temple of Suchus at Crocodilopolis in the Pathyrite nome, on the first of the intercalated days in the eleventh year of an unnamed sovereign [either Cleopatra, = B.C. 107-106, or Ptolemy Auletes, = B.C. 71-70]. $12\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $5\frac{1}{2}$ in. Nearly perfect; in an uneducated uncial hand. [G.P. I. 38]
- Pap. 635. Recto. Account of waggon-loads of barley, wheat, and seeds, conveyed to Pathyris. 2nd cent. B.C. One column nearly perfect, with the first letters of another; in a medium-sized semi-cursive hand
- Verso.* List of names, with account of money expended on wine, &c. 2nd cent. B.C. Apparently perfect, in a slightly cursive uncial hand
- The papyrus measures $5\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 6 in. [G.P. I. 39.]

| Pap. 636. Fragments of a letter from Didymus, εἰσαγωγεὺς , to Antipater and the (other?) χρηματισταί at Ptolemais. 2nd cent. B.C. About $7\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 10 in. Imperfect; in a large, slightly cursive uncial hand. [G. P. I. 40] | | |
| Pap. 637. Declaration by Peteuris that he will pay fifteen talents of copper in respect of στέφανος . 2nd cent. 4 in. \times $3\frac{3}{4}$ in. Perfect; written across the papyrus-fibres in a rough semi-uncial hand. [G. P. I. 41] | | |
| Pap. 638. Petition from cavalry soldiers at Diospolis Parva and Ptolemais to the strategus, asking to receive as much pay and allowances as certain troops elsewhere. 2nd cent. B.C. [probably in the first half of the century]. 7 in. \times $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. Imperfect, wanting the left-hand portion and the conclusion; in a rather small semi-cursive hand. [G. P. I. 42] | | |
| Pap. 639. Letter from Menon to Hermocrates and his brother, with reference to a mare which should have been sent to him, but had been detained by a Jew named Daniel. 2nd cent. B.C. 4 in. \times $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. Slightly mutilated; in a regular semi-cursive hand. [G. P. I. 43] | | |
| Pap. 640. Fragment of a contract of sale, with the attestations of witnesses, who are priests and πρωτοστολισταί of the temple (apparently of Suchus and Aphrodite) in Pathyris. 2nd cent. B.C. $3\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $5\frac{1}{2}$ in. Imperfect, containing remains of two columns; the contract in a large, slightly cursive uncial hand, the attestations in a thick, semi-cursive hand. [G. P. I. 44] | | |
| Pap. 641. Fragment of an account (?). 2nd cent. B.C. $12\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $5\frac{1}{4}$ in. Roughly written on the verso of the papyrus, the recto being nearly blank. | | |
| Pap. 642. Fragments from a mummy-case, in a very neat hand of literary type. 2nd cent. B.C. (?). Attached to one of them is a document in a different hand, bearing a mutilated date apparently in the reign of [Ptolemy Alexander] and Cleopatra [= B.C. 89-88; possibly of Philometor, = before B.C. 146] | | |
| Pap. 643. Fragment of a letter from Epaenetus to his son, from the same mummy-case as the preceding. 2nd cent. B.C. (?). $3\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $6\frac{1}{4}$ in. Imperfect, only the first six lines being preserved; in a rather large, thin, semi-uncial hand. | | |
| Pap. 644. Fragments of a business document of uncertain nature, from the same mummy-case as the preceding. 2nd cent. B.C. Written across the papyrus-fibres in a rather large semi-cursive hand. | | |

| Pap. 646. Census-return by Pnepheros, son of Phanemius, a δημόσιος γεωργός , for the eleventh year of Caesar; addressed to Apollonius, κωμογραμματεὺς of Theadelphia [in the nome of Arsinoe]. Dated the 3rd Mecheir in the eleventh year of Caesar [= 28 Jan., B.C. 19], with official docket dated the 2nd Pachon [= 27 April] in the same year. $6\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $2\frac{3}{4}$ in. Nearly perfect; in a small cursive hand, with abbreviations. [G. P. I. 45] | | |
| Pap. 647. Similar census-return by the same Pnepheros, for the succeeding year. The official to whom it was sent is not stated. Dated the 8th Pachon in the twelfth year of Caesar [= 3 May, B.C. 18]. $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $2\frac{3}{4}$ in. Nearly perfect; in an irregular cursive hand, with abbreviations. [G. P. I. 46] | | |
| Pap. 648. Recto . Fragment of a land-register, mentioning dates in the twentieth and twenty-fifth years [of Commodus, = A.D. 179-180 and 184-185]. About 12 in. \times $8\frac{1}{2}$ in. Imperfect, including portions of seven entries, none being complete; in a small, thin, cursive hand. | | |
| Verso . List of names, followed by the ages of each person; perhaps a census-list, but figures are prefixed to each name, the explanation of which is not clear. 3rd cent. Imperfect, parts of two columns being preserved; in a rough cursive hand. | | |
| Pap. 649. Receipt from Didymus Argentis (sic), a cavalry soldier of the εἰλη Γαλλικῇ , to Stotoëtis, son of Apunchis, and the other πρεσβύτεροι of the village of Socnopaei Nesus, for barley bought by him at the usual price from the tax-collectors. Dated the 28th Pauni in the thirty-first year [of Commodus, = 22 June, A.D. 191]. 6 in. \times $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. Perfect; in a rough uncial hand, with many mistakes. [G. P. I. 48] | | |
| Pap. 650. Tax-receipt, given by Aurelius Harpocraton, κλήρου (?) ἐξηγητής , to Philoxas, γυμνασίαρχος , for the sum of seventy-six drachmas paid by him through the κωμάρχης (or κωμογραμματεὺς) of Philadelphia and another village. Dated the 27th Phaophi in the first year of Macrianus and Quietus [= 24 Oct., A.D. 260]. $8\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times 3 in., most being blank. Slightly rubbed; in a thin, very cursive hand, with many abbreviations. [G. P. I. 50] | | |
| Pap. 651. Portion of a lease of land, dated in Phaophi in the consulship of Flavius Ursus and Flavius Polemius [= October, A.D. 338]. $8\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 3 in. Imperfect on both sides; in a rather irregular cursive hand. Presented by Col. T. L. Fraser | | |

Pap. 652. Copy of a deed of sale of house-property. Early 4th cent.; the date is mutilated, but the mention in it of Maximianus without Diocletian makes it probable that it belongs to the period A.D. 307-310. $6\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $2\frac{1}{4}$ in. Imperfect at both sides and at the bottom; in a rather small, clear, cursive hand. Presented by Col. T. L. Fraser

Pap. 653. Letter from Heracleius to his 'brothers', Paulus and Papirius, with reference to some memoranda (ὑπομνήματα) concerning the περίοδοι, or official circuits, of the fourteenth and fifteenth years [perhaps of Diocletian, = A.D. 297-299]. Late 3rd or early 4th cent. 8 in. \times 4 in. Imperfect; in a rather large cursive hand. Presented by Col. T. L. Fraser

[Papp. 654-666 were presented by E. R. Bevan, Esq., these, together with Papp. 667-681, having been acquired by D. G. Hogarth, Esq., in Egypt in the winter of 1895-1896. The texts of most of them, together with those of Papp. 688-731, have been edited by Messrs. B. P. Grenfell and A. S. Hunt in Greek Papyri II (Oxford, University Press, 1897); and the numbers there attached to them have been appended in brackets to the following descriptions.]

Pap. 654. Sale by Patous, son of Patous, and his sister Tacmoïs to Zmenous, son of Psemmonthes, of a sycamore tree, for 1 talent 4000 drachmas. Dated at Pathyris, in the office of the agoranomus Dioscorus, the 11th Phaophi in the thirty-fifth (corrected from thirty-fourth) year [of Ptolemy Euergetes II, = B.C. 136-135]. $5\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $4\frac{3}{4}$ in. Nearly perfect; in a small cursive hand. [G. P. II. 16]

Pap. 655. Loan from Thoteus, son of Colluthus, to Totoës and his wife Tacmeïs, daughter of Patous (all the parties being of Persian descent), of 5600 drachmas of copper, for three months without interest, but with interest at twenty-four per cent., as well as an increase of fifty per cent. in the principal, in case of default of repayment. Dated at Pathyris, in the office of the agoranomus Asclepiades, the 28th Thouth in the forty-fourth year [of Euergetes II, = B.C. 127-126]. $11\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times 5 in. Nearly perfect; in a medium-sized semi-cursive hand. [G. P. II. 18]

Pap. 656. Letter from Hermias [? strategus of the Latopolite nome] to Demetrius [? manager of the royal bank at Pathyris], instructing him to pay the crews of boats engaged in the transport of corn, and enclosing copies of instructions to this effect. Dated the 16th Pachon in the ninth year [presumably of Ptolemy Soter II, = B.C. 109-108], the enclosed letters being dated respectively the 24th Choiach and the 5th Pharmouthi. $12\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times 8 in. Nearly perfect; in a thin cursive hand. [G. P. II. 23]

[Papp. 657-663, 674, 675, 680 relate to the affairs of a single family, consisting of the four sons of Panobchunis. Papp. 659-663, 673-677, 679 are all written in the same hand, that of Hermias, the representative at Pathyris of the agoranomus Paniscus. For other documents of the same group, see Papp. 879-881, 883, 1203-1209.]

Pap. 657. Sale by Taous, daughter of Harpos, her sister Sennesis (also named Tatous), and her half-sister Siephmous, daughter of Pachnumis, to Petearsemtheus, Petesuchus, Phagonis, and Psennesis, sons of Panobchunis, of land in the plain of Pathyris. Dated at Crocodilopolis, in the office of Paniscus, agoranomus of the upper toparchy of the Pathyrite nome, the 28th Phaophi in the eleventh year of Cleopatra and the eighth of Ptolemy Alexander [= B.C. 107-106]. 6 in. \times 2 ft. 3 in. Perfect; in a medium-sized cursive hand, rather thick. [G. P. II. 23 a]

Pap. 658. Loan from Petearsemtheus, son of Panobchunis, to Psemmenches, son of Nechuthes, a Persian τῆς ἐπιγονῆς, of six κεράμια of wine, without interest. Dated at Crocodilopolis, in the office of Paniscus, the 16th Tubi in the twelfth year [of Cleopatra] and the ninth [of Ptolemy Alexander, = B.C. 106-105]. 12 in. \times $4\frac{1}{4}$ in. Perfect; in a rather thick cursive hand. [G. P. II. 24]

Pap. 659. Grant by Nechthanupis, son of Patseous, a Persian, to Petearsemtheus and his brothers of land in the plain of Pathyris. Dated at Pathyris, in the office of Hermias, the representative of the agoranomus Paniscus, the 29th Mesoré in the fourteenth year [of Cleopatra] and the eleventh [of Ptolemy Alexander, = B.C. 104-103]. $11\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $6\frac{1}{4}$ in. Perfect; in a medium-sized cursive hand. [G. P. II. 25]

Pap. 660. Acknowledgement by Horus, son of Paous, a Persian τῆς ἐπιγονῆς, to Petearsemtheus and his brothers, of the repayment by the latter of a sum of money paid by the former to certain money-lenders on behalf of Tareësis, grandmother of Horus. Dated at Pathyris, in the office of Hermias, the 24th Athur in the fifteenth year [of Cleopatra] and the twelfth [of Ptolemy Alexander, = B.C. 103-102]. 12 in. \times 6 in. Perfect; in the same hand as the preceding document. [G. P. II. 26]

Pap. 661. Loan from Petearsemtheus, son of Nechutes, a Persian, to Petearsemtheus and Petesuchus, sons of Panobchunis, of 5100 drachmas of copper, without interest. Dated at the same place and time as the preceding document. $12\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $5\frac{1}{4}$ in. Perfect; in the same hand as the preceding document. [G. P. II. 27]

- Pap. 662. Sale by Sennesis, daughter of Psenthotēs, a Persian, to Petearsemtheus, son of Panobchunis, of part of a vineyard and of some corn-land in the territory of Pathyris, which she had purchased from him two years before. Dated at Pathyris, in the office of Hermias, the 25th Athyr in the fifteenth year [of Cleopatra] and the twelfth [of Ptolemy Alexander, = B.C. 103-102]. 12½ in. × 6½ in. Nearly perfect; in the same hand as the preceding document. [G. P. II. 28]
- Pap. 663. Certificate of the repayment by Petearsemtheus and his brothers to Petearsemtheus, son of Almapheus, of a sum of two talents of copper lent to them in the previous year. Dated at Pathyris, in the office of Hermias, the 4th Choiach in the sixteenth year [of Cleopatra] and the thirteenth [of Ptolemy Alexander, = B.C. 102-101]. 10½ in. × 4¼ in. Perfect; in the same hand as the preceding document. [G. P. II. 30]
- Pap. 664. Subscription to a document (the body of the document being lost) by Timogenēs, ὁ πρὸς τῇ ἀναγραφῇ. Dated the 19th Mecheir in the sixteenth year [of Ptolemy Alexander, = B.C. 99-98]. 7 in. × 11 in., most being blank. There is a little demotic writing on the verso
- Pap. 665. Private letter from a father to his son. 1st cent. B.C. (?). 5½ in. × 6½ in. Imperfect, the lower part of the papyrus being lost, and the right-hand portion nearly obliterated; written in a rather large semi-cursive hand. The verso is occupied by demotic writing, and there is also a little on the margins of the recto
- Pap. 666. Official letter from Hermias [? the strategus] to the ἐπιστάτης of Pathyris and the other royal officials, notifying the appointment of Patseous, son of Pates, as οἰκονόμος of the village. Late 2nd or early 1st cent. B.C. 5¼ in. × 9½ in. Imperfect, only the beginning being preserved; in a good and rather large semi-cursive hand. [G. P. II. 37]
- Pap. 667. Sale by Tagos, daughter of Achilles, a Persian τῆς ἐπιγονῆς, and Ammonius her brother, to Psenthotēs, son of Celes, one of the ibis-buriers of Pathyris, of ⅔ of an aroura of island land in the lower toparchy of the Latopolite nome, for 2½ talents of copper. Dated at Latopolis, in the office of the agoranomus Apollonius, the 25th Thoth in the thirty-second year of Ptolemy Euergetes II [= B.C. 139-138]; with a long list of eponymous priesthoods at the beginning. The docket of the bank at Latopolis, certifying the payment of the tax on sales, is appended. 6 in. × 2 ft. 11 in. The first and last columns slightly mutilated. Written in a very neat and regular cursive hand of medium size. [G. P. II. 15]
- Pap. 668. Acknowledgement by Patous, son of Patous, that he has received an iron cone in pledge from his sister Tacmeïs [cf. Papp. 654, 655], to be returned on demand, with a penalty of 1 talent 2000 drachmae (the value of the cone) in case of failure. Written by Druton, son of Pamphilus [cf. Papp. 401, 607, 617], and dated the 9th Tubi in the thirty-fourth year [of Euergetes II, = B.C. 137-136]. 6 in. × 5½ in. Perfect; in a thin cursive hand. [G. P. II. 17]
- Pap. 669. Acknowledgement of the repayment by Pmoïs, Psenthotēs, and Psenenupis, sons of Psenthotēs, to Petesuchus, son of Pasas, a Persian τῆς ἐπιγονῆς, of a loan of 120 artabas of barley, with interest. Dated at Pathyris, in the office of the agoranomus Heliodorus, the 1st Pauni in the fifty-second year [of Euergetes II, = B.C. 119-118]. 5½ in. × 3 in. Imperfect; in a medium-sized semi-cursive hand, rather faded. [G. P. II. 19]
- Pap. 670. Sale by Ones, son of Catusis, a Persian τῆς ἐπιγονῆς, to Ision (?), son of Pates, of 1⅙ arouras of land in the plain of Crocodilopolis. Dated at Pathyris, in the office of the agoranomus Heliodorus, the 21st Thouth in the fourth year of Cleopatra and Ptolemy Soter II [= B.C. 114-113]. 6 in. × 14 in. Imperfect, wanting the third column, containing most of the body of the deed; in a medium-sized semi-cursive hand. [G. P. II. 20]
- Pap. 671. Loan by Psenimuthis, a priest of Monous, to Psenenuphis and Panobchunis, sons of Portis, Persians τῆς ἐπιγονῆς, of two talents 2300 drachmas of copper, on the same terms as in Pap. 655. Dated at Pathyris, in the office of the agoranomus Heliodorus, the 11th Choiach in the fifth year [of Ptolemy Soter II, = B.C. 113-112]. 9½ in. × 4¼ in. Imperfect, wanting the right-hand portion throughout; in a large semi-cursive hand. [G. P. II. 21]
- Pap. 672. Acknowledgement of the repayment by Psenthotēs, son of Nechutes, to Peadias, son of Phibis, of the share due from him of two loans of wheat incurred by his father Nechutes. Dated at Pathyris in the office of the agoranomus Sosus, the 29th (or 24th?) of Epeiph in the seventh (?) year [of Ptolemy Soter II, = B.C. 111-110]. 6 in. × 4½ in. Nearly perfect; in a medium-sized cursive hand. [G. P. II. 22]
- Pap. 673. Acknowledgement by Chaeremon, son of Paniscus, a soldier in the mercenary cavalry quartered at Crocodilopolis, of the repayment to him by Paous, son of Horus, of his share of a loan contracted by his maternal grandfather, Patous, with interest. Dated at Pathyris, in the office of Hermias, the representative of the agoranomus Paniscus, the 5th Pharmouthi in the thirteenth year [of Cleopatra] and the tenth [of Ptolemy Alexander, = B.C. 105-104]. 10¾ in. × 4 in. Perfect; in the same hand as Papp. 657-663. [G. P. II. 31]

- Pap. 674. Loan from Paëris, son of Pasemis, to Petearsemtheus and his brothers [see Papp. 657-663], of ten artabas of wheat and thirteen of barley for six months, without interest. Dated at Pathyris, in the office of Hermias, the 12th Athur in the sixteenth year [of Cleopatra] and the thirteenth [of Ptolemy Alexander, = B.C. 102-101]. $12\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $3\frac{3}{4}$ in. Perfect; in the same hand as the preceding document. [G. P. II. 29]
- Pap. 675. Sale by Petearsemtheus, son of Panobchunis, to Etpesuchus, son of Nechthanupis, and his brothers, of one aroua of corn-land in the territory of Pathyris, for two talents of copper. Dated at Pathyris, in the office of Hermias, the 17th Pharmouthi in the sixteenth year of Cleopatra and the thirteenth of Ptolemy Alexander [= B.C. 102-101]; with a docket by Paniscus, royal banker at Crocodilopolis, certifying the payment, on the 30th Mesoré following, of the tax of 10 per cent. on sales. 6 in. \times 13 in. Perfect; in the same hand as the preceding document, the docket in a thicker hand, much abbreviated. [G. P. II. 32]
- Pap. 676. Sales by Nechutes, a Persian $\tau\eta\varsigma \epsilon\pi\iota\gamma\omicron\nu\eta\varsigma$, to Harsiësis, son of Schotus, priest of Suchus and Aphrodite, of some corn-land. Dated at Pathyris, in the office of Hermias, the 16th Phaophi in the fifteenth year of Ptolemy Alexander and Berenice his sister [= B.C. 100-99]. 9 in. \times $5\frac{1}{2}$ in. Much mutilated; in the same hand as the preceding document 14
- Pap. 677. Grant by Psenenupis, son of Portis, a Persian, to Harsiësis, son of Schotus, a priest of Suchus and Aphrodite [cf. preceding pap.], of the remaining four years of a ten years' lease of corn-land held from the priests, for 2 talents 3300 drachmas of copper. Dated [at Pathyris, in the office of Hermias], the 19th Phaophi in the fifteenth year [of Ptolemy Alexander, = B.C. 100-99]. $5\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $10\frac{1}{2}$ in. Nearly perfect; in the same hand as the preceding document. [G. P. II. 33]
- Pap. 678. Sale by Petesuchus, son of Schotus, a priest of Suchus and Aphrodite, of corn-land, apparently in the neighbourhood of Crocodilopolis. The purchaser, Harsiësis (cf. Papp. 676, 677), is another of the sons of Schotus, and a priest of the same gods. Dated at Crocodilopolis, in the office of the agoranomus for the upper toparchy of the Pathyrite nome, in the month Choiach in the sixteenth year of Ptolemy Alexander and Berenice his sister [= B.C. 99-98]. $6\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $5\frac{1}{2}$ in. Dated at Pathyris, in the office of Hermias, the 18th Tubi in the sixteenth year of Ptolemy Alexander and Berenice his sister [= B.C. 99-98]; with docket by Pancrates, royal banker at Crocodilopolis, certifying the payment on the 30th Tubi of the tax of 10 per cent. on sales. Perfect; in the same hand as Pap. 677, the docket in a similar hand. [G. P. II. 35]
- Pap. 680. Letter from Petesuchus, son of Panobchunis, to his brothers Petearsemtheus and Paganis [i.e. Phagonis] and others, on private affairs. Dated the 8th Pachon in the nineteenth year [of Ptolemy Alexander, = B.C. 96-95]. $8\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $4\frac{3}{4}$ in. Perfect; in a straggling semi-cursive hand. [G. P. II. 36]
- Pap. 681. Miscellaneous small fragments. Late 2nd cent. B.C.
- [Papp. 682-687 were presented by Dr. B. P. Grenfell, being fragments belonging to the same collection as Papp. 605-650.]
- Pap. 682. Fragment of sale or lease of property in the Pathyrite nome. Dated at Pathyris [in the office of Hermias?] the representative of the agoranomus Paniscus, in the reign of Ptolemy Alexander and Berenice [between B.C. 101 and 98]. $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $2\frac{3}{4}$ in. Parts only of eight lines are preserved, in a rather small cursive hand 18
- Pap. 683. Fragments of a petition (?) from Paous, son of Nec[pheros?], apparently described as an orphan with a guardian ($\pi\rho\omicron\sigma\tau\acute{\alpha}\tau\eta\varsigma$), to [Dio]nysius, $\epsilon\pi\iota\sigma\tau\acute{\alpha}\tau\eta\varsigma$ of the Pathyrite nome. Late 2nd cent. B.C. $4\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $2\frac{3}{4}$ in., and $2\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. Portions of the beginning of the document and of the left-hand side are preserved. Written in a rather large cursive hand
- Pap. 684. Fragment of a deed of transfer of property, dated in Pha[ophi], Pha[menoth], or Pha[rmouthi], in the thirty-fourth year [of Ptolemy Euergetes II, = B.C. 137-136]. 5 in. \times $1\frac{3}{4}$ in., showing portions of upper and lower margins. Written in a small cursive hand
- Papp. 685-687. Miscellaneous fragments of Ptolemaic papyri
- Pap. 688. Fragments in tragic iambic verse, containing portions of twenty lines, probably from the Oeneus of Euripides (see Hibeh Papyri, p. 21). Early 3rd cent. B.C. Three fragments, the largest measuring 3 in. \times $1\frac{1}{2}$ in. Written in small, neat uncials, of a very early type. [G. P. II. 1 a, b]

- Pap. 689 (a). Homer's Iliad, book viii, portions of ll. 249-253, with two additional lines between ll. 252 and 253, and ends of four lines in a preceding column, which cannot be identified with any extant passage. 3rd cent. B.C. 2 in. × 4 in. Written in small, rather sloping uncials of very early type. [G. P. II. 2]
- (b) Homer's Iliad, book iv, portions of ll. 109-113, without variation from the vulgate. 3rd cent. B.C. 1½ in. × 2½ in. Written in a medium-sized uncial hand. [G. P. II. 3]
- Pap. 690. Fragments in tragic iambic verse, containing portions of fifty-three lines. 3rd cent. B.C. Six fragments, the largest measuring about 3¼ in. × 3 in. Written in medium-sized uncials, rather thick. [G. P. II. 6 a and c]
- Pap. 691 (a). Fragment in tragic iambic verse, containing portions of twenty lines. 3rd cent. B.C. 5 in. × 1¼ in. Written in rather large and thick uncials. [G. P. II. 6 b]
- (b) Fragment of a prose treatise. 3rd cent. B.C. 2¾ in. × 2 in. Written in small, slightly cursive uncials
- Pap. 692. Fragment of a philosophical treatise. 3rd cent. B.C. 2¾ in. × 4½ in. Written in very small uncials, and very faint. [G. P. II. 7 a]
- Pap. 693. Fragments in lyric verse, containing portions of seven and nine lines respectively. 3rd cent. B.C. (?) 2¾ in. × 3 in. and 3½ in. × 2¼ in. Written in large uncials, with a somewhat cursive tendency. [G. P. II. 8 a]
- Pap. 694. Fragments in comic iambic verse, containing portions of twelve and six lines respectively. 3rd cent. B.C. (?) 2¾ in. × 6¾ in. and 2 in. × 5 in. Written in large and rather cursive uncials. [G. P. II. 8 b]
- Pap. 695. (a) Fragment of a drama, probably a comedy, and possibly (cf. Crusius in Mélanges Weil, pp. 81-90) the Gerytades of Aristophanes; with marginal scholia. Probably 3rd cent. 4¼ in. × 3¼ in., including a large lower margin. Written in sloping uncials of fair size, with one or two accents; the scholia in a small cursive hand of the middle or end of the 3rd cent. [G. P. II. 12]
- (b) Xenophon, Memorabilia, bk. i, ch. 3, § 15, ch. 4, §§ 1-3; imperfect, only the ends of lines in one column and the beginnings of those in another being preserved. 3rd-4th cent. 7 in. × 3½ in. Written in sloping uncials of fair size, similar to those of the preceding fragment. In the margin at the top is some alien writing in a semi-cursive hand of the 4th cent. [G. P. II. 13]
- Pap. 696. Fragments of an account, consisting of proper names followed by sums of money, but with nothing to indicate their purport. 2nd cent. B.C. Four fragments, measuring about 9½ in. × 12½ in., 9 in. × 10 in., 9 in. × 7 in., and 9 in. × 6½ in. Written in a small cursive hand
- Pap. 697. Private letter from Pasion to his father Nicon, with a request for the purchase of writing implements. Dated the 13th Pharmouthi in the 'second and first year' [perhaps of Berenice IV and Archelaus, = B.C. 56, cf. Tebt. Pap. 202]. 9½ in. × 3¾ in. Slightly mutilated; written in a medium-sized cursive hand, much faded. [G. P. II. 38]
- Pap. 698. A series of receipts from Psammetichus to Pasion and Semtheus, brewers (ζυτοποιοί), for the tax due each month of the second year of an unnamed king [perhaps Ptolemy Auletes, = B.C. 80-79]. The tax amounts in each case to five talents of copper. 9 in. × 1 ft. 5½ in. Considerably mutilated; written in a rather small cursive hand. [G. P. II. 39]
- Pap. 699. Description of two persons, apparently inhabitants of Socnopaei Nesus. There is no indication of the purpose of the document, which seems to be complete. Dated the 18th Peritius [= 18th Choiach] in the thirty-ninth year of the rule of Caesar (τῆς Καίσαρος κρατήσεως θεοῦ υἱοῦ) [= 14 December, A.D. 9]. The document has been cancelled by lines drawn across it. 4½ in. × 5 in. Slightly defaced; in a medium-sized cursive hand. [G. P. II. 40]
- Pap. 700. Order from Pyrrhus, the official in charge of the distribution of land to κάτοικοι, to the συντακτικός (or official in charge of the distribution in a nome, or division of a nome), whose name is lost, with reference to apportionments to certain individuals. Dated the 17th Neos Sebastus [= Athur] in the sixth year of the emperor Domitianus Augustus Germanicus [= 13 Nov., A.D. 86]. 5½ in. × 7 in. Imperfect, wanting the right-hand side to a considerable extent; written in a large, irregular, cursive hand. [G. P. II. 42]
- Pap. 701. Copy of certificate of the payment by Tesenuphis, ἀρχέφοδος and ἡγούμενος γερδίων for the village of Socnopaei Nesus, to Hatres, son of Isas, a φύλαξ of Arsinoe, of his wages for the months of Pachon and Pauni [= May and June], to the amount of eighty drachmas of silver. Dated the 15th Sotereius [= Pauni] in the eleventh year of the emperor Domitianus Augustus Germanicus [= 9 June, A.D. 92]. 10 in. × 3½ in. Perfect; in a thin cursive hand. [G. P. II. 43]

TEXT. PLATE.

- Pap. 702. Fragment of an account, with amounts in drachmas. On the verso, in the same hand, is a portion of a diary, recording the movements of various persons, perhaps labourers. 2nd cent. $4\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $3\frac{1}{2}$ in. Written in a small square uncial hand.
- Pap. 703. Application by Didymus, son of Heron, and his wife Isis, residents in Arsinoe, for the ἐπίκρισις of their son Anubas, he having reached the age of fourteen; with references to the various κατ' οἰκίαν ἀπογραφαί in which their names have appeared. The application is signed, as approved, by Apollonius, formerly ἐξηγητής and gymnasiarch, with date the 24th Hadrianus [= Choiach] in the fifth year of Antoninus Caesar [= 20 Dec. A.D. 141]. $6\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $5\frac{1}{2}$ in. Imperfect, a few lines being lost at the top; written in a rather strongly marked cursive hand. [G.P. II. 49]
- Pap. 704. Certificate of the payment to Theon(?) and Demetrius, contractors for the tax on shearing and χειρωναξία, by Polion, son of Paouetis(?), a weaver of Socnopaei Nesus, of twenty drachmas in respect of the tax for the current year. Dated the 9th Choiach in the second year of Gaius Pescennius Niger Justus Augustus [= 5 Dec. A.D. 193]. 2 in. \times $3\frac{1}{4}$ in. Imperfect, a second entry having apparently followed; in a very small cursive hand. [G.P. II. 60]
- Pap. 705. Affidavit addressed to Crenoleius Quintilianus, centurion, by Demetrius, son of Satyrus, a resident in Arsinoe, by which the latter becomes surety for the appearance, when required, of Pasis, son of Apollonius. Dated in Pharmouthi of the nineteenth year of Lucius Septimius Severus Pertinax, Marcus Aurelius Antoninus, and Publius Septimius Geta, Britannici Maximi Pii Augusti [= April, A.D. 211]. 9 in. \times 5 in. Perfect; written in a very careful semi-cursive hand of good size, the date in a small cursive hand. N.B.—At this date Severus had been dead for two months. [G.P. II. 62]
- Pap. 706. Order, addressed to the ἀρχέφοδος of the village of Philadelphia, to send up two πράκτορες σιτικῶν against whom complaint had been made. 2nd–3rd cent. $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $8\frac{1}{2}$ in. Perfect; in a medium-sized semi-cursive hand. [G.P. II. 66]
- Pap. 707. Contract for the hire by Aurelius Asclas, son of Philadelphus, president of the village council of Bacchias, from Aurelius Theon, keeper of singing girls (προνοητὴς αὐλητρίδων?), of two dancing girls, at the rate of thirty-six drachmas per day, three artabas of wheat, and fifteen pair of ψώμα. Dated in Epeiph of the third year of the emperor Gaius Julius Verus Maximinus Pius Felix Augustus Germanicus Maximus Dacicus Maximus Sarmaticus Maximus and Gaius Julius Verus Maximus Germanicus Maximus Dacicus Maximus Sarmaticus Maximus Sanctissimus Caesar, filius Augusti [= July, A.D. 237]. $8\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $3\frac{1}{2}$ in. Nearly perfect; in a rough cursive hand. [G.P. II. 67]
- Pap. 708. Grant by Aurelius Petosiris, son of Petosiris, undertaker (νεκροτάφος) of the city of Hibis, to Aurelius Petechon, son of Tmarsis, of the village of Cusis, of one-fourth of his business as undertaker. Dated the 25th Choiach in the fifth year of the emperors Marci Julii Philippi Pii Felices Augusti [= 21 Dec. A.D. 247]. $7\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $6\frac{3}{4}$ in. Perfect; in a rather rough semi-cursive hand. [G.P. II. 68]
- Pap. 709. Receipt, given by Petechon, son of Polydeuces, a freedman of Cusis, to Aurelia Senosiris, daughter of Isidora, also of Cusis, for the repayment of a loan of 1000 drachmas, with interest, which had been borrowed from his late father. Dated the 10th Phaophi in the thirteenth year of Valerianus and Gallienus, Augusti [= 7 Oct. A.D. 265]. $8\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $4\frac{1}{4}$ in. Nearly perfect; written in a small, rather thick, cursive hand. [G.P. II. 69]
- Pap. 710. Re-affirmation of the contract contained in Pap. 708, dated in Mesoré of the third year of the emperor [Gaius] Valerius [Diocletianus] and the second year of the emperor Marcus Aurelius [Maximianus], Pii Felices Augusti [= August, A.D. 287]. $6\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $6\frac{1}{2}$ in. Nearly perfect; in a small cursive hand. [G.P. II. 70]
- Pap. 711. Notification by Petosiris, son of Petechon, and Petechon's half-brother, νεκροτάφοι of Hibis, that they have authorized Aurelius Marianus of Cusis to deposit publicly with the ἀρχιδικαστής at Alexandria a grant (χάρις, apparently equivalent to a will) made to them by their father of all his property, with provisions in favour of their sisters and other persons. Dated in the reign of the emperors [Marci Julii Phi]lippi [Pii Felices Augusti]; the year is lost, but the original grant which is the subject of the notification is dated the 12th Thoth in the second year [9th Sept. A.D. 244], and the notification itself must be between 244 and 249. $7\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times 15 in. Two columns, of which the first is considerably mutilated; in a small cursive hand. [G.P. II. 71]
- Pap. 712. Acknowledgement by Aurelius Souris, son of Petechon, of the village of Cusis in the Hibite nome, of a loan of two talents, received from Aurelius Psentphthous, ἐξωπυλίτης, of Diospolis. Dated the 13th February in a consulship (the figure is lost) of the emperors Diocletianus, pater Augustorum, and Galerius Valerius Maximianus Augustus [= A.D. 308, cf. Mommsen, Hermes, xxxii. 544]. 10 in. \times $5\frac{3}{4}$ in. Nearly perfect; in a rather rough cursive hand on dark papyrus. [G.P. II. 72]

- Pap. 713. Letter from Psenosiris, πρεσβύτερος, to Apollo, πρεσβύτερος (both being Christians), informing him of the arrival of a certain woman, whom he had committed to the charge of the undertakers until her son should arrive. Cf. A. Deissmann, The Epistle of Psenosiris (London, 1902). Late 3rd or early 4th cent. $8\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $3\frac{1}{4}$ in. Nearly perfect; in a rather rough semi-cursive hand. [G. P. II. 73]
- Pap. 714. Sale by Aurelius Heron, son of Castor, a cavalry soldier of the promoti secundi in the legion II Trajana, quartered at Tentyra, to Aurelius Apianus, son of Catus (?), ἐξωπυλίτης, of the village of Cusis in the Hibite nome, of a female camel for nine talents of silver. Dated the 30th Pharmouthi in the eighteenth year of Diocletianus, the seventeenth of Maximianus, Augusti, and the tenth of Constantius and Maximianus, Caesares [= 27 April, A.D. 302]. $8\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $6\frac{1}{4}$ in. Somewhat mutilated; in a rather small cursive hand. [G. P. II. 74]
- Pap. 715. Receipt from Tapaous, daughter of Pious, νεκροτάφη of Motheitopolis, to Casianus, son of Casianus, νεκροτάφος of the τοπαρχία of Cusis, for twenty talents of silver as remuneration for her services as nurse. Dated the 6th January in the tenth consulship of Diocletianus, 'pater Augustorum,' and Galerius Valerius Maximianus Augustus [= A.D. 308, cf. Mommsen, Hermes, xxxii. 544]. $10\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 5 in. Somewhat mutilated; in a rather rough cursive hand. [G. P. II. 75]
- Pap. 716. Contract of divorce by mutual consent between Soul and Senpsais, daughter of Psais, νεκροτάφοι from the τοπαρχία of Cusis, with acknowledgement of mutual restoration of gifts and dowry. Dated in the fourteenth year of Constantius and Maximianus, Augusti, and the second [of Maximinus and Severus, Caesares, = A.D. 305-306]. 6 in. \times $4\frac{3}{4}$ in. Imperfect at the end; in a rather rough cursive hand. [G. P. II. 76]
- Pap. 717. Letter from Melas to Sarapion and Silvanus, brothers, complaining that he has paid them for removing his brother's body, and that they have only removed his effects; he consequently demands repayment of the amounts paid to them, of which a schedule is appended. Early 4th cent. 9 in. \times $4\frac{1}{4}$ in. Nearly perfect; in a small cursive hand. [G. P. II. 77]
- Pap. 718. Petition addressed to Satrius Arrianus, prefect of Egypt, by Syrus, son of Petechon, ἐξωπυλίτης, of the toparchy of Cusis, complaining of the abduction of his wife and children, on a false assertion that they were slaves, by Tates, daughter of Ammonius, and her husband. Dated in Phamenoth of the fifteenth year of Maximianus Augustus, the third of Severus Augustus and Maximinus Caesar, and the second of Constantius Caesar [= March, A.D. 307]. 10 in. \times 5 in. Considerably mutilated; in a rather small cursive hand. [G. P. II. 78]
- Pap. 719. Receipt from Aurelius Victor, son of Severus, and Aurelius Colluthus, son of Mesoueris, of Antinoopolis, members of the crew of the prefect's galley commanded by Apion, ἀρχικυβερνήτης, to Aurelius Senuthes, son of Victor, of Hermopolis, resident in Panopolis, rower in the said galley, for the wages of a substitute during the past indiction-year. Dated the 21st Mesoré in the year after the consulship of Flavius Vincentius and Flavius Fravitta [= 14 August, A.D. 402]. $10\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $6\frac{1}{4}$ in. Perfect; in a large cursive hand, on much stained papyrus. [G. P. II. 80]
- Pap. 720. Similar receipt, between the same parties, for the following year (the first indiction-year, then just past). Dated the 1st Pauni in the year after the consulship of the emperors Arcadius and Honorius [26 May, A.D. 403]. $10\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $6\frac{3}{4}$ in. Mutilated; in a large cursive hand, on much stained papyrus. [G. P. II. 81]
- Pap. 721. Similar receipt, from Aurelius Apion, son of Paësius, of Antinoopolis, pilot of the prefect's galley, to Aurelius Senuthes, for the following year (the second indiction-year, then current). Dated the 29th Phaophi in the consulship of the emperor Theodosius and Rumoridus [= 26 Oct., A.D. 403]. $11\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $7\frac{1}{2}$ in. Nearly perfect; in a large cursive hand, considerably faded, upon stained papyrus. [G. P. II. 81 (a)]
- Pap. 722. Letter from Victor, son of Colluthus, serving in the prefect's galley, to Victor, Maximus, another Victor, and Theonas, complaining that they have compelled Senuthes [see three preceding papyri] to serve a λειτουργία to which he is not liable, in place of serving in the galley, to which he is liable, like his father and grandfather; and threatening unpleasant consequences if they do not release him. Circ. A.D. 400, probably earlier than the preceding documents. $10\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $7\frac{1}{2}$ in. Nearly perfect; in a large cursive hand upon stained papyrus. [G. P. II. 82]
- Pap. 723. Fragment of a receipt. Early 5th cent. 10 in. \times $3\frac{1}{4}$ in. Much damaged; written in a large cursive hand upon stained papyrus
- Pap. 724. Fragment of a contract or receipt, given by Aurelia Mannous, daughter of Pousi, of Arsinoe; dated at Arsinoe the 27th Pauni in the year after the consulship of Flavius Belisarius [= 21 June, A.D. 535]. $2\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. Only the beginning is preserved, the date in a rather rough cursive, the document in a neat, upright cursive hand. [G. P. II. 85]

TEXT. PLATE.

- Pap. 725. Acknowledgement from Aurelius Phoebammon son of John, a labourer in the hamlet of Tounkerkis in the Hermopolite nome, to Cyrus, son of Victor, an elder and hempdealer of Hermopolis, of a loan of $6\frac{1}{4}$ artabas of wheat. Dated the 19th Choiach in the fourteenth year of the emperor Flavius Mauricius Tiberius [= 15 Dec., A.D. 595]. 5 in. \times $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. Imperfect, the end being lost; in a small, sloping cursive hand. [G. P. II. 86]
- Pap. 726. Acknowledgement from Aurelius John, son of Paul, of the village of Philoxenus in the Arsinoite nome, to John, the keeper of a storehouse, of a loan, the details of which are lost through the mutilation of the papyrus. Dated at Arsinoe, the 24th Choiach in the twenty-first year of the emperor Flavius Mauricius Tiberius [= 20 Dec., A.D. 602]. 5 in. \times $3\frac{1}{2}$ in. Imperfect, the end being lost; in a sloping cursive hand. [G. P. II. 88]
- Pap. 727. Account of various payments of wheat, made in the second indiction by Phoebammon, son of Abraham, apparently from land belonging to the village of Macron (in the Fayum). 7th cent. (?) 5 in. \times 9 in. Perfect; in a small, much abbreviated hand. [G. P. II. 104]
- Pap. 728. Receipt from Aurelius Cosmas (apparently an elder), son of John, of Arsinoe, to Victor, deputy of the dux Joseph, for a payment, the details of which are lost. Dated at Arsinoe, the 2nd Mesoré in the 399th year of the era of Diocletian [= 26 July, A.D. 682]. $13\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. Mutilated; in a small, sloping, cursive hand. [G. P. II. 100]
- Pap. 729. Festal letter from a patriarch of Alexandria to his clergy, fixing the date of Easter for the current year as April 25. The only years, within the limits required by the palaeography of the MS., in which Easter fell on this day are A.D. 577 and 672; and as there was no orthodox patriarch of Alexandria at the latter date, the former is most probable. $8\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 13 in. Imperfect, only the conclusion (twenty-two lines) being preserved; in a large, handsome, uncial hand. [G. P. II. 112.] Facsimile in New Palaeographical Society, part 3, pl. 48
- Pap. 730. Fragment of a letter, in Latin; the subject is uncertain. Dated at Fulvini, on the nones of October in the consulship of the emperor Verus (for the third time) and Umidius Quadratus [= 7 Oct., A.D. 167]. $8\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $9\frac{1}{4}$ in. Only the conclusion is preserved, written with many errors in a rather large, thin, cursive hand. [G. P. II. 108]
- Pap. 731. Fragment of a receipt, in Latin, for certain expenses connected with some equites promoti; dated in the fifth consulship of Diocletianus and the fourth of Maximianus [= A.D. 293]. $4\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $5\frac{1}{4}$ in. Imperfect, wanting the beginning and the left-hand portion; written in a small cursive hand, rather faded. [G. P. II. 110]
- Pap. 732. Homer's Iliad, books xiii and xiv. The following lines are preserved, either in whole or in part: xiii. 1-10, 38-50, 73-87, 149-437, 456-653, 658-674, 740-747; xiv. 120-293, 322-394, 397-522. Late 1st cent. (?). The MS. originally consisted of thirty-six columns, measuring about five inches in width (including margin), of which thirty are represented in its present state. The original length of the roll must have been about fifteen feet, and its height $8\frac{3}{4}$ inches. It is carefully written in a square, firm, uncial hand of medium size. Edited by A. S. Hunt, Journal of Philology, xxvi. 25-59 (1898). Specimen facsimile in Kenyon, Palaeography of Greek Papyri, pl. xix
- Pap. 733. The Odes of Bacchylides; the unique MS. Twenty odes are represented, of which seven (containing 583 lines) are perfect or admit of approximately certain restoration; of eight substantial portions are preserved; and five are mere fragments. Fourteen odes are epinikian, three of them relating to victories also celebrated by Pindar; six are Hymns, Paeans, or Dithyrambs. The MS. contains thirty-nine columns, complete or imperfect, the number of lines in each varying from thirty-two to thirty-six, besides detached fragments; and it is written in a good-sized uncial hand, clear and handsome. Probably 1st cent. B.C., with corrections and titles added in a small cursive hand of the end of the 1st or the 2nd cent. In three portions, 9 ft., 2 ft. 3 in., and 3 ft. 6 in., with a greatest height of $9\frac{3}{4}$ in. Edited by F. G. Kenyon (1897), with facsimile of the whole MS. in a separate atlas; subsequent editions by Blass, Jurenka, Festa, Jebb, &c.
- Pap. 734. Recto. Small fragments of a land-register. 2nd cent. Written in a very small cursive hand, with abbreviations and symbols
- Verso.* Literary fragments, apparently of a philosophical treatise. 2nd cent. Written in a small, semi-cursive hand
- Pap. 735. Small fragments of miscellaneous documents. 3rd cent. Six fragments, the largest $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $1\frac{3}{4}$ in.

- Pap. 736. Homer's Iliad, book viii; fragments of four columns, containing portions of lines 1-22 (line 6 being omitted), 49-52, 63-65, 95, 98-109, 111-120, 128-135, 139-144, 150-163, 173-192 (line 183 being omitted). The four columns originally contained respectively ll. 1-48, 49-94, 95-144, 145-192. Written on the verso of the papyrus, the recto containing scanty remains of accounts and other writing. 2nd or 3rd cent. The original height of the papyrus was 12 or 12½ inches. Written in a rather rough semi-cursive hand
- Pap. 737. Table of addition, endorsed with names of Hermias, Anubas, Sarapion, and (in another hand) Maximianus. 3rd cent. (?) 5¼ in. × 6¼ in. Imperfect; in a rather rough uncial hand
- Pap. 738. Fragments in a large, thin, uncial hand, of uncertain character. 1st or 2nd cent. Sixteen fragments, all small
- [Papp. 739-834 were presented by the Egypt Exploration Fund in 1900. Papp. 739-814 were discovered at Oxyrhynchus by Messrs. B. P. Grenfell and A. S. Hunt, and are published or described by them in The Oxyrhynchus Papyri, parts I and II (Egypt Exploration Fund, Graeco-Roman Branch, 1898, 1899). Papp. 815-834 were discovered in the Fayûm by the same gentlemen, with Mr. D. G. Hogarth, and are published or described in Fayûm Towns and their Papyri (ib., 1900). The numbers attached to the several papyri in these publications are appended to the following descriptions.]
- Pap. 739. Sappho, portion of an ode, evidently addressed to her brother Charaxus. One column, containing five Sapphic stanzas, is preserved, but the beginning of every line (about three syllables) is lost, and the last two stanzas are much mutilated. 3rd cent.; in a sloping uncial hand of medium size. A digamma is written in l. 6, and there are some accents, marks of quantity and elision, and punctuation. 8 in. × 3¾ in., with wide margin at bottom. [O. P. 7, with facsimile and restoration by Professor Blass]
- Pap. 740. Fragment of a New Comedy; two columns of twenty-five lines each, mutilated, the beginnings of lines being lost from the first column, and the ends from the second. 1st cent.; in a thin, square uncial hand of fair size. Changes of speakers are marked by a colon; marks of elision and punctuation are employed. 7 in. × 7 in. [O. P. 11]
- Pap. 741. Herodotus, book i, cc. 105 (ἐν Κύπρῳ)-106 (ὑπὸ τε Ἰβρίας), imperfect; part of a single column (2¾ in. wide). 2nd cent. (?); in a firm, square, and rather thick uncial hand. The paragraphus is employed to indicate the ends of sentences, with punctuation in the text. 7¼ in. × 3½ in., with a very wide margin at the bottom. [O. P. 18]
- Pap. 742. Homer, Iliad, book ii, portions of ll. 730-736, 745-754, 760-810, 815-828, with an additional line after l. 798. 2nd cent.; in a fine, large, uncial hand, similar to that of the Hawara papyrus of the same book and the Ambrosian Iliad. Twelve fragments. [O. P. 20, with partial facsimile]
- On the verso are accounts, in a cursive hand of the late 2nd or early 3rd cent.
- Pap. 743. Sophocles, Oedipus Tyrannus, ll. 375-385, 429-441, imperfect; the upper portion of a leaf of a papyrus codex, the text on the verso preceding that on the recto. Each page, when complete, must have contained fifty-four lines, and have measured about 12 in. by 5 in. (about the same dimensions as Pap. 126 of the Iliad and Pap. 46 of magical formulae). 4th cent. (?); written with reddish-brown ink in a small uncial hand, with accents, breathings, and marks of elision, quantity, and punctuation. Changes of speaker are indicated by paragraphi. Some corrections have been made by a second hand. The first page bears the number ρι[.], in a later hand. If this is a leaf-numeration, it implies a volume large enough to hold the seven extant plays of Sophocles, with the Oed. Tyr. last, which is improbable; if it is a page-numeration, the four non-Theban plays may have preceded the three Theban plays. 3½ in. × 4 in. [O. P. 22]
- Pap. 744. Demosthenes, Προίμια Δημογορικά, §§ 26-29, imperfect; the upper halves of seven columns of a roll. 1st cent. (?); in a rather small and somewhat sloping hand, apparently descended from that found in Pap. 733 of Bacchylides, with modifications in several of the characteristic letters. On the verso are accounts, of the 2nd cent. 4½ in. × 1 ft. 8½ in., with an additional piece, containing accounts only, 2½ in. × 8 in. [O. P. 26, with partial facsimile]
- Pap. 745. Fragment of a Latin historical work, on vellum, containing portions of ten lines on each side. The names Antiochus (or Antiochia), Philippus, and Phrygia occur in it. 4th cent. (?); in a medium-sized rustic half-uncial. Accents are placed over the long syllables by a second hand. 3½ in. × 2 in. [O. P. 30, with facsimile of recto]

TEXT. PLATE.

Pap. 746. Record of a law-suit between Pesouris and Saraeus for the possession of a child, copied from the official journal (ὑπομνηματισμοί) of the strategus, Tiberius Claudius Pasion, whose judgement was for the defendant, on the ground that the child resembled her. Dated the 3rd Pharmouthi in the ninth year of the emperor Tiberius Claudius Caesar Augustus Germanicus [= 29 March, A.D. 49]. Nearly perfect; written in two columns in a fine semi-cursive hand of good size. 1 ft. x 1 ft. 4 in. [O. P. 37].

Pap. 747. Proclamation by Dioscurides, λογιστής of the Oxyrhynchite nome, that the gymnastic display of the youths will take place on the following day. Dated the 23rd Tubi in the sixth consulship of the emperor Licinius Augustus and the second of Licinius Caesar, τοῖς ἀποδειχθησομένοις ὑπ' αὐτοῖς [presumably the Caesars Crispus and Constantinus] τὸ γ' [= 18 Jan., A.D. 323]. Nearly perfect; in a large, thin cursive hand, the date smaller and more cursive than the body of the document. At the foot are three lines of tachygraphic characters. 11 in. x 8 in. [O. P. 42].

Pap. 748. Recto. Accounts of supplies of bran, &c., issued as fodder for the troops; with copies of the receipts of the officers to whom they were issued. Dated the 22nd Mecheir in the eleventh and tenth year of the emperors Diocletianus and Maximianus, Augusti, and the second year of Constantius and Maximianus, Illustrissimi Caesares Augusti [= 16 Feb., A.D. 295]. Imperfect at the beginning, and somewhat mutilated; in a rather large, sloping, cursive hand. [O. P. 43].

Verso. List of police stationed in the various streets and buildings of Oxyrhynchus. Early 4th cent. Nearly perfect; in a medium-sized semi-cursive hand. 9¾ in. x 2 ft. 11½ in. [O. P. 43 verso].

Pap. 749. Letter from Paniscus, strategus of the Oxyrhynchite nome, to Asclepiades, βασιλικὸς γραμματεὺς of the same, with regard to the difficulty of finding persons to undertake the farming of taxes, and reporting the instructions of the Prefect on the subject. Late 1st cent. Imperfect, the end being lost; in a medium-sized cursive hand. 6¾ in. x 5½ in. [O. P. 44].

Pap. 750. Notification from Achilleus, agent of Pyrrhus, the superintendent of καταλοχισμοί in Egypt, to the ἀγορανόμοι, of the transfer of part of a κλήρος from Didymus, also named Amoetas, son of Chaereis, to Teos, son of Petarbebis, priest of Thoëris, Isis, Serapis, and the gods who share their temple. Late 1st cent. Imperfect, the end being lost; in a medium-sized cursive hand. 5¾ in. x 2½ in. [O. P. 47].

Pap. 751. Report, addressed to Valerius Ammonianus, also named Gerontius, λογιστής of the Oxyrhynchite nome, by Aurelius Irenaeus, son of Apelles, president of the guild of carpenters in the city of Oxyrhynchus, on the condition of a persea tree, on which the guild had been instructed to report, and which he states to be quite dead. Dated the 30th Mecheir in the consulship of Caecinius Sabinus and Vettius [Rufinus, = 24 Feb., A.D. 316]. Nearly perfect; in a rather large and thin cursive hand. 9¾ in. x 10 in. [O. P. 53].

Pap. 752. Letter from [S]ervaeus Africanus, [epistrategus], to the strategi of the Heptanomis, condemning the number of officials employed in connexion with the Treasury estates. Dated the 16th Thoth in the fifth year [of Diocletianus] and the fourth [of Maximianus, = 13 Sept., A.D. 288]. Perfect; in a medium-sized cursive hand. 8¾ in. x 5 in. [O. P. 58].

Pap. 753. Notification from the Council of Oxyrhynchus, through their president Aurelius Apollo, also named Dionysius, to the strategus of the nome, Aurelius Apollonius, through his deputy Aurelius Asclepiades, that they have appointed a substitute to attend the Prefect's court, in place of Theodorus, who has claimed exemption on the ground that he is a victor in the games. Dated the 16th Mecheir in the eighth year of Diocletianus and the seventh of Maximianus, Augusti [= 10 Feb., A.D. 292]. Nearly perfect; in a medium-sized cursive hand. 9 in. x 6 in. [O. P. 59].

Pap. 754. (a) Letter from Aurelius Ptolemaeus, son of Horion, of Oxyrhynchus, to Aurelius Aëtius, ex-magistrate of the same city, informing him that he had petitioned the Prefect to appoint him (Aëtius) judge in an action for illegal encroachment which the writer is bringing against Pataësis and Panechotes, of the village of Lilé; and enclosing copies of (1) the order of the Prefect, Flavius Antonius Theodorus, to examine the case, and (2) the writer's original petition to the Prefect. Dated the 2nd Pharmouthi in the consulship of Flavius Ursus and Flavius Polemius [= 28 March, A.D. 338]. At the bottom is a note by the defendants that they have seen this document on the 5th Pharmouthi. Nearly perfect; in a medium-sized cursive hand. 10 in. x 1 ft. 2¼ in. [O. P. 67].

(b) Duplicate of the same, without the note by the defendants. The right-hand portion much mutilated. 9¾ in. x 1 ft. 4 in.

Pap. 755. Recto. Two petitions (with small fragments of a third) addressed to Clodius Culcianus, Prefect of Egypt: the first by Aurelius Demetrius, son of Neilus, ex-high-priest of Arsinoë, asking for help to recover a sum of money lent by him to Aurelius Sotas; and the second from Aurelia Gl——, a widow, complaining that she has been defrauded by her stewards, Secundus and Tyrannus. The first petition is dated the 4th Phamenoth in the nineteenth year [of Diocletianus] and the eighteenth [of Maximianus] and the eleventh [of Constantius and Galerius, = 28 Feb., A.D. 303]. The first petition is perfect, the second somewhat mutilated; both are written in cursive hands, the first squarer and firmer than the second. $9\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 1 ft. 10 in. [O.P. 71]

Verso. List of buildings, with a statement of the number of columns ($\sigma\tau\tilde{\upsilon}\lambdaοι$) standing ($\epsilon\sigma\tau\tilde{\omega}\tau\epsilon\varsigma$) or fallen ($\chi\alpha\mu\alpha\iota$ $\kappa\epsilon\acute{\iota}\mu\epsilon\nuοι$), giving their dimensions and mentioning their capitals ($\kappa\epsilon\phi\alpha\lambda\acute{\iota}\delta\epsilon\varsigma$) and bases ($\sigma\pi\acute{\iota}\rho\alpha\iota$), and whether they are of local or imported stone. Some of the columns are described as fluted ($\xi\nu\sigma\tau\rho\omega\tauο\acute{\iota}$). Three columns are preserved, with a small portion of another; but neither the beginning nor the end of the document remains. 4th cent. Written in a cursive hand, much abbreviated 221

Pap. 756. Recto. Notification addressed to Julius, $\kappa\omega\mu\omicron\gamma\rho\alpha\mu\mu\alpha\tau\epsilon\acute{\upsilon}\varsigma$ of the village of Sesptha, by Cephalas, son of Leontas, of the death of his son Panechotes, in the month Athur of the current year. The writer makes oath of the truth of his statement by the emperor Marcus Aurelius Commodus Antoninus Augustus. A.D. 181-192. The concluding line or lines are lost; written in a small cursive hand. $5\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $2\frac{7}{8}$ in. [O.P. 79]

Verso. Exhortation to noble living, apparently put into the mouth of Alexander on the eve of a battle. 2nd-3rd cent. Complete but somewhat rubbed; written in a rough cursive hand, with several corrections. [O.P. ib.]

Pap. 757. Oath of office taken by Aurelius Apion, son of Dionysius, of Oxyrhynchus, to Aurelius Dios, also called Pertinax, strategus of the Oxyrhynchite nome, on entering on the office of secretary to the $\pi\rho\acute{\alpha}\kappa\tau\omicron\rho\epsilon\varsigma$ $\acute{\alpha}\rho\gamma\upsilon\rho\iota\kappa\tilde{\omega}\nu$ for the second year of Marcus Julius Philippus Caesar [A.D. 244-245]. Imperfect, the end being lost; in a small cursive hand. $3\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $2\frac{7}{8}$ in. [O.P. 81]

On the verso is a short money-account for part of the month Epeiph, in a rough semi-uncial hand. 3rd cent.

Pap. 758. Oath of office taken by a strategus that he will do his duty without fear or favour, and appointing a surety for his good behaviour. 3rd cent. Imperfect, both beginning and end being lost; in a small cursive hand. $2\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $2\frac{5}{8}$ in. [O.P. 82]

Pap. 759. Acknowledgement addressed to Valerius Ammonianus, also named Gerontius, $\lambda\omicron\gamma\iota\sigma\tau\acute{\eta}\varsigma$ of the Oxyrhynchite nome, by the guild of iron-workers of Oxyrhynchus, through their monthly president, Aurelius Severus, of the receipt through the state bank of six talents in payment for 100 pounds of iron supplied for the public service. Dated the 5th Athur in the consulship of Caecinius Sabinus and Vettius Rufinus [= 1 Nov., A.D. 316]. Nearly perfect; in a rough cursive hand, with rougher subscription. 10 in. \times 5 in. [O.P. 84]

Pap. 760. Declarations addressed to Flavius Eusebius, $\lambda\omicron\gamma\iota\sigma\tau\acute{\eta}\varsigma$ of the Oxyrhynchite nome, from the guilds of (1) copper-solderers, (2) bakers, (3) beer-sellers, (4) oil-sellers, (5) bee-keepers, stating upon oath the quantity of their goods in stock at the end of the month. Each declaration is subscribed by the president or representative of the guild. Slight remains of another declaration, preceding these five, are preserved. Dated the 30th Athur in the consulship of Ursus and Polemius [26 Nov., A.D. 338]. Imperfect, the terminations of the fourth and fifth declarations being lost; the declarations in a small cursive hand, the subscriptions in various hands. Two fragments, $9\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $8\frac{1}{4}$ in., and 4 in. \times $4\frac{3}{8}$ in. [O.P. 85]

Pap. 761. Certificate of payment by Clarus, son of Didymus, of eight artabas and four choenices of corn into the public storehouse on account of the harvest of the past nineteenth year of the Aurelii, Antoninus and Commodus, Caesares [= A.D. 178-179], in a particular locality. [A.D. 179-180.] Nearly perfect; in a small cursive hand, with many abbreviations. $4\frac{1}{8}$ in. \times $3\frac{1}{2}$ in. [O.P. 90]

Pap. 762. Order from Eutrygius to Dioscorus, his assistant, to pay two artabas of corn to Gorgonius, player on the hydraulic organ. Dated the 21st Tubi in the thirty-eighth and seventh years [sc. of two eras, beginning with 1 Thoth, A.D. 324 and 355 respectively, found in use at Oxyrhynchus, = 16 Jan., A.D. 362]. Perfect; in a very rough cursive hand. $2\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $6\frac{1}{4}$ in. [O.P. 93]

Pap. 763. Agreement whereby Marcus Antonius Ptolemaeus, son of Sergias Ptolemaeus, appoints Dionysius the elder, son of Theon, of Oxyrhynchus, as his agent for the sale of two slaves. Dated at Oxyrhynchus, the 28th Phaophi in the third year of the emperor Domitianus Augustus [= 25 Oct., A.D. 83]. Perfect; written in a small, very neat, semi-uncial hand. 1 ft. $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $4\frac{1}{8}$ in., the greater part being blank. [O.P. 94]

Pap. 764. Acknowledgement by Chaeremon, son of Theon, of Oxyrhynchus, that he has received from Archias, son of Amoetas, a freedman, the sum of 168 drachmas, completing the repayment of a loan of 700 drachmas lent four years before. Written in A.D. 141-142, reference being made to the year just past as the fourth of Antoninus Caesar. Imperfect, the end being lost; in a rather thick and small semi-cursive hand. $4\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $3\frac{7}{8}$ in. [O.P. 98]

- Pap. 765. Deed of sale of half a house in Oxyrhynchus, purchased by Tryphon, son of Dionysius, from his mother's cousin Pnepheros, son of Papontos, for thirty-two talents of copper; with certificate of the payment of the tax on sales (τὸ ἐγκύκλιον). Dated the 6th Audnaeus or Sebastus [= Thoth] in the second year of the emperor Nero Claudius Caesar Augustus Germanicus [= 3 Sept., A.D. 55]. Perfect except for a few letters at the right-hand end; written in a large and strongly-marked cursive hand. 1 ft. 5½ in. × 9¼ in. [O.P. 99]
- Pap. 766. Lease by Aurelius Dioscorus of Oxyrhynchus from Aurelia Antiochia, also named Dionysia, daughter of Aurelius Antiochus, also named Dionysius, ex-archon of Alexandria, of nine arouras of land for the current year, at a rent of 1 talent 3500 drachmas per aroura. Dated the 16th Phaophi in the sixth consulship of the emperors Constantius and Maximianus, and the fifteenth year of Constantius and Maximianus, Augusti, and the third of Severus and Maximinus, Caesares [= 13 Oct., A.D. 306; in reality nearly three months after the death of Constantius in Gaul]. Perfect; in a small and well-written cursive hand. 10 in. × 5½ in. [O.P. 102]
- Pap. 767. Lease by Aurelius Leonidas, son of Theon, and Aurelius Dioscorus, son of Ammonius, both of Oxyrhynchus, from Aurelius Themistocles, also named Dioscurides, gymnasiarch and presiding councillor of Oxyrhynchus, of an aroura of land for the current year, for the cultivation of flax; the produce to be equally divided between landlord and tenants. Dated the 16th Phaophi in the consulship of Caecinius Sabinus and Vettius Rufinus [= 13 Oct., A.D. 316]. Nearly perfect; in a fair-sized cursive hand. 10¼ in. × 6⅜ in. [O.P. 103]
- Pap. 768. Letter from Gaianus to his 'brother' Agenor, a prefect (ἐπαρχος), apologizing for not having been able as yet to catch the wild beasts for which he had asked, for want of more soldiers for the purpose. 4th cent. Somewhat mutilated; in a large, thin, cursive hand of Roman type. 10½ in. × 7 in. [O.P. 122]
- Pap. 769. Acknowledgement by Asclas, a boatman, of the receipt from Pamuthius, steward of Leon, of 1485¼ artabas of wheat, μέτρον καγκέλλον, on account of the ἐμβολή for the thirteenth indiction-year, and 11 solidi 3½ carats of the Alexandrian standard for carriage to Alexandria. Dated the 19th Athur in the 211th and 180th year [= 15 Nov., A.D. 534; cf. Pap. 762]. Perfect; badly written in a large, rough, cursive hand. 11¾ in. × 9½ in. [O.P. 142]
- Pap. 770. Three receipts, written on one sheet of papyrus, for sums of money paid by Pamuthius, steward of Leon, on account of money taxes paid in the months of Tubi, Phamenoth, and Mesore; signed by the banker Philoxenus. Dated respectively the 15th Tubi, the 16th Phamenoth, and the 10th Mesoré, in the 211th and 180th year [= 10 Jan., 12 March, and 3 Aug., A.D. 535]. Perfect; in a rather small cursive hand. 12¼ in. × 9¾ in. [O.P. 143]
- Pap. 771. Anonymous letter to Apollonius, son of Zoilus, reporting the progress made in the settlement of some affair, and asking for instructions. 1st-2nd cent. Perfect; in a very neat semi-cursive hand. 3 in. × 6¾ in. [O.P. 164]
- Pap. 772. Letter, without address or name of writer, asking for the performance of some matter previously discussed. 1st-2nd cent. Perfect; eight short lines of a medium-sized semi-uncial hand, written across the papyrus-fibres. 3¾ in. × 3¼ in. [O.P. 179]
- Pap. 773. Letter from Theonilla to her steward Horion, ordering him to give some wine to Silvanus, on condition of his paying the ἑκθεσις due from him. Dated the 29th Tubi [= 24 Jan.] in the second year of an unnamed emperor. 2nd-3rd cent. Perfect; written across the papyrus-fibres in a medium-sized cursive hand. 4¾ in. × 5 in. [O.P. 189]
- Pap. 774. Letter from Aurelius Johannes, of a locality in the Oxyrhynchite nome, to the heirs of Apion, through Menas their steward, acknowledging the receipt of two large windlasses (ἐργάται), for which he had applied. Dated the 14th Phaophi in the eighth year and fourth consulship of the emperor Flavius Tiberius Constantinus [his regnal years dating from his creation as Augustus by Justin, Dec., A.D. 574, and his consulships from his accession as sole emperor, Oct., A.D. 578], and in the first indiction-year [= 11 Sept., A.D. 582, at which date Tiberius had been dead nearly a month]. Imperfect, the lower part being lost; in a rather small cursive hand. 7¾ in. × 8 in. [O.P. 193]
- Pap. 775. Letter (or business document) from Aurelius Epimachus to Flavius Apion; the introductory formulas are the same as in the preceding no., but the purport of the document is lost by mutilation. Dated at Oxyrhynchus the 14th Thoth in the second year and consulship of the emperor Flavius Justinus, and in the first indiction-year [= 11 Sept., A.D. 567]. Imperfect, only the upper part being preserved; in a medium-sized cursive hand. 6 in. × 6¼ in. [O.P. 195]

	TEXT.	PLATE.
Pap. 776. Acknowledgement, addressed to Flavius Apion, through his steward Menas, by Aurelius Sourous, son of Pebes, of the receipt of a κυλλή κυκλάς , for which he had applied. Dated the 16th Thoth in the 229th and 198th year [= 13 Sept., A.D. 552]. Nearly perfect; in a fair-sized upright hand, with sloping subscription. 9 in. × 8 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. [O.P. 197]	278	90
Pap. 777. Document addressed to the heirs of Apion, through their steward Menas, by Aurelius Macaris (sic), son of Elias; the opening formulas are the same as in the preceding papyri, but the purport of the document is lost. Dated the 14th Phaophi in the eighth year and fourth consulship of the emperor Flavius Tiberius Constantinus, and the first indiction [= 11 Oct., A.D. 582, nearly two months after the death of Tiberius]. Imperfect, only the beginning being preserved; in a rather small, upright, cursive hand. 4 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. × 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. [O.P. 198]	281	94
Pap. 778. Undertaking, addressed to Flavius Apion by Georgius, a deacon, son of Apa Horus, that Aurelius Onnophris will remain upon his holding. Dated the 4th Mesore in the third year and consulship of the emperor Flavius Justinus, at the beginning of the second indiction [= 28 July, A.D. 568]. Imperfect, the end being lost; in a rather thick cursive hand. 6 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. × 8 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. [O.P. 199]	279
Pap. 779. Document addressed to Flavius Gaius (?) Apion (presumably the son of the Flavius Apion mentioned in Papp. 775, 776, 778), dated the 30th Thoth in the twelfth year and eleventh consulship of the emperor Flavius Mauricius Novus Tiberius, and in the twelfth indiction-year [= 27 Sept., A.D. 593]. Imperfect, only the beginning being preserved; in a rather small cursive hand. 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. × 8 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. [O.P. 201]
Pap. 780. Receipt given by Philoxenus, a banker, for money taxes to the amount of 315 νομισμάτια, less 1905 $\frac{1}{4}$ κεράτια, and less 157 $\frac{1}{2}$ κεράτια for ῥοπή, paid by Pamuthius, προνοητής Πυλέας, for the current thirteenth indiction-year. Dated the 24th Mecheir in the 211th and 180th year [= 18 Feb., A.D. 535]. Perfect; in a thin cursive hand. 1 ft. × 7 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. [O.P. 205]	245	85
Pap. 781. Note of the payment by Phoebammon, a wineseller (?), to Alexander of 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ κνίδια of wine for nine days' work from the 22nd to the 30th Phaophi in the 267th and 236th year, and the ninth indiction-year [= 19-27 Oct., A.D. 590]. Nearly perfect; written across the fibres in a medium-sized cursive hand. 2 in. × 1 ft. 1 in. [O.P. 207]
Pap. 782. St. John's Gospel, portions of i. 23-31, 33-41; xx. 11-17, 19-25; the inner part of two leaves (forming one sheet) of a papyrus codex. The first and fourth pages of the sheet are written on the verso , the second and third on the recto . If the codex originally contained the whole of St. John's Gospel, this must have been the third sheet in a quire composed of twenty-five sheets. 3rd cent. Written in a fairly large and regular semi-uncial hand: the words Ἰησοῦς, Θεός, Πνεῦμα (and apparently Χριστός and Κύριος) are abbreviated. Pauses in the sense are indicated by blank spaces. 8 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. × 3 in.; the original size of each leaf must have been about 10 in. × 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. Traces remain of the holes through which the strings passed to bind the sheets together. [O.P. 208]
Pap. 783. Euripides, Phoenissae , parts of ll. 1017-1043, 1064-1071; one mutilated column, with a small portion of the next. The choric passages (in which the divisions of the lines are the same as in the later MSS.) are indented to the extent of about one inch, or five letters. 3rd cent. (?). Written in a large, thick uncial hand, with broad margins. A column contains twenty-nine lines, and measures (including margins) about 9 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. × 6 $\frac{3}{4}$ in., which gives a total length of about 34 ft. for a roll containing the whole play. Punctuation and a few accents are inserted by a second hand, together with the name of the new speaker at l. 1067. 9 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. × 8 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. [O.P. 224]
Pap. 784. Thucydides, parts of bk. ii, cc. 90. 5-91. 2; portions of two columns, containing two to three letters from the ends of lines in the first, and rather more than half the width of the second. The lower part of both columns (about ten lines) is lost. Late 1st cent. Written in a good semi-uncial hand of fair size, with narrow margin between the columns. 5 $\frac{1}{8}$ in. × 2 $\frac{1}{8}$ in. [O.P. 225]
Pap. 785. Xenophon, Oeconomicus , viii. 17-ix. 2, imperfect; portions of five narrow columns, measuring about two inches in width without margins, and leaning slightly to the right. 1st cent. Written in a neat and graceful uncial of fair size. Pauses in the sense are marked by the paragraphe and punctuation, but not systematically. 10 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. × 1 ft. 1 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. [O.P. 227]
Pap. 786. Plato, Phaedo , parts of p. 109 c, d; ends of lines from the greater part of a column. 1st-2nd cent. Written in a small, regular uncial hand, with punctuation and occasional instances of breathings (twice), accents (once), and marks of quantity (once). 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. × 2 in. [O.P. 229]

- Pap. 787. Demosthenes, Contra Timocratem, parts of §§ 53, 54, 56-58; the lower portions of two consecutive columns, measuring about three inches in width without margins. 3rd cent. Written in a rather small, sloping semi-uncial hand. The paragraphus is used. 5 in. \times 5½ in. [O. P. 232.] On the verso are much defaced remains of cursive writing of the 3rd cent.
- Pap. 788. (a) Beginning of document dated the 22nd Peritius (= Choiach) in a year between the thirteenth and the twentieth of Ptolemy Novus Dionysius Philopator Philadelphus [i.e. Ptolemy Auletes, = B. C. 69-62; perhaps B. C. 64, if, as is possible, this document is a duplicate of b]. Written in a good-sized semi-cursive hand. 1¾ in. \times 2½ in. [O. P. 236 (a)]
- (b) Beginning of similar document (perhaps a duplicate), dated at Oxyrhynchus in Peritius (= Choiach) in the eighteenth year of the same king [= B. C. 64]. Written in a rather thin semi-cursive hand. 1¾ in. \times 3 in. [O. P. 236 (b)]
- (c) Beginning of similar document, dated in the reign of [Ptolemy Philopator] Philadelphus [i.e. Auletes]. Since Cleopatra Tryphaena was associated with him in dates from B. C. 79 to 69, and the king was in banishment from 58 to 55, the document must belong to B. C. 69-58 or 55-51. Written in a medium-sized cursive hand. 2¼ in. \times 1¾ in. [O. P. 236 (c)]
- Pap. 789. Affidavit by a κωμογραμματεὺς, whose name is lost, that he has had no complicity with a soldier who has been committing violence in certain villages. Dated the 17th Mecheir in the twenty-third year of Tiberius Caesar Augustus [= 12 Feb., A. D. 37]. Nearly perfect; written in a good-sized cursive hand. 5 in. \times 4½ in. [O. P. 240]
- Pap. 790. Notification, addressed to the agoranomus by Chaeremon, son of Chaeremon, agent for Claudius Antoninus, instructing him to register a mortgage of a portion of a house near the Serapeum in Oxyrhynchus by Dionysius, also called Amois, son of Phantias, to Didymus, son of Sarapion, who lends Dionysius 1300 drachmas of silver, with interest at 12 per cent. The relation of value between silver and copper is stated as 4 to 1800. The bankers' receipt for the ἐγκύκλιον, or tax on sales and mortgages, is appended, the amount being 2 per cent. of the loan, paid by the mortgagee. Dated in Phamenoth of the eleventh year of the emperor Vespasianus Augustus [= March, A. D. 79]. Perfect; in a very small cursive hand. 9¼ in. \times 4¾ in. [O. P. 243]
On the verso is some almost effaced scribbling, similar to some in the margins of the recto
- Pap. 791. Notification addressed to Chaereas, strategus of the Oxyrhynchite nome, by Cerinthus, slave of Antonia, daughter of Drusus, that he is about to transfer the sheep and goats registered in his name for the current year to the Cynopolite nome, and requesting that an official notification to this effect may be sent to the strategus of that nome. Cerinthus' signature, in Latin, is appended, and at the bottom is the beginning of a draft of a letter from Chaereas to Hermias, the strategus of the Cynopolite nome. Dated the 8th Mecheir in the ninth year of Tiberius Caesar Augustus [= 3 Feb., A. D. 23]. Mutilated; in a rather thin cursive hand. 11¼ in. \times 5¼ in. [O. P. 244]
- Pap. 792. Appointment by Demetria, daughter of Chaeremon, a citizen of Oxyrhynchus, of her grandson Chaeremon as her representative in a case pending against one Epimachus. Dated at Oxyrhynchus in the month Neos Sebastos of the second year of the emperor Nero Claudius Caesar Augustus Germanicus [= November, A. D. 55]. Nearly perfect; in a good medium-sized cursive hand. 9¾ in. \times 6¼ in. [O. P. 261]
- Pap. 793. Agreement whereby Lucia, also named Thaisas, daughter of Lucius, guarantees Sarapion, also named Clarus, son of Sarapion, against loss through his having become surety for her for the repayment of a debt of 3500 drachmas, with interest at 12 per cent., which she had contracted to Heracleides, son of Apollonius. Dated at Oxyrhynchus, in Mecheir of the thirteenth year of the emperor Domitianus Augustus Germanicus [= Feb., A. D. 94]. Nearly perfect; in a clear, medium-sized semi-uncial hand. 1 ft. 3¼ in. \times 6 in. [O. P. 270]
- Pap. 794. Contract of apprenticeship (διδασκαλική), whereby Tryphon, son of Dionysius, apprentices his son Thoönis to Ptolemaeus, son of Pausirion, a weaver, for a year, to learn the art of weaving. Dated the 21st Sebastos in the thirteenth year of Nero Claudius Caesar Augustus Germanicus [= 18 Sept., A. D. 66]. Perfect; in a regular semi-cursive hand of medium size. 1 ft. 2⅞ in. \times 3⅞ in. [O. P. 275]
- Pap. 795. Lease of a mill (or mill-stone, the object being certainly moveable) by Isidorus, son of Isidorus, to Heracleius, son of Soterichus, a Persian τῆς ἐπιγονῆς, for seven months at 12½ drachmas of silver a month; at the expiration of the time the lessee is to return it or its value, 100 drachmas of silver. Dated the 1st Mecheir in the third year of Tiberius Caesar Augustus [= 26 Jan., A. D. 17]. Mutilated; in a rather large, thin, compressed cursive hand. 1 ft. 1½ in. \times 4⅝ in. [O. P. 278]
- Pap. 796. Petition addressed to Tiberius Claudius Pasion, strategus of the Oxyrhynchite nome, by Sarapion, son of Theon, a weaver, asking for redress against Apolophanes, ex-collector of the tax upon weaving, who seized a linen tunic and four drachmas from him in the first year of the emperor

- Tiberius Claudius Caesar Augustus Germanicus [= Jan.-Aug., A.D. 41], and extorted two drachmas a month from November to April in the ninth year [A.D. 49]. Circ. A.D. 49. Perfect; in a large, strongly marked cursive hand. $9\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $3\frac{3}{4}$ in. [O. P. 285.] Some rough, meaningless uncials have been written subsequently on both sides of the papyrus
- Pap. 797. Petition from a woman whose name is lost to a high official, asking him to instruct the ξενικῶν πράκτωρ (? collector of debts due to non-residents) of the Oxyrhynchite nome to require Zenarion and (her husband?) Heron to repay, in accordance with a contract made in the ninth year of Vespasian [A.D. 76-77], a sum of 2000 drachmas which Philumene had then lent to the petitioner and her mother Thaësis. Dated the 22nd Germaniceius in the first year of the emperor Domitianus Augustus [= 17 May, A.D. 82]. Imperfect, the beginning being lost; in a small, thin, neat semi-cursive hand. $6\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $5\frac{1}{4}$ in. [O. P. 286]
- Pap. 798. Copy of receipts for taxes paid by Tryphon, son of Dionysius (cf. Pap. 794), on various dates from the eighth to the eleventh years of Tiberius Caesar Augustus [= A.D. 22-25]. The taxes are the tax on weaving (γερδιακόν) apparently at 36 drachmas per annum, the poll-tax (ἐπι-κεφάλαιον) at 12 dr., the pig-tax (ὑϊκή) at 2 dr. $1\frac{1}{2}$ obols, and the embankment tax (χωματικόν) at 6 dr. 4 obols. Circ. A.D. 25. Nearly perfect; in a rather irregular cursive hand. 1 ft. $2\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times 7 in. [O. P. 288]
- Pap. 799. Copy of receipts for taxes paid by Thoönis, son of Thoönis, on various dates from the twelfth year of Nero to the second year of Domitian [= A.D. 66-83]. The taxes are the poll-tax (λαογραφία) at 12 drachmas per annum, the pig-tax (ὑϊκή) usually at 1 dr. $4\frac{1}{2}$ obols, the embankment tax (χωματικόν) at 6 dr. 4 obols, and one or two taxes of uncertain nature. Circ. A.D. 83. Two columns, nearly complete; another column may have followed. Written in a thin, irregular cursive hand. $8\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 1 ft. 9 in. [O. P. 289]

Perfect; in a rather large cursive hand. 9 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times 1 ft. 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ in.	160	48
(g) Receipt for repayment by Dionysius and four other children of Panechotes, priest of Hermes, Aphrodite, and Ammon, and the gods who share their temple, in Antinoöpolis, to Philantinous, son of Horus, priest of Hareseies, of 200 drachmas lent to their father. Perfect; in a rather large cursive hand. 8 in. \times 1 ft. 2 $\frac{1}{4}$ in.	162
(h) Acknowledgement by Harmirumius, also named Melas, of Tentyris, of the receipt from Pbekis, son of Pebos of Panopolis, of a lease for sixty years of a boat of 400 artabas' draught, with all its fittings, at a rent for the whole period of 1 talent 2000 drachmas. Perfect; in a rather large and irregular cursive hand. 9 $\frac{1}{8}$ in. \times 1 ft. 3 in.	163	49
(i) Receipt for payment by Hierakion, also named Athenodorus, on behalf of his sons Eudaemon and Hierakion, of Antinoöpolis, to Turbon, son of Apollonius, a victor in the sacred games, of 1000 drachmas for transference to his sons of the privilege of support at the public expense, won by Turbon at the athletic festivals in the thirty-first and thirty-second years of Commodus [= A.D. 190-192]. Somewhat rubbed; in a medium-sized cursive hand. 8 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times 8 $\frac{1}{4}$ in.	165
(k) Release by Philantinous, son of Demetria, to Hermias, son of Isidorus, of a third part of a house and appurtenances in Antinoöpolis, in settlement of a debt of 2000 drachmas. Perfect, except at the right-hand margin; in a regular, medium-sized, cursive hand. 8 $\frac{5}{8}$ in. \times 1 ft. 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ in.	166
Pap. 1165. Accounts, relating to payments for hay, &c. Portions of two columns remain. 2nd cent. Imperfect; in a medium-sized cursive hand	191
On the verso are small remains of an account. 2nd cent. 8 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times 8 $\frac{3}{4}$ in.
Pap. 1166. Acceptance by Horion, son of Heliodorus (?), and Tothes, son of Tothes, Persians $\tau\eta\varsigma \epsilon\pi\iota\gamma\omicron\nu\eta\varsigma$ of Hermopolis, from Dios, gymnasiarch elect, of a contract to supply materials for heating the baths attached to the gymnasium during the fourth year of the emperor Claudius. The contract price is 2000 drachmas, of which 500 are paid in advance, together with 200 for the purchase of donkeys. Dated at Hermopolis, the 30th Epeiph in the second year of Tiberius Claudius Caesar Augustus Germanicus Imperator [= 24 July, A.D. 42]. Nearly perfect; in a thin, straggling, cursive hand	104	19
On the verso are some short accounts for the fourth year. 11 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times 1 ft. 6 $\frac{3}{4}$ in.
Pap. 1167. Portion of a register of poll-tax (?); one mutilated column and remains of another. Reference is apparently made to the census of the seventh year [sc. of Trajan], the present list being five years later [= A.D. 108-109]. In a rather square cursive hand
On the verso is a little much-defaced writing. 10 $\frac{1}{8}$ in. \times 10 $\frac{3}{4}$ in.
Pap. 1168. Mortgage by Stotoëtis, daughter of Dioscorus, to her brother Chichoïs of a house and court in Hermopolis for four years, as security for a loan of 220 drachmas, with right of occupation in lieu of interest. Dated at Hermopolis, the 27th Tubi in the fourth year of Tiberius Claudius Caesar Augustus Germanicus Imperator [= 22nd Jan., A.D. 44]. The lease is followed by a copy of the certificate of the payment of the 220 drachmas, made through the private bank of Syrus on the 20th Tubi, with an acknowledgement by Stotoëtis of the receipt of that sum. In the margin above this and in a following column is a surrender of the lease by Chichoïs, with an acknowledgement of the repayment of the 220 drachmas, dated the 25th Pharmouthi [= 20 April], and on the verso is a rough draught of the certificate of repayment, dated the 10th Pauni [= 4 June]. Nearly perfect; the official hands are large and well marked, the private hands thicker and more illiterate. 9 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times 3 ft. 6 $\frac{3}{4}$ in.	135	20-23

	TEXT.	PLATE.
Pap. 1169. Register of payments made at the custom-house of a village on goods conveyed in and out. The animals carrying the goods are mentioned, together with the size of their loads. Payments are also made monthly for the keep of one Ἀραβοροξόρης. 2nd cent. Six columns, the first two considerably mutilated; in a small cursive hand. $8\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times 2 ft. $1\frac{1}{2}$ in.		43
Pap. 1170. Recto . Part of a large revenue-register, left by the outgoing strategus [of the divisions of Themistes and Polemon in the Arsinoite nome] for his successor, Julius Isidorus. Eighteen columns, numbered from 76 to 93, containing a statement of the revenues from the various villages, with the names of the taxpayers and amounts paid by them. The list is incomplete, the catalogue of villages, in alphabetical order, only extending from A to K. First half of the 3rd cent. Imperfect; in a rather good, medium-sized, cursive hand		92
Verso . Accounts of Heroninus, steward of property in the neighbourhood of Theadelphia, addressed to Aurelius Heracleides, senator of Arsinoe, and containing a record of work done and payments made, in the sixth year [of Valerianus and Gallienus, = A. D. 258-259]. Imperfect at beginning and end, and considerably damaged; in a small, rough, cursive hand. 1 ft. 2 in. \times 5 ft. 5 in.		193
Pap. 1171. Accounts of agricultural expenditure in Mesoré of the twenty-second year and Thoth of the twenty-third year of Caesar [i. e. Augustus, = Aug.-Sept., B. C. 8]. Four columns are preserved, with local mutilations, and there are slight remains of columns before and after these. Written in a firm, rather square, semi-cursive hand		177 14, 15
On the verso are three documents, one being a decree of the prefect Lucius Aemilius Rectus, dated in the second year of Tiberius Claudius Caesar Augustus Germanicus Imperator [= A. D. 41-42]. The others are drafts of a contract. Mutilated; roughly written, one in a large semi-cursive hand, the other in a small cursive hand. $10\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times 1 ft. $10\frac{1}{2}$ in.		105
Pap. 1172. Business document of uncertain character. Temp. Marcus Aurelius [A. D. 161-177], having a reference to the deified Antoninus. The deme-name Ζήνειος occurs in it (Ἑρμαίου τοῦ καὶ Πρέϊσκου Ζηνείου, cf. introd. to Pap. 1164, p. 154 below). Imperfect and much rubbed; written in a rough, straggling, cursive hand, on the verso of four different documents, which have been fastened together to make a roll. The documents on the recto , which are themselves very defective, are in three instances dated in the eighteenth year of Antoninus [= A. D. 154-155, which was a leap-year, the sixth intercalary day being mentioned], and the fourth contains a reference to the twelfth year [= A. D. 148-149]. $7\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 2 ft. $5\frac{1}{4}$ in.
Pap. 1173. Letter from Hephaestas to Anubion, on business matters. Dated the 13th Choiach in the tenth (?) year of Hadrianus Caesar [9 Dec., A. D. 125]. Imperfect; in a small cursive hand. $9\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $3\frac{3}{4}$ in.		207
Pap. 1174. Account for grass-fodder (λόγος χλωροφαγίας) for the sixth year of Hadrianus Caesar [= A. D. 121-122]. Imperfect and mutilated; in a small cursive hand. $5\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times 5 in.
Pap. 1175. Receipt for eighteen κεράτια of gold. 6th or 7th cent. Imperfect, wanting the right-hand side; in an upright cursive hand of medium size. 4 in. \times $9\frac{1}{2}$ in.
Pap. 1176. Portion of a Christian prayer. 7th cent. Imperfect at the top and right-hand side; in a large, sloping uncial hand. $8\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $6\frac{7}{8}$ in., much being blank
Pap. 1177. Accounts, submitted to Demetrius, the auditor (ἐξεταστής), by Crispus, also named Sarapion, and Mysthes, also named Ptolemaeus, and Mysthes, son of Didymus, and Sotas, son of Zoilus, commissioners for the supply of water to the wells and reservoirs of the metropolis [? Hermopolis], of their receipts and expenditure from Pauni in the past sixteenth year of Traianus Caesar to Phaophi in the current seventeenth year [= June-October, A. D. 113]. The accounts actually cover the preceding month, Pachon, also. Sixteen columns, incomplete at the end, and somewhat mutilated; in a small cursive hand. $8\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times 8 ft. $7\frac{3}{4}$ in.		180 31-35
On the verso are rough accounts, irregularly written in a straggling hand. 2nd cent.
Pap. 1178. Diploma of membership, granted to Herminus, also named Morus, of Hermopolis, a boxer, by the athletic club known as ἡ ἱερὰ ξυστική περιπολιστική Ἀδριανῆς Ἀντωνιανῆς Σεπτιμιανῆς σύνοδος τῶν περὶ τὸν Ἡρακλέα. The diploma begins by reciting grants of privileges by the emperors Claudius and Vespasian, and is signed by the principal officers of the club. Dated at Naples in Italy, at the forty-ninth performance of the Augustan games, in the consulate of Lucius Septimius Severus Pertinax Augustus and Clodius Septimius Albinus Caesar, both for the second time, a. d. x Kal. Oct. [22 Sept., A. D. 194]. Nearly perfect; written in one column across the papyrus roll, in a large semi-cursive hand, with signatures in various hands. 10 in. \times 4 ft. $2\frac{1}{4}$ in.		214 40-43
Pap. 1179. Fragments apparently of a register of leases or other contracts. Late 2nd cent. Written in a small, regular, cursive hand, apparently in broad columns		144
Presented by John Marshall, Esq.

[Papp. 1180-1199 were presented by the Egypt Exploration Fund in 1903. They form part of the papyri discovered at Oxyrhynchus (Behnesa) and in the Fayum by Messrs. B. P. Grenfell and A. S. Hunt, and their texts have been edited or described by them in The Oxyrhynchus Papyri, parts II-III (London, 1899 and 1903), and Fayum Towns and their Papyri (London, 1900). References to these publications are attached to the following descriptions.]

Pap. 1180. Three fragments from a comedy, perhaps by Aristophanes. The first and largest ($8\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $4\frac{1}{2}$ in.) contains the ends of a column, followed by another column of twenty imperfect lines. The second fragment is from the bottom of a column, and contains portions of eight lines, the last two of which are lyrical. Fragment 3 contains portions of six lines; its position is uncertain. Changes of speaker are indicated by paragraphi and double dots (:). One accent occurs, in frag. b. Points to mark punctuation are inserted in places, perhaps by a later hand. There are corrections by two distinct hands. 1st-2nd cent. Written in a large, round, upright uncial of ornamental appearance. [O. P. 212]

Pap. 1181. Fragment of an epic poem; forty-three imperfect lines from a speech on the subject of Telephus, King of Mysia. They occupy both sides of the papyrus, which is apparently a leaf from a book. There are no accents or punctuation marks, but the diaeresis is used. 3rd cent. $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $5\frac{1}{4}$ in. In a small, sloping uncial. $4\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $3\frac{1}{8}$ in. [O. P. 214]

Pap. 1182. Treatise on religion, of Epicurean tendency, possibly by Epicurus himself. Portions of three columns. There are corrections both by the original hand and another, paragraphi by the first hand and punctuation marks added later. 1st cent. B.C. (?). In an irregular, rather square uncial of Ptolemaic type. On the verso is a portion of an account relating to the number of workmen employed on different days of a month whose name is lost. This is in a hand of the 1st cent. 9 in. \times 7 in. [O. P. 215]

Pap. 1183. Five fragments from a prose work, perhaps a collection of Παράδοξα. The first fragment, which is in two portions, contains parts of three columns, of which the upper part of the second is almost complete. The other fragments are small. No stops or accents are used. 3rd cent. In a small, fine, sloping uncial. [O. P. 218]

Pap. 1184. Recto. Treatise on metres. Portions of fourteen columns remain, besides detached fragments. The height of the most complete columns of writing in their present state is $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. Paragraphi by the original scribe, punctuation marks by another hand, who has added some corrections. There is one circumflex accent and one rough breathing, both perhaps by the scribe. 1st-2nd cent. Written in a round, clear, upright uncial. [O. P. 220, with specimen facsimile]

Verso. Scholia on Iliad xxi. Seventeen columns can be distinguished, besides several small fragments left unplaced. Of these columns four are practically complete, and four others are approximately so. In the margin between cols. X and XI, at right angles to the writing, are the words Ἀμμώνιος Ἀμμωνίου γραμματικὸς ἐσημειώσάμην, which may be the signature of the author. Paragraphi are used fairly often, accents, breathings, and punctuation marks sparingly. Some corrections by the original scribe, others by a corrector. 2nd cent. Height of columns $5\frac{1}{8}$ in. In a small, close, rather neat uncial. [O. P. 221, with specimen facsimile]

Pap. 1185. Recto. Portion of a money account, mentioning the tenth and fourteenth years of an unnamed emperor, probably Marcus Aurelius or Caracalla. 2nd or 3rd cent.

Verso. List of victors at the Olympian games; portions of two columns, containing the 75th-78th and 81st-83rd Olympiads, and so covering the period of Pindar and Bacchylides. Early 3rd cent. In a small semi-cursive hand, with some abbreviations of common words. [O. P. 222.] 7 in. \times $3\frac{3}{4}$ in.

Pap. 1186. Certificate addressed by Thamunion or Thamunis of Oxyrhynchus to two persons described as both τοπογραμματεῖς and κωμογραμματεῖς to the effect that her son Thoonis has gone abroad, for which reason she asks that he may be entered as removed; with signature on her behalf by Sarapion her guardian. Dated the 12th Pauni in the fourth year of the emperor Tiberius Claudius Caesar Augustus Germanicus [= June 7, A.D. 44]. $12\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $3\frac{5}{8}$ in. Mutilated; in a cursive, very irregularly formed hand. [O. P. 251]

Pap. 1187. Deed of divorce between Thaësis, daughter of Thonis, and Petosarapis, son of Thompecusis, of Oxyrhynchus, after a marriage of a little over a year. Thaësis acknowledges the repayment of her dowry, and both parties surrender all claim on each other. Dated in the month of Germanicus (Thoth) in the sixteenth year of the emperor Domitianus Augustus Germanicus [= Aug. 29-Sept. 27, A.D. 96]. 6 in. \times $3\frac{5}{8}$ in. Imperfect; in a clear semi-cursive hand. [O. P. 266.] N.B. Before the transference of this papyrus to the British Museum a portion of it, containing the first 9-12 letters of lines 1-11 had disappeared. The measurements given above refer to the papyrus in its present state

- Pap. 1188. Lease of $36\frac{3}{4}$ arouras of land near Pamis by Dionysius, son of Alexander, to Artemidorus, son of Artemidorus, both described as Macedonians and ἱπάρχαι ἐπ' ἀνδρῶν, for one year, the produce of the land to be divided equally between landlord and tenant; with autograph signature of Artemidorus. Dated the 9th Thoth in the twelfth year of Caesar [= 6 Sept., B.C. 19]. $11\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $6\frac{1}{4}$ in. Mutilated in the middle; in a cursive hand of Ptolemaic type. [O. P. 277].
- Pap. 1189. A short Christian prayer. 3rd-4th cent. $5\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $6\frac{1}{8}$ in. Perfect; in rather compressed and elongated uncials. On the verso is the title προσευχή. [O. P. 407].
- Pap. 1190. Homer, Iliad vi; parts of ll. 128, 134-137, 148, 173-194, 199, and 445-end are preserved, some of them almost complete. Critical signs (diple, antisigma, and asterisk) occur, and several accents, breathings, and marks of elision. Punctuation marks are frequent. All these seem to be due to the original scribe. There are also interlined variants and marginal notes, by at least two, and possibly three, different hands of about the same period. Late 2nd cent. (?) Written very accurately in a clear, elegant uncial of medium size. [O. P. 445, with specimen facsimile].
- Pap. 1191. Homer, Iliad xi; two fragments, containing parts of ll. 505-516, 521-547, 555-567, and 571-602. Of lines 505-516 and 521-547 only the last few letters are left; of the others nearly the first half. There are stops and a few accents, and also one critical mark against l. 602. 2nd cent. $2\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times 4 in. and $6\frac{7}{8}$ in. \times 4 in. In a fairly round, regular uncial of medium size. On the verso are traces of 2nd or 3rd century cursive writing. [O. P. 550].
- Pap. 1192. Portion of a lyrical poem, apparently describing experiences in the under-world. Cf. A. Swoboda, 'Über neue Bruchstücke eines gnostischen Psalmes von Christi Höllenfahrt,' in Wiener Studien, xxvii (1905). Parts of three columns remain, but of the first only a few letters, and the second is much damaged by rubbing and mutilation. There are no accents or punctuation marks other than paragraphi. 2nd cent. $8\frac{3}{4}$ in. \times $11\frac{5}{8}$ in. Written in rough uncials, apparently in two hands, or with later insertions by the first hand. [F. T. P. 2].
- Pap. 1193. Receipt for the payment of a tax, the nature of which is not clear as the name is abbreviated, by the priests of the crocodile god Sokanobkoneus [al. Socnopaeus or Suchus] at Bacchias. The amount of the payment is uncertain. Dated in the ninth year [of Ptolemy Soter II = B.C. 109 or more probably of Neos Dionysus = B.C. 73]. $4\frac{7}{8}$ in. \times $5\frac{7}{8}$ in. Perfect; in a very cursive hand with many abbreviations. On the verso is a short account. [F. T. P. 18].
- Pap. 1194. Order addressed by Straton, γραμματεὺς γεωργῶν [of Bacchias], to Acusilaus, σιτολόγος, to pay two artabas of wheat to Petesuchus, son of Paësis, who seems to be a cultivator of domain land; with counter-signatures of Petalus and Marres, the latter being the κωμογραμματεὺς. Dated the 15th Thoth in the twenty-first year [perhaps of Ptolemy Neos Dionysus = B.C. 61]. $3\frac{5}{8}$ in. \times $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. Nearly perfect; in a very rapid cursive hand. [F. T. P. 18 (a)].
- Pap. 1195. Return by Chaeremon and the other tax-collectors of Pharbetha to the στρατηγός of the division of Heracleides in the Arsinoite nome of arrears of taxes in Phamenoth of the seventh year of an unnamed emperor. On the verso, in a different hand, is what appears to be a continuation of the list, the taxes in this case being collected by the ἐπιτηρηταί of the collectors; and there is mention of Pauni in the seventh year and also of the eighth year. Late 2nd cent. $5\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times $7\frac{3}{4}$ in. Mutilated; in an exceedingly cursive hand, with many contractions. [F. T. P. 42 (a)].
- Pap. 1196. Account, in Latin, of the deposits of a number of soldiers in the military bank, with statement of deductions for various expenses and of the amount standing to the credit of each soldier. The amounts are given in denarii and obols. The account is addressed, in Greek, on the verso, to Apollo[nius? strategus] of the division of Heracleides in the Arsinoite nome. A considerable part of three columns remains, and also a number of small fragments from a previous column. Late 2nd cent. 12 in. \times $5\frac{1}{4}$ in. [F. T. P. 105].
- Pap. 1197. Letter from L. Sabinus Gemellus to Epagathus, dated the 23rd Pharmouthi in the seventh year of Traianus Caesar [= 18 April, A.D. 104]. $8\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $3\frac{1}{2}$ in. Much mutilated; in a medium-sized cursive hand. [F. T. P. 254].
- Pap. 1198. Letter from Gemellus to Epagathus, dated the 13th Thoth during the reign of Domitian [A.D. 81-96]. $10\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times $4\frac{3}{4}$ in. Perfect but much obliterated; in a very shaky, illegible cursive hand. [F. T. P. 259].
- Pap. 1199. Short account, with a list of names followed by amounts in artabas of the standard δρόμω. Late 1st cent. B.C. $4\frac{1}{8}$ in. \times 4 in. Complete; in a cramped, medium-sized, cursive hand. [F. T. P. 285].
- Pap. 1200. Official record of the payment, through the bank of Psenchonsis at Diospolis Magna, of the tax on sales in respect of a house in Diospolis bought by Tsenuris, daughter of Thoteutes; with official subscriptions. Dated the 7th Thouth in the fourteenth year [of Ptolemy Epiphanes, = B.C. 192-191, or Philometor, = B.C. 168-167]. Perfect, in a large cursive hand. $6\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 1 ft. 6 in.

- Pap. 1330. (a) Portion of a loan, executed in the Hermopolite nome, and dated the [1st-5th] Pharmouthi in the fourteenth year [of the emperor Flavius Justinianus] and the second indiction [= 27-31 March, A.D. 539]. Parts of the first seven lines, in a rather small cursive hand. $3\frac{1}{4}$ in. \times 6 in. . . .
- (b) Portion of a contract, also executed in the Hermopolite nome, dated the 28th Epeiph in the twenty-seventh year of the emperor Flavius Justinianus and the twelfth year after the consulship of Basilus [= 22 July, A.D. 553]. Parts of the first six lines, in a rather small cursive hand. 3 in. \times $6\frac{1}{4}$ in. .
- Pap. 1331. Fragments, all small, of what seems to have been a lengthy document, perhaps a sale. The mention of $\text{H}\rho\text{ak}\lambda\epsilon\omicron\sigma\text{πο}\text{λι}\tau\omega\text{ν}$ makes it probable that the document is from Heracleopolis or the neighbourhood. The only personal name is $\Phi\omicron\iota\beta\alpha\mu\mu\omega\text{ν}\omicron\varsigma$. 6th cent. Written across the papyrus-fibres in a large, clear, cursive hand

TEXTS.

A. PTOLEMAIC PERIOD.

PAPYRUS 887.—3rd cent. B. C.

THE earliest text to be printed in this volume—it appears from its writing to belong to the third century B. C.—is a portion of a petition for redress of injuries. The first part of it is lost, including the name of the petitioner and the official to whom his complaint was addressed. It is a complaint against a neighbour, apparently the occupant of apartments in the same house (or rather the same courtyard), who has first sacrificed the petitioner's interests in some way to those of a fellow Egyptian, and then has forcibly dispossessed him of his share of the yard.

The document is written in one broad column, across the fibres of the papyrus, but apparently on the recto side of it; a practice not uncommon in Ptolemaic documents, and very common, indeed habitual, in the Byzantine period. There are traces of four lines preceding the first here printed.

3. κλειμα: 1. κλ(ε)ιμακα.

5. προπ(ε)ινων κ.τ.λ.: a very literary phrase, cf. Demosth. De Cor. 296, τὴν ἐλευθερίαν προπεπωκότες Φιλίππῳ. Apparently the building of the staircase from the courtyard to the other part of the house was an injury to the petitioner and a benefit to the compatriot of the offender.

6. οις: written over some other letters which have been washed out.

7. The papyrus has been folded longitudinally while the ink of the last two words of this line was still wet.

PAPYRUS 1200.—192 or 168 B. C.

THE following document is an official certificate of a payment of tax for a house in Diospolis Magna, or Thebes. Since the tax is described as τὸ ἐγκύκλιον, it is presumably levied on the sale or mortgage of the house (cf. Papp. 1201, 1202), though this is not expressly stated. Several questions arise with regard to the amount of the tax, which are discussed in the notes. The date is the 7th Thoth in the fourteenth year. The latest reign to which this date could apply is that of Philometor (= 168 B. C.), and the palaeographical evidence would suit well with such a date; but (as Dr. Grenfell has kindly pointed out) the fourteenth year of Philometor belongs to the period of his joint rule with Euergetes, when a double date would be expected or else the year of the joint rule (as in Paris Pap. 63). Consequently it is preferable to refer it to the reign of Epiphanes, to which, moreover, the silver standard is more suitable. Neither argument, however, is final, owing to the insufficiency of our evidence and the fluctuations of usage; so that the later date remains a possibility. Certificates of this kind are commonly found attached to documents recording the sale to which they apply; but the present one stands alone. It consists of three columns. The first (omitted in the facsimile for want of room) contains nothing but the date. This part of the papyrus was rolled up separately, tied round by a thread of papyrus, and sealed with a clay seal. The seal remains almost intact, and shows a figure apparently advancing to the left, and clothed in a garment descending to the knees, without inscription. The second column contains the body of the document and the subscriptions of two officials, a γραμματεὺς and a representative of the τοπογραμματεὺς. The third column, part of which is lost, contains the subscription of a third official.

2. πεπτωκεν: the earlier word used in these documents in the sense of 'has been paid,' being replaced subsequently by τέτακται. Cf. Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 64.

3. βασιλεὶ: this addition (to be taken with πέπτωκεν, 'has been paid for the king's service') is found intermittently in documents of this class; cf. Wilcken, op. cit., p. 71, also Pal. Soc. II. 143 (the 'Londoner Bilinguis' referred to by Wilcken), BGU. 992. In the Berlin document (162 B.C.) the phrase is amplified, τέτακται . . . βασιλεὶ εἰς τὸν ἴδιον λόγον, and in Amherst Pap. 31 it takes the form τέτακται . . . εἰς τὸν ἴδιον λόγον τῶν βασιλέων.

4. ἀρχιφυλακίτου: it is new to find this officer, the head of the village police, authorizing the payment of taxes into the official bank. Usually it is the tax-farmers (οἱ πρὸς τῇ ὥνῃ, τελώνης, κ.τ.λ.) who are quoted as the authorities; but other officers appear occasionally (the οἰκονόμος and τοπογραμματεὺς, Berl. Pap. 993, ὁ ἐπὶ τῶν προσόδων and the βασιλικὸς γραμματεὺς, Amh. Pap. 31), and the ἀρχιφυλακίτης is known to have had a share in financial duties (cf. Grenfell and Hunt, Tebtunis Papyri I. p. 47).

6. ἐγ' Χρυσόπολει κ.τ.λ.: these local names are new. No mention appears to occur elsewhere either of Chrysopolis as a quarter of Thebes or of an Ἀπολλώνιον. Α κόμη Ἀπολ(λωνίας) [for which perhaps Ἀπόλλωνος might be read] is mentioned in Wilcken's ostrakon 672 (Gr. Ostr. II. 178, cf. I. 714).

8. ἐπὶ: the letters are much defaced, but it does not seem that anything else can be intended.

9, 10. The interpretation of these groups of figures appears to be as follows. The valuation of the property sold is 200 drachmas; the tax is at the rate of 8 dr. $2\frac{1}{4}$ obols per cent.; it is paid in copper reckoned at the rate of $26\frac{1}{2}$ obols to the stater (instead of 24 obols, which is the par value); the actual amount paid on the total value of 200 dr. is 16 dr. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ob.; and a supplementary tax, here simply denoted by the term ισονόμου, but in ll. 13 and 16 and in other documents called χαλκειας, is also levied, equal to half the main tax, i.e. 8 dr. $2\frac{1}{4}$ ob. For a parallel to this text, cf. B.M. demotic pap. 10463 (Pal. Soc. II. 143). There the total valuation of the property is not stated, either in the Greek text or in the demotic to which it is attached (published by Revillout, Proc. Soc. Bibl. Arch. xiv., 1892, p. 63 ff.), but the tax is 8 dr. $2\frac{1}{4}$ ob., a coincidence which can hardly be due to chance; and the charge for χαλκειά is half the main tax, as here. The interpretation of the tax is more difficult, the ἐγκύκλιον being regularly at the rate of either 10 or 5 per cent. (see next papyrus), whereas this is a fraction less than $8\frac{1}{2}$ per cent.

10. χαλκου εν κςc: the preposition is usually εις, as in l. 12. For the phrase itself (which is equivalent to the later χαλκοῦ οὐδ ἀλλαγῇ), cf. Zois Pap. I, l. 33, Grenfell, Revenue Laws, p. 199, Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 720. It gives the rate of surcharge made when payments due in silver were paid in copper; in such cases $26\frac{1}{2}$ obols were reckoned to the stater of 4 silver drachmae, instead of the normal 24. In Wilcken's ostrakon 331 the figures are read by him as $26\frac{1}{2}$, but in response to an inquiry he has been good enough to state that the fraction is doubtful, and may be read as $\frac{1}{2}$; in the Zois papyrus, as the facsimile published by Pettretini shows, they are $26\frac{1}{2}$, which is unquestionably the reading in the present document. This gives a rate of $10\frac{5}{12}$ per cent., which is confirmed by Louvre Pap. 62, col. 5, l. 16 (ed. Grenfell, Rev. Laws, p. 179).

ισονομου: the first three letters are damaged, but the reading is fairly certain; the ι is attached by a ligature from the top to the following letter, as occasionally elsewhere in this papyrus. χαλκοῦ ισονόμου is the regular phrase for 'copper at par,' i.e. 24 obols to the stater, and the phrase here apparently means that whereas the first-named tax (the 8 dr. $2\frac{1}{4}$ ob. per cent.) is to be paid in copper subject to a surcharge, the second tax, which below is called χαλκειά, is to be paid in copper accepted at its par value.

11. γρ(αμματεως): usually such certificates are signed by the τραπεζίτης, but here the γ is unquestionable. The γραμματεῖς also appears in Wilcken's ostraka 329, 331, &c.

12. τς: so the MS., but the sense requires τςf c, as in l. 10.

13. χαλκειας: in B.M. dem. pap. 10463 the spelling is χαλκειαυ. Here the writing is so cursive that the reading might be questioned, but in l. 16 the ε is certain.

PAPYRUS 1201.—161 B. C.

THE two following texts are Greek dockets to demotic documents, recording the due payment of the government tax (τὸ ἐγκύκλιον) on mortgages of land effected by the deeds to which they are attached. In both cases the mortgager is the same, Harsiesis, son of Kerkaris, the land is in the plain adjoining a village called Tarkutis, and the payment is effected through the bank of Apollonius in Hermonthis. The earlier of the two dockets is dated in the last month of the twentieth year, and the demotic text (which Mr. F. Ll. Griffith and Sir H. Thompson have kindly read) shows that the reign is that of Philometor. The date is consequently at the end of the year 162–161 B. C. The mortgage itself, however, as shown by the demotic text, was made on the second of Phaophi preceding, and the loan was to be repaid on the last day of Pachon, nearly three months before the tax was paid.

With regard to the amount of the tax, it is described as εἰκοστή, and this (5 per cent.) is the normal amount of the ἐγκύκλιον on sales of land from about 200 to 130 B.C. (see below, note on l. 1), while both before and after this period it amounted to 10 per cent. Many papyri exist in proof of this rule, e.g. B. M. Papp. 3, 667, 675, 679, 882, 1204, Amherst Papp. 52, 53, BGU. 993, 994, 995, 999, 1000; and no other amounts appear to occur. In the case of mortgages, it has been established by Oxy. Pap. 243 that the amount, at any rate in Roman times, was 2 per cent.; and the present documents prove the same for the Ptolemaic period. In Pap. 1201 the total of the mortgage is stated as 2 talents 1800 drachmae, and the tax as 276 drachmae; in Pap. 1202 the total is 1 tal. 5840 dr., and the tax 240 dr. In the latter case the tax is estimated as if the total were 2 talents, instead of falling short of that amount by 160 drachmae. It is noteworthy that the amount of the tax did not vary according to the length of time for which the mortgage was to run (in Pap. 1201 it is for eight months, in Pap. 1202 for twelve); and that it is still called an εἰκοστή, although it is in fact a πεντηκοστή.

The papyrus is much larger than its contents require, measuring 2 ft. 9 in. in length and 1 ft. 1 in. in height, the text occupying the whole of its length, but less than five inches of its height. The demotic text, in seven lines across the whole length of the papyrus, comes first, and is followed by the Greek docket, in two similar lines. The papyrus is of good quality, the κολλήματα being $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches wide.

1. εικοστης: the ἐγκύκλιον, or tax upon sales and (as appears from this and the following document) mortgages, was at the rate of 10 per cent. in the case of sales under the earlier Ptolemies, was lowered to 5 per cent. at the beginning of the reign of Epiphanes, and raised again to 10 per cent. by Euergetes II, between 139 B.C. (Pap. 667) and 127 B.C. (BGU. 993). Cf. Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 182.

των προς την ωνη: cf. Grenfell and Hunt, Amh. Pap. 52, a document of the same nature as the present.

διαγραφην: the official order authorizing the receipt of the money by the bank is always referred to; in the two Zois papyri (ed. Peyron, Turin, 1828, Wessely, Vienna, 1885) and in Amh. Pap. 31 it is annexed in full.

Ζμινις, κ.τ.λ.: as originally written, the royal secretary Dionysius is said to have countersigned the tax-farmers' order himself; the interlineation shows that it was really countersigned by his deputy's deputy, as in the case of Pap. 1202.

Ετη Πσορτιτος: so the MS., apparently, though the father's name is somewhat cursively written. The demotic text confirms the name Ετη, but appears to give a different father's name, beginning with Πρεμ-.

2. Ταρκυτει: the Greek might be read as Ταρυνπει, but the demotic establishes the former. The demotic text states that the locality is in the north and west of the Pathyrite nome.

υποτεθειται: in active sense, of the mortgager. The order and the sense alike show that Ετε is the mortgagee (who pays the tax) and Harsiesis the mortgager.

αυτη: αυτωι might equally be read, but the demotic shows that the mortgagee is a woman.

β̅ α̅ω̅: i.e. 2 tal., 1800 dr. The demotic text gives the same amount in a different form, '690 pieces of silver, making 3450 staters.'

τελος ου αλλαγη: cf. Grenfell, Revenue Pap. p. 202 ff. The phrase is equivalent in sense to χαλκος εις κςϚ, which occurs above in Pap. 1200, l. 10. Cf. Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 720 ff. The word αλλαγη is represented by a number of indistinguishable strokes, but nothing else can be intended; cf. Amh. Pap. 52, BGU. 995, 999.

3. τρ̅: i.e. τραπεζιτης.

PAPYRUS 1202.—160-159 B. C.

A DOCUMENT precisely similar to the preceding, and dated eighteen months later. The mortgager is the same, the mortgagee different; a single tax-farmer replaces the two named in the earlier document. The land dealt with (as the demotic shows) is the same, though the amount raised on it is different. The formula is identical. The demotic text states that the mortgage was made on the 10th Tubi (which is confirmed by l. 2 of the docket), and was to be paid off on the last day of Choiach in the following year (the 23rd). The tax was paid on the 3rd Mecheir, three weeks after the date of the mortgage.

The papyrus measures 2 ft. $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. in length and 1 ft. $0\frac{3}{4}$ in. in height, while the text only occupies a space of 1 ft. 9 in. in length and $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. in height. The demotic text is in a smaller hand and fainter ink than the preceding; the Greek is also smaller and extremely cursive. The κολλήματα are $6\frac{1}{2}$ in. wide.

1. εικοστοστης: 1. εικοστης.

2. παρα Πακοιβιος του: repeated by mistake; cf. Pap. 1201, l. 1.

Εσπμηθιος: the π is doubtful, but is confirmed by the demotic.

3. τελος: it is impossible to say whether this word alone, or τέλος οὐ ἀλλαγῇ in abbreviated form, is intended by the succession of indistinguishable strokes which occur here; but the former seems more probable. So in Amh. Papp. 53, 54 τέλος stands alone, though in 52 it is τέλος οὐ ἀλλαγῇ.

4. Απολλωνις [l. -ιος] τρα(πεζιτης): written in much abbreviated style, and only legible by comparison with Pap. 1201, and by knowledge of the banker's name.

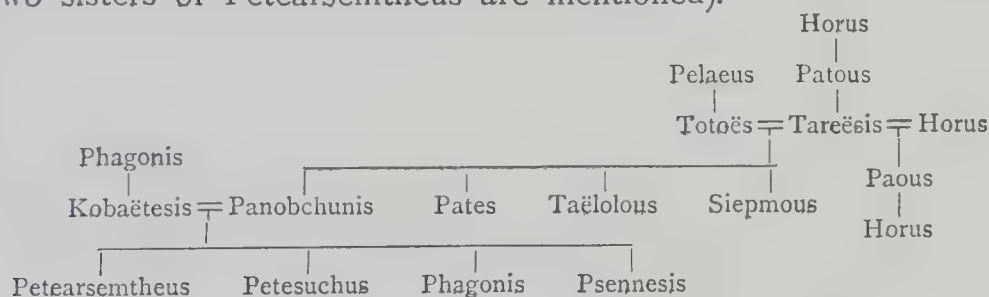

PAPYRUS 879.—123 B. C.

THE papyri which follow form part of a large collection which was discovered at Gebelên, about five and twenty miles above Thebes, apparently about the year 1894. The collection was broken up by the native discoverers and sold to various purchasers. The British Museum possesses eighty-five, viz. Papp. 605-640 (published, with the exception of 610 and 615, by Grenfell, Greek Papyri I. 10-44), 654-681 (published, with the exception of 676 and 678, by Grenfell and Hunt, Greek Papyri II. 15-37), 681-687, 879-883, 888, 889, 1203-1209; Lord Amherst of Hackney possesses eleven (published by Grenfell and Hunt, Amherst Papyri 36, 39, 45-51, 166, 167); the Berlin Museum has published nine (BGU. 992-1000); and others have been notified at Cairo (Goodspeed, Greek Papyri from the Cairo Museum, nos. 5, 6, 8, 9, and Grenfell and Hunt, Catalogue général des antiquités égyptiennes du musée du Caire, vol. x), Paris (Revillout, Mélanges, 1895, de Ricci, Archiv für Papyrusforschung, II. 515 ff.), Copenhagen (Blinkenberg, Oversigt over det Kgl. Danske Videnskabernes Selskabs Forhandling, 1901, p. 119 ff.), Geneva (Nicole, Papyrus de Genève, no. 20), and Brussels (de Ricci, Bulletin papyrologique, in Revue des Études Grecques, 1901, p. 190). Further portions of the collection are known to be at Heidelberg and Strassburg (cf. Gerhard, 'Ὀνή ἐν πίστει, in Philologus, bd. lxiii, 1905, pp. 508–513), but of these only one has yet been published (ib., p. 498).

The earliest among the group now published is the record of a sale by Patous, son of Phagonis, a Persian τῶν προσγράφων, to Panobchunis, son of Totoes, and his wife Kobaëtesis, of a quarter of an aroura of land in Pathyris for 4000 drachmas of copper. The document is complete, except that it is not accompanied by the bankers' certificate of the payment of the tax on sales (τὸ ἐγκύκλιον) which is often attached to such records (cf. Papp. 882, 1204, BGU. 993, 994, 995, 999, 1000). The first column consists of an abstract of the contents of the deed, which was sealed up separately; the seal in this instance is lost. The main body of the deed is contained in cols. 2 and 3, the whole of col. 2 being occupied by a catalogue of the priesthoods of the deified Ptolemies at Alexandria and Ptolemais, which contains some noteworthy features.

The Panobchunis who appears here as purchaser is the father of four sons whose names appear repeatedly in other papyri of this group (cf. Brit. Mus. Papp. 625, 657–663, 674, 675, 680, 879–881, 883, 1203–1209). The genealogy appears to be as follows (cf. Grenfell and Hunt, G. P. II. p. 48, and Spiegelberg, Die demotischen Papyrus der Strassburger Bibliothek, p. 26, where two sisters of Petearsemtheus are mentioned).

Patous, son of Phagonis, the vendor, may very probably be a brother of Kobaëtesis, their ages (35 and 30) being suitable.

2. The symbol following Πατους resembles a ρ surmounted by a horizontal line. It must stand for γῆς ἡπίρου. Both here and in l. 19 the two upper strokes of the symbol for 'aroura' are formed continuously.

4. Μαιθωτις: in the body of the deed the name of the wife of Panobchunis is given as Κοβαετησις, as also in Pap. 1204; but the name Μαιθωτις recurs in the endorsement. As the father's name is given identically in both places, it must be assumed that the two names of the daughter are alternatives.

5. The sign for 'talent' is inserted after that for χαλκοῦ, apparently by mistake, the amount of the purchase money being stated in the body of the deed (l. 23) as 4000 dr.

7. μη: at first written μζ, but η has apparently been written both over the ζ and above the line, and the true date is fixed by the docket (l. 1).

8. θεου Ευπατορος και θεου Φιλομητορος: R. Laqueur (Quaestiones epigraphicae et papyrologicae selectae, Strassburg, 1904, p. 35 ff.) has shown, from a comparison of all the extant lists of the Ptolemies, Greek and demotic, that from 139 to 116 B.C. the regular order was θεων Έπιφανων και θεου Φιλομήτορος (Philometor's wife, being married to his successor, Euergetes II, is now associated with the latter among the Ptolemaic deities) και θεου Εὐπάτορος και θεων Εὐεργετων. Only in one instance out of fourteen (a demotic papyrus of 131 B.C.) does the order θεου Εὐπάτορος και θεου Φιλομήτορος occur. The present document furnishes another exception, due probably to a scribe's error, either through carelessness or through copying an older formula. After the death of Euergetes in 116 the old order, Eupator-Philometor, was resumed, and is found in all the extant documents, 19 in number (to which may be added Papp. 880, 881, 1204, below), with the exception of a group of demotic papyri from Pathyris.

10 ff. Lists of the priesthoods in Ptolemais are much less frequent than those of the priesthoods in Alexandria. The present list comes nearest to that in B.M. Pap. 667 (=Grenfell and Hunt, Gr. Pap. II. 15), of 139 B.C., but with differences noted below.

11. Πτολεμαιου θεου Ευεργετου και Σωτηρος εαυτων Ευχαριστου: this is Ptolemy Euergetes II, the reigning sovereign always standing second in the lists of Ptolemais, after Ptolemy Soter. The formula however is quite unprecedented. There is no doubt about the reading εαυτων, either here or in l. 12; in Pap. 667 the word is lost in both places, and the editors have supplied επιφανους, but εαυτων suits the size of the lacuna better in both places.

του δε βηματος του χρυσου: cf. Pap. 667, where however the papyrus is mutilated, and the editors have conjectured του βήματος Διο]νύσου. The letter after the lacuna can however be better read as ρ than ν. The royal title which follows is in Pap. 667 in the form του βασιλέως του μεγαλου θεου Εὐεργέτου και σωτήρος ευχαρίστου.

13. Pap. 667 inserts Philometor before Eupator in this context. As Philometor occurs in the list of priesthoods at Alexandria (above, l. 8) the omission here is probably not intentional.

14. The three Cleopatras are ordinarily described as Κ. της αδελφης (Cleopatra II, sister and wife successively of both Philometor and Euergetes), Κ. της γυναικος (Cleopatra III, daughter of Philometor and Cleopatra II, and wife of Euergetes), and Κ. της μητρος (Cleopatra I, mother of Philometor, Euergetes, and Cleopatra II). The three occur however as here described in Pap. 620 (=Grenfell, Gr. Pap. I. 24), and (with the omission of the words της γυναικος) in Amherst Pap. 45 (which must belong to this period, not to the reign of Philometor), and P. dem. Sträsb. 21, of 145 B.C.

16. In spite of the stop and space at the end of l. 15 the words εν Πτολεμαϊδι της Θηβαϊδος must go with των οντων και ουσων, the place at which the deed was executed being named after the date, sc. εν Παθύρει.

εφ Ηλιοδωρου αγορανομου: Heliodorus also appears as agoranomus at Pathyris in 118-113 B.C. (Papp. 880, 1203, also 669-671 = G.P. II. 19-21).

17. Περσης των προσγραφων: cf. Pap. 218 (vol. II, p. 15). The expansion of the abbreviation προσγρ^L as προσγραφέντων there given had already been corrected by Grenfell and Hunt from a Gizeh papyrus. The term recurs in Pap. 881, l. 18. It is observable that the father of Panobchunis (who is likewise described as Π. των προσγράφων, l. 21) is a Πέρσης της επιγονης, Pap. 880, l. 10.

PAPYRUS 880.—113 B. C.

IN this document Totoës, father of the Panobchunis whose name appeared in Pap. 879, executes a division of landed property in the plain about Pathyris between his two sons and two daughters. The deed is written in two columns, and was presumably preceded by a docket of its contents. It is slightly mutilated in places, but not so as to affect the main purport of it; and having been mounted on paper before it reached the Museum, one or two small fragments have been misplaced. The preamble contains a full list of priesthoods at Alexandria (which at this date were held by the king himself), but the priesthoods at Ptolemais, as usual, are only summarized.

1-9. The formula is verbally identical with Pap. 621 (= Grenfell, Gr. Pap. I. 25), which was written in the same place nearly eleven months earlier. In BGU. 994, written about four months later than the present document, the name Κλεοπάτρας takes the place of the title βασιλίσσης. The two are interchangeable, and cannot be used as indications of date.

5. ιερουπωλου: it seems natural to take this as merely a corruption of ιεραπόλου, since ιερού πόλου makes no reasonable sense. Moreover, if the latter were correct, one would expect it to be translated in the demotic texts, whereas the few texts which have the title treat it as a foreign word and simply transliterate it (Spiegelberg, Aeg. Zeitschr., 1899, p. 38), in two cases treating it as two words and in two cases as one. Laqueur (op. cit. p. 42) and Otto (Priester und Tempel im hellenistischen Ägypten, p. 411) take it as two words; cf. Gerhard, Archiv für Religionswissenschaft, 1904, p. 520.

9. συνεγραφαντο: 1. συνεγραψαντο. For the formula, followed by όμολογεί κ.τ.λ., cf. Pap. 1203, l. 2.

14.]ξ Τελωνος: the name Τελωνος, which does not appear to occur elsewhere in the papyri as a proper name, is confirmed by Papp. 881, ll. 5, 21 (p. 12), and 1209, l. 13 (p. 20).

15. πατηφιοστη: or Πατηφιος γη.

23. The word after πλατεια should be the name of the street (cf. Amh. Pap. 98, l. 3, Σαραπιακή πλατεία), but the letters, which are slightly blurred, suggest no recognizable word. The first four letters might possibly be read as οδος.

27. ωικοδομενης: l. ωικοδομημενης.

30. ακ^ρ ρ: i.e. ακυρος, apparently originally written ακ^ρ, and a ρ subsequently added.

31. ελ: = ἐπίτιμον, cf. Oxy. Pap. 725, l. 5, BGU. 998, col. ii, l. 10. The preceding letter may be σ, sc. ὡς, and before that there is an angular mark above the line, which generally represents a in an abbreviation (cf. end of l. 30).

LOAN, executed at the same place and date as the preceding document, by which Panobchunis lends his father Totoës eight talents of copper and $13\frac{1}{4}$ artabas of wheat, without interest. The date is the 27th Mecheir in the fourth year [of Cleopatra and Ptolemy Soter II], i.e. near the beginning of 113 B. C., and the loan is to be repaid in Mesoré of the fifth year, eighteen months later. The deed is roughly written across the fibres of papyrus of poor quality.

PAPYRUS 1204.—113 B. C.

THIS deed of sale relates to the half of a house in Pathyris which was assigned to Taëlolous and Siepmous, daughters of Totoës, by the division of property recorded in Pap. 880. By the present document, which is dated about ten months later, the two sisters, with the approval and co-operation of their father, sell their share to Kobaëtesis, the wife of their brother Panobchunis, who already owned the other half of the house. The purchase price is a talent of copper.

The document is perfect, the main body of the deed occupying two broad columns, and being preceded by a docket of the contents and followed by the certificate of the bank at Crocodilopolis of the receipt of the tax of 10 per cent. on sales. The docket was separately sealed with a small clay seal, bearing a female face turned to the left.

17. συνεπικελευοντος κ.τ.λ.: i.e. συνεπικελεύοντος καὶ συμπωλουμένου Τοτοήτος τοῦ Πελαίου τοῦ ἐαυτῶν πατρός. The genitive is ordinarily Τοτοεοῦς, as in ll. 15, 16, 20, or Τοτοηοῦς, as in Papp.
661, 663, 674, 675. It is noticeable that the father, perhaps because he is a party to the sale, does not act as κύριος to his daughters.

19. πηχυν στερεον: cf. Pap. 880, l. 26 (p. 9), BGU. 994, col. iii, l. 1 ff. Obviously this is not the simple cubic cubit of P. Oxy.
669, l. 7, but akin to, or identical with, the πῆχυς οἰκοπεδικός (ib., l. 9, and note), which = 100 square cubits or 100 of an aroura.

22. μεση: in Pap. 879, l. 22 Kobaëtesis is described as ἐλάσσων, and she is hardly likely to have grown between the ages of thirty and forty; but such descriptions are of course inexact.

26. ι' εγκυ(κλιου): cf. Pap. 1201, note 1 (p. 4).

27. ης . . . συγγρα(φης): inserted too early, and repeated in l. 28.

29. απο^δ: the reading is doubtful; the second letter is more like ν than π. One expects either nothing or the sign for ψκ: cf. Pap. 882, l. 26, where the same figure follows a statement of the tax as amounting to 600 dr., indicating an advance of 20 per cent. In BGU. 995, col. iv, ll. 5, 6 is the fuller phrase τέλος χα(λκοῦ) (δραχμαὶ) ā (followed by a corrected figure, which should be χκ) οὔ (?) ἀλλαγὴ χα(λκοῦ) (δραχμαὶ) āν, where the amount of the purchase money is 2 tal. 4200 dr., the tax of one-tenth 1620 dr., and the same raised by 20 per cent. is 1950 dr. (more exactly, 1944 dr.). It appears therefore that if the tax was paid in copper it was liable to a surcharge of 20 per cent., nearly double the ordinary rate (cf. p. 3, Pap. 1200, note on ll. 9, 10).

17. επι Σωσου αγορανομου: Sosus appears to have succeeded Heliodorus (cf. p. 7, note on Pap. 879, l. 16) as agoranomus at Pathyris in 113 B.C. (Pap. 622 = Gr. Pap. I. 26). He remained in office at least till 108 B.C.; but in Phaophi of the eleventh year (= Oct.-Nov., 107 B.C.) Heliodorus (whether the same as the earlier official of the name or not cannot be determined) appears as agoranomus (BGU. 996), and three weeks later Paniscus (Pap. 657 = Gr. Pap. II. 23 a; cf. Pap. 888 a).

18. Περσης των προσγραφων: cf. Pap. 879, l. 17, and note (p. 7).

19-21. πεμπτην μεριδα κ.τ.λ.: $\frac{1}{2} \times \frac{1}{4} \times 2^5 = 1\frac{1}{2}$.

21. του επιβαλλοντος χαλασματος: cf. Pap. 657, l. 7, του προσόντος χαλάσματος.

καλουμενη Τελωνος: cf. Pap. 880, l. 14 (p. 9).

22. Ταθωτιος: the fifth letter is more like an υ than a τ.

23. Evidently the text originally ran on from οι αν ωσι to the next column, γειτονες παντοθεν, and εαν τι αλλο . . . κυριευσουσι is an afterthought.

25. The name of the mother was added to those of her four sons subsequently; she is not named in the docket nor in l. 28.

26. των: l. οι.

30. Ερμι(as): in 109 B.C. Ammonius signs as deputy to the agoranomus (Geneva Pap. 20). The Hermias who appears here is presumably the official who signs frequently as deputy for Paniscus a few years later.

PAPYRUS 882.—101 B. C.

A DEED of sale, executed at Diospolis Parva during the last months of the joint reign of Cleopatra III and her younger son, Ptolemy Alexander, whereby a woman named Thamunis sells $3\frac{1}{2}$ arouras of land in the Pathyrite nome to Petearsemtheus, son of Nechutes, for a talent of copper. The document is complete, with docket and banker's certificate.

3. Ε: μέρος is the word required (cf. l. 13), and this may be meant for a monogram of με; but it closely resembles the symbol for πυρός.

6. απ^ο: if this is rightly read, it must stand for ἡ ἀποδομένη, but the writing is so cursive that it is impossible to be certain.

7. The style of Cleopatra III and Ptolemy Alexander during their six years of joint rule varies considerably in detail. The only instance which agrees exactly with the formula here is Strack, No. 141 (Dynastie der Ptolemäer, p. 265). The title Θεὰ Εὐεργέτις appears also in Tebtunis Pap. 105 (βασιλεοντων Κλ. θεᾶς Εὐεργέτιδος καὶ Πτ. τοῦ ἐπικαλουμένου Ἀλ. θεῶν Φιλομητόρων), with which 166 is identical except for the addition of Σωτήρων. This last addition only occurs elsewhere in Leyden Pap. N (β. Κλ. καὶ Πτ. τοῦ ἐπικ. Ἀλ. θεῶν Φιλομητόρων Σωτήρων). B. M. Pap. 657 and BGU. 997 are the only two papyri which give the same formula, β. Κλ. καὶ Πτ. ἐπικ. Ἀλ. τοῦ υἱοῦ θεῶν Φιλομητόρων.

B. M. 675 differs from this only by the addition of βασιλέως before Πτολεμαίου and τοῦ after it. The shortest formula of all is in B. M. 630, β. Κλ. καὶ βασιλ. Πτ. ἐπικ. Ἀλ. The beginning of the joint rule is fixed within narrow limits by BGU. 996, dated on Phaophi 5 of the eleventh year (Cleopatra and Soter II), and B. M. 657 dated the twenty-eighth of the same month (Cleopatra and Ptolemy Alexander). It must therefore have taken place at the end of October or beginning of November, 107 B. C. The end must have come before Phaophi 14 of the fourteenth year (of Ptolemy Alexander, = the seventeenth of Cleopatra), i.e. the beginning of November, 101 B. C. (Tebt. Pap. 106), and after the beginning of May in that year (B. M. 675).

10. ενσιμος ησυχχι: 'slightly flat-nosed'; the same description occurs in Leyden Pap. N, col. ii, l. 7.

15. ης: corrected from ων.

PAPYRUS 676.—100 B. C.

A MUTILATED deed of sale, executed at Pathyris in Phaophi of the fifteenth year of Ptolemy Alexander and Berenice. It is one of the papyri acquired by Mr. Hogarth in Egypt in 1895-6, but was not included by Messrs. Grenfell and Hunt in their publication of that collection (Greek Papyri II).

1. The earliest document bearing the names of Alexander and Berenice is P. Tebt. 106, dated Phaophi 14 of the fourteenth year, in which the king is described as θεός Φιλομήτωρ and the queen as θεὰ Φιλάδελφος (a style which recurs in the three petitions, Leyden G, H, I, of 99-98 B.C.). On Choiach 2 (BGU. 998) the king appears as θεός Φιλομήτωρ, without mention of the queen. In the present document both are mentioned as θεοί Φιλομήτορες (the restoration in l. 2 not admitting of doubt), and this continues to be the regular style (B. M. 1206, BGU. 999, B. M. 1207, 678, 679, 682, BGU. 1000, B. M. 1208), though Berenice is sometimes omitted (B. M. 632, P. Tebt. 104, 109). The last years of the reign show a different style, for which see Papp. 1209, 883.

6. Τεμραυθ: cf. Pap. 1207, ll. 7, 19 (p. 17).

PAPYRUS 1205.—99 B. C.

A SMALL fragment, only worth publishing as belonging to the group of documents relating to the sons of Panobchunis, and possibly to be completed from the hitherto unpublished papyri of the same collection at Strassburg or elsewhere.

PAPYRUS 1206.—99 B. C.

DEED of sale in Pauni of the fifteenth year of Ptolemy Alexander (= 100–99 B. C.), by which Panobchunis sells two parcels of land adjoining Pathyris, of unspecified extent, to a priest of Suchus and Aphrodite, named Petearsemtheus, for two talents of copper. The document is complete, and is preceded by a docket; but the banker's certificate is not appended. Part of the clay seal originally closing the docket is preserved.

L ξ̄: in the year 123 B.C. (Pap. 879) Panobchunis was returned as being forty years of age; here, in 99 B.C., he is still only sixty. In the absence of a periodical census, such as existed in Roman times, presumably the officials had to accept the individual's statement of his age.

PAPYRUS 1207.—99 B.C.

ANOTHER deed of sale, five months later than the preceding. The vendor is an iron-worker of Pathyris, the purchaser Petearsemtheus, son of Panobchunis; the land is a vineyard in the northern part of Pathyris, and the price 4000 drachmas of copper. Except that a few letters are lost at the right-hand extremity, the document is perfect. A docket is prefixed, and its seal (a female head, facing to the right) is almost intact. The writing is rougher than in the earlier examples.

19. γειτονες: the neighbours' names are then given in the genitive throughout, γῆ being perhaps understood.

20. καλουμενη: l. καλουμενης, unless all the genitives (or at least νησου) are corrected. Τμονπιτεβ itself means 'the island of Piteb' (Griffith); it is presumably the same as the νῆσος καλουμένη Πίτβιος in BGU. 993, col. iii, l. 8.

22. Περσηι: l. Περσης.

PAPYRUS 678.—99-98 B. C.

A VERY fragmentary deed of sale, dated at Crocodilopolis, in the office of the agoranomus of the upper toparchy of the Pathyrite nome, in the month following the date of the preceding document. The writing, by contrast, is small and neat, but not as well formed as in most papyri of the second century B. C. Both the parties (who may be brothers) are priests of Suchus and Aphrodite (on the combination of these deities see Otto, Priester und Tempel im hellenistischen Ägypten, I. 8, 1905).

2. ετους εκκαιδεκατον: the year must be later than the thirteenth, since the reign is that of Ptolemy Alexander and Berenice, and the lacuna will not admit a longer supplement than εκκαιδεκατον. The day of the month is lost, but it must be in the last days of 99 or the first of 98.

6. ομμασι: the traces of the letter before ασι are suitable to μ. 8, 9. Dr. Hunt suggests [ἀπηλιώτου ἄς] προπέπρα[κε] τῷ [Ἀρσιήσε]ι ἀρούρ[ας], which is possible enough.

10. Αρσιησις: cf. Pap. 676, l. 8, from which the statement of his age and appearance may be restored.

PAPYRUS 682.—101-98 B. C.

A FRAGMENT (or rather three small fragments) from the beginning of a contract, published here for the same reasons as Pap. 1205. Its date is approximately fixed by its falling within the reign of Ptolemy Alexander and Berenice, and in the term of office of the agoranomus Paniscus. Paniscus was still agoranomus in Mesoré of the sixteenth year, i. e. August, 98 B. C. (BGU. 1000); but in Mecheir of the seventeenth year (= Feb., 97 B. C.) he had been succeeded by Ammonius (Pap. 1208).

PAPYRUS 1208.—97 B. C.

A DEED of sale of the usual type, but introducing us to a new agoranomus at Pathyris (cf. introduction to Pap. 682). His writing is small, in thick strokes, somewhat blurred. The document is perfect, except for the loss of a few letters at the right-hand extremity, and has a docket with its seal, the impression of which is rather faint, but appears to be a female profile, facing to the right. In the sale, an aroura of arable land is sold for a talent of copper.

PAPYRUS 1209.—89 B. C.

WITH this papyrus we penetrate well into the first century B. C., and to the last years of the reign of Ptolemy Alexander. It is a deed of sale, executed at Pathyris, of the usual pattern, and is perfect, with docket prefixed. The seal of the docket (apparently a three-quarter or full length figure facing to the right, towards a flower) is almost complete. On the verso is a line of demotic, in addition to a Greek note of the contents.

9. Between 97 B.C. (the date of the last papyrus) and 89 B.C. no Greek document is extant which gives the full style of the reigning sovereign, the Tebtunis papyri which probably fall in this interval being all dated in the shorter manner (ἔτους x μηνός γ). On the reappearance of the fuller dates, we find a change in the style, the name Cleopatra being substituted for Berenice, and the king and queen being described as θεοὶ Φιλομήτορες Σωτῆρες instead of θεοὶ Φιλομήτορες simply. The former change appears in all the papyri of the last two years of the reign (Leyden Pap. O, B. M. 883, 1209, P. Amh. 51, also in the inscription published by Strack in Archiv III. 130, which however has not the date of the year); the latter in all except the Leyden papyrus, which retains the old θεῶν Φιλομητόρων. On the face of it, this evidence would seem to show that between 97 and 89 B.C. Berenice died and was succeeded by another Cleopatra; but the demotic evidence, as reported, is inconsistent with this. Lepsius (Abh. d. Berl. Akad., 1852, p. 473) quotes from demotic papyri dated in the twenty-sixth year (89-88 B.C.) as giving the name Berenice; and P. dem. Berl. 3107. (Spiegelberg, Demotische Papyrus aus d. kgl. Museen zu Berlin, 1902, p. 16), of the sixteenth year, gives the double name Cleopatra-Berenice. It would appear, therefore, that Berenice received the additional name of Cleopatra, which had become almost as much a dynastic name as Ptolemy, and that in the later part of the reign this superseded her original name, at any rate in Greek official documents. Cf. Strack, Dynastie der Ptolemäer, p. 56. P. dem. Strassb. 44, of the year 94 (not 97, as printed by Spiegelberg), fails us as evidence, since the name of the queen is accidentally omitted; since, however, the title Φιλομήτορες Σωτῆρες is employed, this may be taken as some indication that the change of style had already taken place by that date.

12. κλαστος: 'curly-haired'; cf. Leyden Pap. N, ll. 6, 7, P. Petr. I. 19, 7, P. Tebt. 32, 23.

13. Τελωνος: cf. Pap. 880, l. 14 (p. 9).

PAPYRUS 883.—88 B. C.

THIS, the latest document of the Ptolemaic age to be printed in this volume, belongs, according to the ordinary calculation of the pre-Julian calendar, to the first days of January, 88 B. C., and contains our last notice of the family of Panobchunis. Petearsemtheus, his eldest son, appears as purchaser of some land in the northern part of the plain of Pathyris from a namesake, son of Almaphis, a παστοφόρος of Aphrodite. Contrary to custom, neither the extent of the land nor the amount of the purchase-money is specified. The first three lines of the docket are lost; otherwise the document is complete, and the body of it is written in the same clear, but thick, hand as Pap. 1209.

19. Πετσαρσεμθевς Αλμαφιος: presumably the person named in Pap. 663 (= Gr. Pap. II. 30).

23. πρεσβυτερα: l. πρεσβυτερας. The same phrase, with the same mistake, in Pap. 675 (= Gr. Pap. II. 32), l. 7.

Αεους: cf. Pap. 1206, l. 22 (p. 16). The first letter is clearly Α here, and Pap. 657 (= Gr. Pap. II. 23), l. 8, should be corrected accordingly.

PAPYRUS 889 a.—2nd cent. B. C.

IN conclusion of this section may be given a receipt, in form of a letter, addressed by a woman named Zoïs to a priest of the temples in Crocodilopolis and Pathyris—a collocation which is a further proof of the close association between these two places. The priest is said to make the payment on behalf of Esthladas, son of Dryton, whose name is already familiar from two other papyri of Gebelên, viz. B. M. 607 (= Gr. Pap. I. 12), 617 (ib. I. 21), which are the wills of Dryton. These records show that the present document must be assigned to about the end of the second century B. C. The end of it is lost.

B. ROMAN PERIOD.

1. The Census.

PAPYRUS 901.—Late 1st or early 2nd cent.

THE documents relating to the census contained in this volume have not the same importance as those published in vol. II, when the subject was comparatively new, and when the regulations governing the census, the poll-tax, and the ἐπίκρισις were still to a great extent unknown, and could be elucidated by the papyri there printed (pp. 17-65). The present texts must be regarded as supplementary, and contain no new facts of importance. They include a portion of a register and eight census-returns made by individuals, relating to the censuses of the years 103-4, 159-60, 173-4, 215-6, and 229-30. Other documents of the same class, but too much mutilated for publication, may be found in Papp. 1119 b, 1120, and 1167.

The register which stands first is a single mutilated column from what was presumably a long roll or series of rolls, like Papp. 257-259 (vol. II, pp. 19-42). The most noticeable feature in it is the classification of houses under the headings of ἐποίκια, οἰκό(πεδα)?, οἰκίαι, and ἐπαύλεις. The handwriting points to the latter part of the first century or the beginning of the second.

4. Πετε . εως: the letter in the middle looks most like η or ν.

5. Εποικίου Αρμυρας: cf. BGU. 277 (where it is spelled Αλμυρας) and 790. An ἐποίκιον may be a group of buildings, and apparently is so here, the οἰκόπεδα which follow forming parts of it.

6. οἰκοῖ: presumably οἰκόπεδα (or -ων), not οἶκου, since ἐν οἷς follows. The scribe varies between the genitive (ἐποικίου, ἐπαύλεως) and the nominative (οἰκία).

Χαριτίου της και Θασίου: cf. l. 9, where the order of the names is reversed.

PAPYRUS 1221.—A.D. 105.

THIS census return, relative to the census of the 7th year of Trajan [A.D. 103-4], and made out as usual in the course of the following year, is addressed to the κωμογραμματεῖς and the λαογράφοι of the village of Theadelphia. 6. ενοικους: cf. BGU. 138, l. 4. The space requires some such word.

8, 9. Απολλ(ωνιου) Ιερ(ακειου): cf. Wessely, Die Stadt Arsinoë, p. 21.

PAPYRUS 915.—A.D. 160 or 161.

AN almost intact return for the census of the 23rd year of Antoninus Pius, [= A.D. 159-60], bearing a date (ll. 41-44) in the census year itself, which is quite contrary to usage. No day of the month is given, and it may be suspected that the entry does not represent the real date of the document, but is a scribe's formula, written without thinking. The return is addressed to the βασιλικὸς γραμματεὺς of Memphis, who was also at the time acting as strategus. It is noteworthy that the document is endorsed as an ἐπίκρισις, but it is not so in the ordinary technical sense of the term, viz. an admission of a boy who has reached the age of fourteen into the privileged ranks of persons exempt from poll-tax (cf. vol. ii. p. 42 ff. and Oxyrhynchus Papyri, ii. p. 217 ff.). It is an ordinary census-return, and the persons to whom it relates are an adult of the age of thirty-seven and a boy of the age of five. The verb ἐπικρίνειν is however used of the contents of the document both here and in Pap. 919 b, l. 5. The exact sense of it in this connexion is not clear, but it must be to this that the endorsement refers.

8. αργων: the reading is practically certain, though the second letter is a little rubbed. It must mean that Apollonius belonged to the leisured class; contrast Pap. 1221, l. 10, ἐργάτου τῶν ἀπὸ τῆς κόμης.

9. επι του α¹: cf. l. 18. It must be an abbreviation of the name of one of the quarters of Memphis. Until its signification is determined, it is impossible to say whether the repetition of του α¹ in l. 18 is intentional or a scribe's error. One would be inclined to read ἐπὶ τοῦ αὐτοῦ α¹.

30. παρων δε, κ.τ.λ.: cf. Pap. 919 b, l. 3 ff., but the official before whom the landlord appeared is not there named. This guarantee of the landlord appears to be new.

31. Χ: the usual symbol for ἐκατόνταρχος, here written very small. The word that follows may be τοῦτον, but such an addition does not appear necessary.

33. επικριθεντων is perhaps the word intended, as in 919, l. 5, but in that case the τ has been accidentally omitted.

different from that of the body of the document. They appear to contain a reference to the preceding census, but many of the readings are doubtful.

PAPYRUS 919b.—A.D. 175.

THE conclusion (except for the last line or two) of a return for the census of the 14th year of Marcus Aurelius [=A.D. 173-4], sent in during the following year, and probably towards the end of it. Its only special point of interest is that it furnishes a second example of the guarantee given by the landlord of the truth of his tenant's statements (cf. Pap. 915 above).

PAPYRUS 935.—A.D. 216 or 217.

THIS papyrus,—a return for the census of the 24th year of Caracalla [= A.D. 215-6].—introduces us to a family of which we shall hear a good deal in this volume, that of the sons of Hermaeus, also named Pathotes, who lived in Hermopolis Magna (Eshmunên) at the beginning of the third century. The following is the family tree, as deduced from the papyri:—

The return, which is in exceptionally good condition, is addressed to the ἀμφοδογράφος of the quarter of Hermopolis known as Φρούριον Λιβός,—the western quarter of the fortified part of the town, as distinguished from the town proper, or πόλις, which appears in l. 3. At an earlier period census-returns in towns were addressed to the γραμματεῖς μητροπόλεως (cf. vol. ii. p. 18). Their place is now taken by the ἀμφοδογράφοι, who are probably identical with the ἀμφοδάρχαι, to whom in the first century we find the duty committed of compiling a register of all male persons in their district (ib., p. 45).

3. απογ': cf. Pap. 946, l. 4; = ἀπὸ γυμνασίου, i.e. a member of the privileged class which had its education in the gymnasia. Cf. Amherst Pap. 75, l. 33 (likewise from Hermopolis), and Oxy. Pap. 257 with the introduction to it; and for the interpretation of the phrase, see Preisigke, Städtisches Beamtenwesen in römischen Ägypten, 1903, p. 7.

4. Ουαλεριου Δατου: also mentioned in BGU. 159, 266, 614.

6. επει: sc. ἐπί. Herminus had died in the 14th year (i.e. since the preceding census, which explains the fact being mentioned here), leaving his brother Hermaeus his heir.

10. των $\frac{1}{5}$ γδ': τῶν αὐτῶν γονέων.

13. κδ: probably a mistake for κε. The census being for the 24th year returns were not sent in till the 25th. Cf. Pap. 936, l. 11, where another return for the same census is dated in Phamenoth of the 25th year.

16. εν κληρω: sc. ἀμφοδογραφίας, i.e. elected to succeed to the office of ἀμφοδογράφος (cf. Oxy. Pap. 533, l. 21). The incoming official certifies that he has received a copy of the document; cf. Papp. 936, 946, below.

PAPYRUS 936.—A. D. 217.

A COMPANION document to the preceding, being a return for the same census by the sister of Herminus. The formula is identical; but it is noteworthy that the sister, Dioscorous, makes a separate return, only mentioning her husband and brother, Theognostus, as συμπαρόντος, while Theognostus himself is included in the return of his younger brother, Herminus. The explanation is that the census was based upon the houses owned or occupied by the persons concerned (hence κατ' οἰκίαν ἀπογραφή). Herminus and Theognostus appear as joint owners of a house which their father had inherited from his brother, and Dioscorous as separate owner of a house of which she has been in possession for some time, perhaps since the last census (προαπέσχον, l. 8).

PAPYRUS 946.—A.D. 231.

A MUCH mutilated return for the census next following that to which the last two documents related, in the 9th year of Severus Alexander [=A.D. 229–30]. The actual date is lost, but is recoverable through the fact that Dioscorous, whose age at the previous census was thirty, is now stated to be forty-four (l. 14). The return includes her and her husband, Theognostus, but the details as to the dwelling in respect of which they make the return are lost. It is dated in Pachon [= May], no doubt of the following year.

1. γραμματεὺς: presumably for γραμματεῖσι. The γραμματεῖς πολεως appear frequently as the officials to whom census-returns were addressed; cf. introd. to Pap. 935.

5. Μασκουλειν: this must be the name of the prefect in A.D. 229–30, which has not hitherto been known. In the 11th year (231–2) Maevius Honoratianus had succeeded (CIG. 4705). No doubt, as Dr. Grenfell points out, he is identical with the Masculinus mentioned in Amh. Pap. 67 (of about A.D. 232). The ν is mutilated, and might be ο, but the Amherst papyrus no doubt gives the name rightly. The following words, which apparently contain another name and another reference to the prefect, depart from the usual formula.

19-21. The writing of Theognostus is a rough and thick uncial, showing that he had little acquaintance with the art of writing.

2. Taxation.

PAPYRUS 909 b.—A. D. 143-144.

THE poll-tax, which naturally takes its place after the census-returns, is represented in this volume by six certificates. All, so far as they go, support the conclusion arrived at in vol. ii (pp. 20, 53) that the normal amount of this tax in the Fayum was 20 drachmas per annum. It is only to the Fayum, however, that this rule applies; for Wilcken's ostraka show different rates for Thebes and other places, and variations in the same place at different times (Gr. Ostr. I. 231 ff.).

The first of these certificates in point of date records the payment of poll-tax for the 7th year of Antoninus Pius to the amount of 20 drachmas, with a supplementary charge of the usual amount of 10 obols. The papyrus is much injured by rubbing.

5. Φρεμει: in Arsinoë, cf. Pap. 336, note on l. 6; Wessely, Die Stadt Arsinoë, p. 36.

8. οβ̃ δεκα: the regular amount of προσδιαγραφόμενα in connexion with the poll-tax; cf. Papp. 170, l. 6, 340, ll. 3, 4, 912 a, l. 6. In the total which follows no notice is taken of this item.

PAPYRUS 912 a.—A.D. 149.

THIS document and Pap. 912 b are two tax-certificates granted to the same person, Harpalus son of Onesimus and Soëris, for poll-tax (20 drachmas) and the προσδιαγραφόμενα (10 obols). The formula is substantially the same as usual. Both are written very cursively, and leave a good deal to conjecture. This is especially the case with 912 b, of which nothing but the name and the amount of the tax is really legible; the year is lost in a lacuna.

3. The readings of this line, especially between the two occurrences of the word Επειφ, are very doubtful, owing to the cursiveness of the writing.

5. λαο: the characters as written resemble ζκο, but some examples in the Tebtunis papyri, which Dr. Hunt has been kind enough to copy, seem to justify our interpreting them as λαο, which is what the sense requires.

PAPYRUS 1234.—A.D. 170.

A MUCH mutilated receipt for poll-tax, restorable where it follows the usual formula, but less certainly where, as in the last line, it contains some additional matter.

3. Μωρον: possibly Μακρου, but the second letter appears rather to be ω.

4. The word before L may be intended for δεκατου or ενδεκατου, but none of the letters are formed.

5. του: qu. του αϊτου.

6. Perhaps απόδος (or απεδόθη) τῷ δημοσίῳ σύμβολον καὶ τὸ χειρόγραφον.

PAPYRUS 845 a.—A.D. 177.

A CERTIFICATE of two tax-payments, of 4 and 16 drachmas respectively. The first is certainly for poll-tax, the second may be for that or for some other tax; but it is to be observed that the total of 20 drachmas precisely suits the λαογραφία.

1. Αυληριων: a not uncommon misspelling: cf. Papp. 168, l. 19, 338, l. 25, 1234, l. 1. It is impossible to be certain whether the termination is meant to be ων or ου, but the former is in accordance with the usual formula.

8. Presumably a date is missing at the beginning of this line, or, less probably, the name of another tax.

9. It is doubtful whether the horizontal stroke after ις is the symbol for 1 obol or merely a flourish; but in the former case one would have expected it also to occur in the preceding lacuna, and for that there is no room.

PAPYRUS 845 b.—A.D. 185.

CERTIFICATE of the payment of poll-tax, probably at the rate of 20 drachmas, to the πράκτωρ ἀργυρικῶν of Memphis. Appended to this is a certificate of a tax-payment of uncertain character, to the amount of 7 drachmas, made in Socnopaei Nesus three years later. There is nothing to show how these two certificates, of such different dates, came to be written on the same sheet of papyrus.

3. Μεμφεως: the mention of Socnopaei Nesus in the next entry shows that this is the village of Memphis in the Fayum, not the great town of the name.

4. The amount paid is not quite certain, but the first two letters may have been ει. The figure at the end may be κ, but may also be ι followed by another letter.

6. The name is apparently the same as in Pap. 844, l. 2.

μεδ.: perhaps = μέ(τροφ) δρ(όμου), though one would rather expect the name of the tax. If this conjecture is correct, the tax must be the same as that which precedes, viz. the λαογραφία.

PAPYRUS 1216.—A.D. 192.

ANOTHER poll-tax certificate from the same village of Memphis, for two instalments of the tax, amounting in all to 11 dr. 4 obols.

3. Αθυρ ιε : the ink is very faint and the reading doubtful, except the ρ and ι.

PAPYRUS 1235.—A. D. 176-177.

THIS papyrus contains two certificates of the payment of taxes, unfortunately much mutilated. The one tax which is certainly mentioned is the ἐπιστατικὸν ἱερέων, a tax paid by priests (cf. Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 366, and the papyri quoted below); the φόρος βωμῶν is probably mentioned, which was likewise a tax paid by priests; and in the light of this evidence it is possible that the tax which stands first in both certificates, and the name of which is wholly lost, is the λαογραφία, which occurs in conjunction with the φόρος βωμῶν in Pap. 460 and with the ἐπιστατικόν in Fayum Towns Pap. 51, the latter being a document similar in formula to this. The amount paid for λαογραφία, if that is the tax in question, is 16 drachmas, but it is impossible to say whether this was the whole amount due (in which case the priests who paid poll-tax did so at a lower rate than other inhabitants of the Fayum), or is merely an instalment. As payments are also made for the previous years, the latter is perhaps the more probable explanation.

4. For the readings at the end of the line cf. l. 10; and for the position of $\Theta\epsilon\alpha\delta\epsilon\lambda(\phi\epsilon\acute{\iota}\alpha\varsigma)$ cf. Fayum Towns Pap. 51.

6. The letters before δι do not seem to be προσ. Possibly ἐπὲρ δι(πλῶν), since Dr. Grenfell states that this tax occurs in connexion with λαογραφία in Tebtunis papyri of the Roman Period. It occurs also in ostraka (Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 179), but its meaning is at present obscure.

$\phi\acute{o}(\rho\omicron\varsigma)$ $\beta\omega(\mu\hat{\omega}\nu)$ occurs in Papp. 460, 478, BGU. 199, 337, as a tax paid by priests, and may probably be restored here.

7. ἐπιστ(ατικὸν) ἱερῶν: cf. Papp. 347 (where ἐπιστ is to be read in l. 15), 352, BGU. 337, 471, Fayum Towns Papp. 42 a, 51.

12. αλκε: possibly = ἄλ(λο) κε (sc. 25 drachmas), but it is all written continuously.

PAPYRUS 1265 a-f.

A GROUP of customs receipts follows here, fourteen in number (Papp. 1265 a-f, 1266 a-g, and 922 a). For a discussion of this class of documents, see Grenfell and Hunt, Fayum Towns, pp. 195-200, which summarizes and supersedes previous discussions. Of the present group, seven are receipts for the tax known as $\rho' \text{ καὶ } \nu'$ (1 per cent. + 2 per cent.), three are for λιμένος Μέμφεως, and three for ἐρημοφυλακία, while one (1265 a) is indeterminate. Some noteworthy variations in the initial words of the formula occur in 1265 a-d, 1266 a-c. For some fresh evidence as to the methods on which the tax was levied, see the introductions to the registers which follow, Papp. 929 and 1169.

6. There are remains of a light-coloured clay seal. The upper part of the field has a small head, facing to r., with Λ and β on either side of it. In the lower part is an inscription, of which the letters [αντ]οκρατορ [Καισ]αρος [Δομιτ]ιαν remain.

(b) A counterpart of the preceding receipt, but with the tax (λιμένος Μέμφεως) specified. In Fay. Papp. 73 and 74, which are a similar pair, one is for $\rho' \text{ καὶ } \nu'$ and the other for λιμένος Μέμφεως.

1. τετελωνιται: this reading (l. τετελώνηται) is confirmed by δ, l. 1, and ε, l. 1, all perhaps by the same hand. It confirms Wilcken's correction (based upon papyri at Heidelberg and Berlin) of Grenfell and Hunt's Greek Pap. II. 50, f. (2), where τετελωνηται should be read instead of τετελεσται (Archiv, II. 134, III. 123). It is to be observed that the Berlin papyri also have the misspelling τετελωνιται.

5. απο Αρεως: the second word is doubtful, but απο in any case implies that a place of origin is given, which is a new feature. An *Αρεως κόμη is mentioned in Fayum Towns, Ostr. 34, and in some of the Tebtunis papyri.

7. σπαθια εξ: this is the regular load for a camel, see δ, ll. 5, 6, ε, ll. 4, 5. As an ass carried 4 κεράμια (see Pap. 1169, l. 73 and introd.), and a camel's load was usually twice that of an ass, we may perhaps conclude that 3 σπάθια = 4 κεράμια.

CUSTOMS-RECEIPTS, of the pattern represented in the preceding group of documents, are fairly numerous; but texts of the kind here following have hitherto only been represented by the latter part of Amherst Pap. 77. It consists of a portion of a register, evidently kept at a customs-station, of laden animals passing through it, either inwards or outwards. The latter is by far the most common, 63 entries out of 72 being of this class. The papyrus contains three columns, and ranges from the 22nd Phamenoth to the 22nd Pachon; but neither beginning nor end is preserved, so that we know neither the exact year nor the place nor the description of customs to which it relates. With regard to the latter, however, something may be conjectured. The entries uniformly give four facts: the name of the person passing through, the direction in which he is going (inwards or outwards), the character of the merchandise carried, and (in the case of export) the number and description of the beasts of burden. E.g. Μέλας ἐξάγων ἐλαίου καμήλους γ̄, Σώτας ἐξάγων πυροῦ καμήλους γ̄, ὄνον ᾱ, Πόσις εἰσάγων οἴνου κεράμια ιβ̄. The fact that the character of the merchandise is always mentioned shows that the toll was not levied only on the animals; and the fact that the number of the animals is always mentioned shows that the toll was reckoned according to that number (the load of a camel or an ass being reckoned at so much, according to the nature of the load), and not by the actual weight of the merchandise, which could only be ascertained by unloading all the animals.

There is nothing to show to which of the three classes of customs (cf. vol. ii. p. 83, Fayum Towns, p. 196) this register relates, but there is no reason why it should not apply to all. It is simply a register of the number of animals passing the toll-gate, and from the data here given the amounts of the several charges due upon them could readily be calculated. The only obscurity is in connexion with the imports. Here the formula varies. The amount of the merchandise, which is never mentioned in the case of exports, is here never omitted; while the number and character of the beasts of burden, which are never omitted in the case of exports, are here mentioned in only four instances out of eight (and in two of these the animals are themselves the subject of the tax), one (l. 66) being doubtful. The scanty examples of tax-receipts for imports (only 9 out of 82 customs-receipts hitherto published, two of which relate to the same transaction) nearly harmonize with this evidence. In three instances (Brit. Mus. Papp. 316 b and 1266 d and Greek Papyri, II. 50 f. (2)) the amount of merchandise alone is specified; in four (Fayum Papp. 73 + 74, B. M. Pap. 1266 a-c), the amount of merchandise and the number of animals; in one (Greek Papyri II. 50 a), the number of animals alone. In the latter case (the only exception to the rule that the merchandise is always specified) the animal is so minutely described (κάμηλον θήλειαν λευκήν δευτεροβόλον κεχαραγμένην Ἀραβικοῖς χαράγμασι) that one is tempted to believe that it was itself the article of merchandise; and this seems to be confirmed by the mention in the present document of the import of a κάμηλος θήλεια ὑποτελής (l. 33, cf. l. 67). Otherwise it must simply be an oversight. It is clear, then, that the toll on imports was reckoned in a different manner from that on exports; and this may possibly be due to the different character of the goods imported (chiefly wine, which would be carried in receptacles of known capacity), which rendered it easy to calculate the amount without unloading the animals.

The great preponderance of entries relating to exports, both in the receipts themselves and in this register, shows that the export trade of the Fayum in excisable goods (among which corn largely predominates) far exceeded its imports. It is also clear that unloaded animals paid no toll, since no notice is taken in the register of the return of any of the animals carrying the exports.

23. σχοι' σεβεννι': it is not at all clear what this can mean. The termination of the first word is doubtful, and it may be read as σχον with an abbreviated termination. The σ at the beginning of the next word may have been struck out, converting it into εβεννι(ά?).

30. σφυρι^δ καλλαει': cf. l. 50. Probably = σφυρίδας καλλαῖνον, sc. κεράμου, καλλάινος κέραμος occurring in the Etym. Magn. (486, 51) as an Egyptian species of pottery. It does not seem possible to interpret καλλάινος as an epithet of σφυρίδας. σφυρίς is said in Liddell and Scott to be an Attic spelling, but it is habitual in the papyri; cf. B. M. Pap. 190, BGU. 247, 814, Oxy. Papp. 116, 519, 741, Fayum Towns Pap. 102.

PAPYRUS 1169.—2nd cent.

THE conclusions arrived at in connexion with the preceding papyrus on the subject of the excise duties are explicitly confirmed by the present document. This, like the last, is a record of merchandise passing the customs-house of an unnamed village, but it has the advantage of enumerating in almost every instance the character and number of the animals, the character and quantity of the merchandise, and the amount of the tax. From this evidence two conclusions are at once established: first that the tax was levied on the merchandise, not on the animals, and secondly that an animal's load was constant, so that the amount of merchandise could be reckoned by counting the animals. (It would, no doubt, be the duty of an inspector to see that no fraud was practised in this respect.) Thus, when the commodity was oil, an ass carried two metretae, a camel four, and the charge was 4 dr. 1 obol per metretes, or 8 dr. 2 obols for an ass, and 16 dr. 4 obols for a camel. But when the commodity was salt (ll. 27-30), the charge for a camel's load was only 8 drachmae, and in the case of dates the charge for a donkey-load is 2 dr. 4 obols. In the case of wine (l. 73), where the unit of measurement, as usual, is the κεράμιον, the same charge of 2 dr. 4 obols is made for four κεράμια, the animal, though not specified, being probably an ass. The same charge is made for four κεράμια of olives (ll. 41, 42).

The account, as here printed, which is furnished by one Pabous, son of Satabous (l. 102), ranges from the beginning of Athur to the end of Mecheir; but Pabous' duties were shared by another official, named Hermes, who kept his account separately, so that for the days when Hermes was on duty we have no record. At the end of each month the total of the receipts is stated and a sum (at the rate of 16 dr. a month) is deducted for the wages of a policeman (Ἀραβοτοξότης), under whose charge the balance is sent in to headquarters. Where those headquarters were, or what the village was at which the tax was levied, or which of the various kinds of customs-duties is in question, is not stated. The account is imperfect at the beginning.

29, 30. For similar entries, see ll. 45-48. In each case the merchandise in question is an import, and reference is made to an earlier date, but the point of it is obscure. With regard to the readings, καθως απεσχε appears to be the reading here, but in the two other passages it is certainly καθ ην εσχε. The following word is doubtful, but in l. 45, where it is best preserved, it appears to be παραγω^τ, i. e. παράγων. It might, however, possibly be παραγρ^ρ, i. e. παρά γραμματέως.

41. In the case of olives the animals are not specified, but it is fairly safe to conclude that the 4 κεράμια, charged at 2 dr. 4 ob., are an ass-load. An ass-load of dates is charged at this rate in l. 50.

46. της ιᾱ: this carrier has been mentioned on the 11th as exporting 4 κεράμια of olives, but the 8 κεράμια of wine now under notice can have no connexion with that. Similarly in regard to ll. 47, 48, Archelas has been mentioned on the 12th as exporting oil, but this has no obvious connexion with his import of 4 κεράμια of wine.

48. κεραμ(ια) δ: the amount is obtainable from l. 73. Wine was normally reckoned by the κεράμιον (cf. Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 759 f.). Four κεράμια (= 32 χόες) would be a quantity rather larger than two μετρηταί of oil (= 24 χόες), but probably not sufficiently so to be more than the load of one donkey. It is odd that in the case of wine and olives the quantity is mentioned, but not the animals; in that of salt and dates the animals are specified, but not the quantity; while in the case of oil, which is much the commonest, both are specified.

57. β̄ is corrected from δ; an ass-load is regularly 2 μετρηταί, except in l. 66, q. v.

66. ονω α σκευοφορω: presumably this means that the ass was carrying other baggage, not liable to excise, as well as oil; hence its load of oil is only 1 metretes instead of the usual two. Similarly in Pap. 307 an ὄνος σκευοφόρος is entered as carrying 1 artaba (of wheat?), whereas elsewhere an ass carries 1 artaba of wheat and a metretes of oil (Grenfell and Hunt, Greek Papyri II. 50 e), or 3 artabas of lupines (B. M. Pap. 964), ὄσπρεον (ib., 50 h) or ὄροβος (B. M. Pap. 206 d), or even 4 artabas of ὄσπρεον (Gr. Pap. II. 50 l).

PAPYRUS 1107.—3rd cent.

THE following document, which, being numbered οδ (=74), must be part of a large series of rolls, contains a register of payments made by various villages in respect of the customs tax known as λιμένος Μέμφεως, together with two other charges, hitherto unknown, called ἐπιστατεία and πέμπτη. The nature of the tax λιμένος Μέμφεως is discussed by Grenfell and Hunt and by Wilcken, in the works cited above, in connexion with the taxes ἐρημοφυλακία and ρ' καὶ ν'; but neither of the two latter occurs in the present document. Each entry consists of the name of a village, all in the Themistes division of the Fayum and arranged in alphabetical order, which is followed by the words λιμένος Μέμφεως with a sum of money, varying in the different entries, though in three cases it is the same, and, on another line, by the words ἐπιστατείας καὶ πέμπτης, also with a sum of money. It is noteworthy that while in the case of the customs-receipts hitherto published, where the λιμένος Μέμφεως occurs, the places named are border villages on the north and east of the Fayum, the tax being paid before or after the journey across the desert, in this papyrus on the contrary the villages are all to be placed within the Fayum itself, and in the division of it which is furthest to the west. It is possible that this points back to a time when the villages here named stood on the western and southern borders of Lake Moeris, while Socnopaei Nesus, Bacchias, Karanis, and Philadelphia were on its northern and eastern borders.

For what is known of the villages here named, reference may be made to Wessely's Topographie des Faijûm.

2. το καταπρακτορευθεν: if this is the true restoration, the word is new, and equivalent in sense to τὸ εἰσπραχθέν. πρακτορεύειν occurs in Brit. Mus. Papp. 255, 306 (vol. ii. pp. 118, 119). At the beginning of the line it is impossible to read εκαστων, the remains of the letter before των being irreconcilable with σ.

5. ἐπιστατείας και πεμπτης: neither of these taxes seems to occur elsewhere. A tax known as ἐπιστατικόν (cf. Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 366) occurs not infrequently, but it appears to be connected specially with the priesthood, and ἐπιστατεία here can hardly be explained by it. Possibly επισ () in Tebt. Pap. 97 should be restored ἐπιστατεία rather than ἐπιστατικόν.

	Four mutilated lines.

Beginnings of a second column are visible, relating to other matters.

10 Αλεξανδρου Νησου: the name of this village, and its neighbourhood (see Wessely, op. cit., p. 33) to Βερνικίς Αιγιάλοῦ, tend to confirm the suggestion made above, that the villages named in this list were once on the borders of Lake Moeris.

16. μζ: this appears to be the reading, but if it is correct the proportion between the λιμένος Μέμφεως tax and that for ἐπιστατεία καὶ πέμπτη is different here from what it is in the preceding instances (cf. ll. 22–24).

18. The total is recoverable from the grand total in l. 25; but χ^ο must be an error, for it is not required either by the grand total or by the items in ll. 16, 17. The number of drachmas in the items must be either 147 and 53, or 47 and 153. There is a slight trace which suggests that the ρ belonged to l. 17.

19. πο': should be π—ο', in order to suit the total.

26. εις το μη ελθειν: the meaning of this phrase, if it is correctly restored, is not clear. It is impossible to read μηνιαιον, which would seem naturally more likely; but perhaps ελ is rather too much for the space (a fold in the papyrus), which contains only κ in the next line.

PAPYRUS 85I.—A.D. 216–219.

A LONG strip of papyrus, only a few inches in height, containing a series of receipts given to Aquis or Apcuis, a shepherd and lessee of sheep (μισθωτῆς προβάτων). Four of the receipts are from Aurelius Hermias, strategus of Alexandria, and relate to sums of money paid to him from the φόρος προβάτων for various purposes. In the last (l. 43) he is described as γενόμενος στρατηγός, his term of office having expired. The first receipt is dated in Pauni of the 24th year of Caracalla, and the last in Epeiph of the 2nd year of Elagabalus, just three years later; the roll, however, is not composed of a number of originally separate documents joined together subsequently, as not infrequently happens. The writing in nearly every case crosses the junction of the κολλήματα, so that Apcuīs must have kept the roll by him and had the various entries made in it from time to time. Each receipt is written in a different hand, so that the whole roll supplies an instructive series of practically contemporary hands. The beginning of the roll is wanting, so it is impossible to say how much earlier it originally began.

12. Apias and Senthis occur in the same documents, Fayum Towns Papp. 102, 112, but not, as here and as in l. 47, as if they formed a single village. How the strategus of Alexandria came to have a claim on the proceeds of the φόρος προβάτων in the Fayum, does not appear; but that they formed a separate account is shown by Pap. 255 (cf. Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 286).

Ακουιτος: l. Ακουιτει. In l. 20 the name appears as Απκουιs, and so also in Pap. 855 a, while in l. 53 it is Κουιs, a name which recurs in Pap. 848 verso.

14. προβατου κ.τ.λ.: l. προβατων, εις λογον οικοδομου.

25. (ἔτους) α': this must be the first year of Macrinus, to whose reign also belong the dates in ll. 28-36, from Mecheir to Epeiph in the second year. The first year of Elagabalus only lasted from June to August, A.D. 218, and is not represented in this series of receipts, ll. 37-41 being dated in Athur of his second year.

26, 27. These two lines are in a different, half-uncial, hand.

30. πραβατων: so MS. The letters after βL appear to be παι^δ οτ μι^δ, perhaps a proper name.

35. Επειφ α⁻: at this date (June 25, A.D. 218) Macrinus had already been dead about a fortnight, but the news evidently had not reached Egypt.

42-51. This receipt is written in a very illiterate hand, which accounts for the many errors in it. Cases are apparently of no consideration.

53-62. This column is separated by a column's width (4½ in.) of blank papyrus from the preceding receipt. Each of the three receipts in this column is in a different hand.

PAPYRUS 855 a.—circ. A.D. 216.

THE following receipt relates to the same person as the preceding document, the shepherd Apcuis, and may consequently be assigned to about the same date. It is an extract from the official records of the πράκτορες σιτικῶν of the village of Apias, and records some payments, the details of which are lost through the mutilation of the papyrus. It is written in red ink.

THIS document and the following are certificates of the usual form given by σιτολόγοι for amounts of wheat received by them in the state granaries. The name of the village is doubtful in one case and wholly lost in the other. On these certificates see vol. II. p. 88, Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 655, 658, Grenfell and Hunt, Fayum Towns, p. 208 ff., Rostowzew in Archiv für Papyrusforschung III. 208, 215 ff.

4. οἱ: = οἱ μέτοχοι.

Εσταο^λ: the reading, both here and in l. 7, is not certain; but it does not seem possible to read the conclusion as πο^λ.

5. ξυστ(ῶ): the reading is fairly clear here, and that this (not ξεστῶ, which can be equally well read in many cases) is the true phrase is now generally agreed. Cf. Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 769 note, Fayum Towns, p. 212 note.

PAPYRUS 1239.—A.D. 278-281.

THE heading of this document is lost, but it is evidently a register of amounts of wheat received by the δεκάπρωτοι. It is dated in the reign of Probus, and, as the endorsement informs us, relates to the fourth, fifth, and sixth years of that emperor. It relates to the toparchy of Mocheites in the Hermopolite nome, a locality recently made known to us by the papyri published by M. Th. Reinach (cf. notes on ll. 7, 14).

2. δοχικω: sc. μετρω, cf. BGU. 552, 557, 743, 744, 807, Amherst Pap. 87. All these papyri are from Hermopolis (cf. note on Amh. Pap. 68, l. 5), and the present papyrus is shown to belong to the same nome by the place names in ll. 7-9, 14. The δοχικόν standard, however, is also mentioned in the Tebtunis papyri (cf. Tebt. Papp. 11, ll. 6, 13; 61 b, l. 390; 72, l. 395). It is there evidently used as the official standard, and is identified by Grenfell, Hunt, and Smyly with the artaba of 36 choenices (see esp. pp. 44, 232). Dr. Grenfell states that it is also found commonly in the Hibeh papyri, from the Oxyrhynchite and Heracleopolite nomes.

7. Κίρκα: cf. l. 19. The names in these five lines are those of villages. Κίρκα is known as the name of a village in the Hermopolite nome from Pap. Reinach 17, l. 1, and Πέννη from Amh. Pap. 141, l. 4. Δέγχων (the reading of which is doubtful) is unknown.

13. Ψωβθ . . ερεως: apparently a personal name, being followed by the title δεκα(πρώτου).

14. Μωχειτου: sc. τοπου, cf. Papp. Reinach passim. Each τοπαρχία ordinarily had two δεκάπρωτοι (Preisigke, Städtisches Beamtenwesen, p. 24), who in the third century take the place of the earlier σιτολόγοι (Fayum Towns, p. 215).

27. Besides the date, and at right angles to it, the verso contains five mutilated lines of writing in the same hand as the recto, and apparently of the same nature.

PAPYRUS 944.—A.D. 228 and 233.

A LONG strip of papyrus, on a small part of which two receipts have been written in different years and by different hands. The first, which covers two payments, does not appear to be for a tax at all. The second records a payment for the annona by Theognostus-Morus, whose name meets us on many other papyri in this volume (see above, p. 29). On the annona, see Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 155.

PAPYRUS 847.—A.D. 170.

CERTIFICATE from the elders of Socnopaei Nesus and (apparently) another village of the receipt of 80 drachmas in respect of the tax on the harvesting of hay and other miscellaneous crops (if that is the meaning of μονοδεσμία χόρτου καὶ ἄλλων εἰδῶν).

8. Apparently the word at the end of the line must be the name of a village, but none of the familiar names of the Fayum seems to fit the remains.

10. υπερ̄ μονοδεσ(μιας) χορτ(ου) και αλλ(ων) ειδ(ων): the regular formula. Cf. Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 383, Fayum Pap. 34, Amherst Pap. 121. The abbreviation αλλειδ̄ (written as one word, continuously ligatured) is noticeable. Wilcken expressly refrains from any explanation of the term μονοδεσμία, and especially the element μονο-. As a pure conjecture it may be suggested that it refers to the hay being done up in single sheaves (like corn), instead of cocks or ricks, the tax being reckoned upon the number of sheaves. ἄλλων εἰδῶν is so regularly used in this combination that it must mean other miscellaneous crops which are reckoned along with hay, not miscellaneous taxes in general.

PAPYRUS 844.—A.D. 174.

THIS papyrus contains a certificate from the πράκτορες ἀργυρικῶν of Socnopaei Nesus of the payment by a certain Stotoëtis of various instalments of several taxes, including the συντάξιμον, ὀψώνιον, μαγδωλοφυλάκων, δεσμοφυλακία, μερισμὸς θηρίων (?), ποταμοφυλακία, (μερισμὸς) ἀπόροις (?), and χωματικόν. Similar certificates, relating to most of these taxes and some others, are included among the papyri published by Messrs. Grenfell and Hunt in Fayum Towns and their Papyri (1900); see notes below.

2. Στοτοη(τις) Στοτοη(τιος) του Ιεροπαουτος: cf. Pap. 845 b, l. 6.

3. συνταξιμου: this tax occurs in Fayum Papp. 45, 53, 54, and this, not συντάξεως, is no doubt the proper expansion of συντᾶ in Brit. Mus. Pap. 181 b, l. 18. As here, the amounts named there are multiples of 4 drachmas. Also the total amount here paid, 44 dr. 6 obols, corresponds exactly with the totals in Fay. Papp. 45 and 53, which shows that the amount of this tax remained unaltered from the time of Augustus to that of Marcus Aurelius.

5. δι: probably διπλῶν, as Dr. Grenfell suggests, an unknown tax of small amount (cf. Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 179).

και ποτ̄ φυλ: in Fay. Pap. 54, l. 17, is a payment for ποτ̄, and in Fay. Pap. 317 ποτ̄ is preceded by a word which the editors doubtfully read as ἐπιστ(ατικοῦ). It is not possible to read that here, but the addition of φυλ confirms the explanation of the tax given by Grenfell and Hunt, as a payment for ποταμοφυλακία or -φύλακες.

δεσμοφυλακ(ων): or δεσμοφυλακ(ιας), cf. Fay. Papp. 53, l. 6, 54, l. 17.

οψ° μαγδωλ φυλ: the explanation of this is given by Fay. Pap. 54 and a Tebtunis tax-receipt mentioned in the note on l. 13 of that document. It stands for ὀψωνίου μαγδωλοφυλάκων, the pay of the guardians of the watch-towers.

6. μερισμ̄ θηριων: the Fayum Papyri 53 and 54 include payments on account of μερισμός (or ἐπιμερισμός) ἀπόρων, but it is not possible to read ἀπόρων here. Θηριων is fairly certain, but the nature of the tax must remain doubtful. Payments for ἄποροι occur below, ll. 7, 8.

9. υπερ χωμ̄: 6 dr. 4 ob. is the regular payment for χωματικόν, cf. vol. II, p. 107. The present text explains BGU. 359, where the amount is given as 7 dr. 4 ob. 2 ch., which is precisely the amount here arrived at by the addition of the προσδιαγραφόμενα.

PAPYRUS 925.—A. D. 197-198.

THIS sheet of papyrus contains two certificates, written in successive years, of the payment of the τελέσματα for the preceding year by a woman named Dionysarion to the πράκτορες ἀργυρικῶν of the village of Hephaestias. In the first certificate, which bears dates equivalent to Jan. 20, Feb. 12, and March 4, A. D. 197, Septimius Severus is sole emperor; in the second, dated July 7, A. D. 198, Caracalla appears as joint emperor.

CERTIFICATE from the πράκτορες ἀργυρικῶν of Socnopaei Nesus of payments in respect of φόρος νομῶν, and perhaps of other taxes; but the mutilation of the papyrus leaves several details obscure.

5. Παιδκερβατηει: or Παιδκερκετηει, apparently a place-name. Dr. Hunt suggests that παιδ may stand for πεδ(ίων), when the name itself will have the common beginning Κερκ-. The characters read as ει may be only a flourish marking abbreviation.

7. / μ: the reading is fairly certain, but how it is arrived at is not clear, as only one entry of 20 drachmas has preceded it.

PAPYRUS 1232.—A. D. 210.

THE two following documents are certificates given by the πράκτορες ἀργυρικῶν of Socnopaei Nesus in two successive years of monthly payments in respect of receipts from the village (ὑπὲρ λημμάτων κώμης) for the year preceding. The earlier document is much mutilated, and can only be restored from the second. In the second, where only one person is named as making the payments, the amounts are 10 drachmae a month; in the first, where two persons seem to be concerned, the amounts are 20 drachmae. As the payments are said to be ὑπὲρ λημμάτων κώμης, it is probable that the persons named are not the actual tax-payers, but middlemen of some kind, perhaps elders (πρεσβύτεροι) of the village.

The constant substitution of ν for οι in the phrase ὅ αὐτοὶ is noteworthy.

8. Ἀπολλῶς: there is a small lacuna at the end of the preceding line, in which it might be possible to read κ₁; but as only one tax-payer seems to be named throughout this document, it is preferable to regard Ἀπολλῶς as intended for the genitive.

22. From this point the text is continued for eight more lines in a fainter ink, but is so much defaced and mutilated as not to be worth transcribing.

PAPYRUS 966.—3rd-4th cent.

THIS papyrus relates to the impost known as στέφανος or στεφανικόν, but in its mutilated state it raises more problems than it solves. A document published by Messrs. Grenfell and Hunt (Fayum Towns Pap. 20) contains an edict for the remission of this tax throughout the empire, which is probably to be assigned to the reign of Julian (see Dessau, Revue de Philologie, 1901, p. 285 ff.). The present document is undated, but its handwriting suggests the period of Diocletian. The aurum coronarium was consequently still in existence at that date. Its existence in the fourth century was known previously; but in the present document it appears in a new phrase, as στεφανικὸν πενταετηρίδος, which suggests that it had now been systematically established on a five-year basis. Originally a (nominally) free gift from the people to the sovereign at the time of his accession, it was first extended to various special occasions, and under Elagabalus was made annual (cf. vol. ii. p. 108). The present text appears to indicate that, at some later period, it was made a quinquennial tax; and such it may have remained until its remission by Julian. Reference is made to previous στεφανικά, the payments for which were presumably in arrears. It is observable that the amounts payable are reckoned by weight, not in coined money.

2. γρ: sc. γράμματα. This weight (= $\frac{1}{24}$ οὐγκία) occurs very rarely in papyri; but cf. BGU. 781.

3. ταξέως ε': the meaning of this phrase is obscure; judging from l. 14 it applies to what follows, not to what precedes it.

7. οδ: apparently the abbreviation for δ αὐτός, inserted after the rest of the line had been written.

S': the symbol for κεράτιον appears in three rather different forms here and in ll. 8 and 11. In l. 11 the curved stroke is replaced by a straight line.

13-15. Apparently the symbol for κεράτιον should precede the last figure in each of these lines, as in ll. 7, 8, 11.

PAPYRUS 84I a.—A.D. 139.

THE four certificates which follow, relating to the labour on the embankments which was one of the perennial taxes in Egypt, follow the pattern of many that have been previously published; see especially vol. ii. p. 103, Grenfell and Hunt, Fayum Towns, p. 204, Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 333. A full list of them is given by Wessely, Karanis und Soknopaiu Nesos, p. 8.

THESE two certificates apply to the same person, a woman, Tinutis, also called Asclepias. The first is for the payment of ναύβιον and (apparently) a previously unknown tax called βουκολικόν. The second is much mutilated, but has likewise a reference to βουκολικόν. It is not, however, in the ordinary form of a tax-receipt, and it is countersigned by the official in charge of the καταλοχισμοί (cf. Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 346).

3. βου³: presumably the same as βουκολικόν in 1217 b, l. 4, a tax on herdsmen, which has not previously been known, but is quite in accordance with the Egyptian system of taxes on all professions and occupations. For κλε υθ no suitable explanation suggests itself, unless κλε may be regarded as an error for κλη= κλήρου. That κλήροι were distinguished by numbers appears, e.g., in the receipts for advances of seed-corn (Goodspeed, Papyri from Karanis, and elsewhere). The whole phrase is apparently repeated in still more abbreviated form in l. 6.

ναύβιου: on this tax, the nature of which is not yet fully explained, cf. Grenfell and Hunt, Oxy. Pap. ii. p. 297.

PAPYRUS 1157.—A.D. 197-198(?).

THIS papyrus is a register of receipts in respect of certain taxes in the sixth year of an unnamed emperor. It covers a period of ten months, from the middle of Phaophi to the middle of Mesoré (where it breaks off incomplete), and is divided into monthly sections, at the end of each of which a summary is given. The sections, however, do not correspond to the calendar months, but run from the 18th of one month to the 17th of the next (cf. ll. 5, 104, 123, where the 17th occurs at the end of a section, and ll. 50, 109, where the 18th stands at the beginning of one). Each section is again divided into two parts, according to the taxes with which it deals. The first part, to which is prefixed the general heading of ἀρίθμησις, contains several taxes which are classed as γνήσια τέλη, the most usual being the ναύβιον, τέλοςμα (or -ατα) ἀμπέλων, τέλοςμα (or -ατα) παραδείσων, and a hitherto unknown tax, described as ζευγματικόν or δραχμαὶ ζευγματικάί, or ἀργύριον ζευγματικόν (cf. note on l. 6); in addition, a charge for ναυκληρία is mentioned twice and one for τυραννικὰ ἐδάφη twice. The second part is almost wholly confined to one tax, indicated by the abbreviation B⁺, which is never extended. Almost the only known tax to which this abbreviation is suitable is the βαλανικόν, for which a large number of receipts exist among ostraka from Thebes (Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 165), which prove that it was an impost of considerable importance; but the whole register appears to relate to taxes upon land, and the one other tax which occurs once in this part of the accounts is the ἐπιβολὴ πηχισμού (l. 111), which, whatever is exactly meant by it, must be connected with a survey or measurement of areas. The point therefore awaits further elucidation. It might be interpreted as βασιλικῶν, if the γνήσια τέλη are taken as charges upon land other than crown land.

The account is evidently extracted from a larger register, to the κολλήματα of which references are regularly made. The numbers of these κολλήματα are often high, in one case (l. 104) as high as 188, so that the register must have been a large one; and as the figures recommence with each month, it was evidently arranged on the same monthly system as this. Possibly it was a general account of all receipts, from which the receipts for certain special taxes are here extracted; but perhaps more probably it was a register relating to a larger district, from which the items relating to Alabastriné are taken.

With regard to the date, a terminus ante quem is provided by a document which has been subsequently written on the blank space preceding the first column, and which is dated in the ninth year of Severus Alexander. The sixth year to which the papyrus relates can, therefore, at latest be that of the same emperor, = A. D. 226–227. The only alternative is the sixth year of Septimius Severus, = A. D. 197–198; that of Marcus Aurelius (A. D. 165–166) would be too early for the handwriting. Between these two dates the choice is uncertain. In favour of the earlier is the fact that the name Aurelius only occurs once throughout the list of names (Aurelius Heliodorus, ll. 52, 73); also the occurrence of the name Philantinous (ll. 44, &c.), which is hardly likely to have been given to any one much later than A. D. 130, and consequently suits a man living in A. D. 197 better than one in A. D. 226. As against these considerations there is the fact that the office of δεκάπρωτος, which occurs here in ll. 5, 29, has not hitherto been found earlier than A. D. 247 (cf. note on l. 5); but in view of the scantiness of any mention of these officials hitherto, this cannot be regarded as decisive. At present therefore the balance of evidence points to the earlier date.

The locality to which the account relates is Alabastriné in the Hermopolite nome (cf. l. 1 and note), perhaps in the neighbourhood of the alabaster quarries of Het-nub.

5. δεκαπρωτος: cf. Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 626 ff. If the conclusion there adopted from Waddington were sound, that the δεκάπρωτοι were necessarily members of a βουλή, and consequently do not appear in Egypt before the third century, we should have a definite proof that the 6th year to which this papyrus belongs is that of Severus Alexander, not of Septimius Severus. But Fayum Towns Pap. 85 seems to prove that a δεκάπρωτος was not necessarily a βουλευτής. Cf. Preisigke, Städtisches Beamtenwesen im römischen Ägypten, p. 23 f. Hitherto, however, no instance of a δεκάπρωτος earlier than the third century has come to light.

6. ζευγ⁺: i.e. ζευγματικῶν, cf. l. 28; but the word does not occur elsewhere, and the α⁺ which often precedes it in this papyrus is obscure. In ll. 51, 67 δραχμ⁺ takes its place, but those entries are included in the total with those in which α⁺ occurs. Hence the latter may stand for ἀργυρίου, or, as Grenfell suggests, for 1 drachma. The payment would then be for sluices or bridges in the dykes, and consequently would naturally be associated with the ναύβιον, which seems also to be a charge connected with the construction of the dykes.

8. συμφωνος προς παραδοχ(ην): this formula is repeated at the end of each monthly summary, and presumably means that the amount named tallies with the receipts.

14. Αλεξανδρια: so MS., apparently, for Ἀλεξάνδρα. Φιλ^ο = Φιλορωμαία, cf. ll. 91, 142.

15. ταβουλ(αριος): apparently the earliest mention of this kind of official. Cf. Oxy. Pap. 123.

24. ν⁺: sc. ναυβίου.

25. χ: usually this stands for δεκάδαρχος, but in view of the fact that the person whom it here describes is repeatedly mentioned as making payments on behalf of others, it is preferable to interpret it as χειριστής. Cf. Oxy. Pap. 734, l. 3, where χ⁺ stands for this word.

υ(περ) ονο(ματων): in ll. 123-137 and 170-181 Philon makes payment on behalf of a number of people whose names are enumerated. Probably ὑπὲρ ὀνομάτων here and elsewhere takes the place of such an enumeration.

29. Πατεμιτ(ου) ανω: the name of a toparchy in the Hermopolite nome; cf. Amherst Pap. 107, l. 6.

111. ἐπιβολ(ης) πηχισμου: cf. l. 113. The phrase is new. πηχισμός is the technical term for the measurements which in contracts are attached to the properties in question (cf. Tebtunis Pap. 164), and it might be extended to cover payments for such measurements. Then ἐπιβολή πηχισμου may mean an additional charge for this purpose, or an allotment of such a charge. The amounts, however, are high, and the πηχισμός must be a general measurement or survey of some area, such as took place each year after the inundation. Cf. l. 152.

115. The items under the heading β⁺ amount to 1408, and evidently π^λ S ι here denotes the balance of 10 drachmas which is shown by the immediately preceding figures, 1418 dr. When the totals balance, the note σύμφωνος πρὸς παραδοχήν is attached. This cannot mean that the items are those of expenditure, which tally with the receipts, since the headings of the entries (ναυβίον, κ.τ.λ.) show that they are receipts for taxes; hence it must mean that the items in the account tally with the actual receipts. In the present case they do not exactly tally, the actual receipts exceeding the items of the register by 10 drachmas, cf. ll. 185-187.

After this line a cancelled passage of five lines contains a repetition of the totals already given in ll. 105-107 and 115.

184. S θ δ⁺: it is not clear to what this item (which stands rather apart from the rest) can relate. There is nothing corresponding in the items.

186. After παραδο^χ, παρα^δ has dropped out (unless it be read instead of προς in the lacuna before it), since the entry clearly relates to this tax. The payments due in respect of it amount to 1072 dr. (l. 184), the receipts to 972 dr.; hence there is a deficit (ζητούμεναι) of 100 dr. which has to be found somewhere; whereas under the heading of ζευγματικά there is a surplus of two drachmae.

209, 210. These lines are inclosed in a bracket, so as to cancel them, and are repeated at the head of the next column, of which only a few letters are left from the beginning of each line. The rest of the present column is occupied by writing in a hand of the third century, dated in the 4th year of an unnamed emperor.

PAPYRUS 933.—A. D. 211.

A RECEIPT for the tax on sales (l. 9 τὸν τοῦ ἐγκυκλίου λόγον, cf. Pap. 297 b, vol. II. p. 111) addressed to the νομάρχης of the Arsinoite nome. The payment is made in respect of an olive orchard, but the mutilation of the latter part of the papyrus leaves the details obscure.

3, 4. The name of Geta has been perfunctorily smeared out, without much affecting its legibility.

7. Απιων: Ι. Απιωνι. Aurelius Apion also appears as nomarch of the Arsinoite nome in BGU. 356, dated in December, A. D. 213; and he is presumably the Apion (not yet entitled to the name Aurelius) who was nomarch in A. D. 200-207 (BGU. 220, 221, 345, Fayum Pap. 88). That the whole Arsinoite nome had only one nomarch appears also from other papyri.

12. ελαιωνοπαρα^δ: apparently one word ελαιωνοπαράδεισος,

=an olive orchard. The nomarch appears also in Amherst Pap. 92 as the official concerned with the oil monopoly.

13. ειδο^λ: or επ. ολ.

14. κατα^λ: ι. ε. καταλογίου.

21. The usual rate of the ἐγκύκλιον was one-tenth (see above, p. 4), so that one would expect it to be 30 drachmae here; but, as Dr. Grenfell suggests, the phrase ἄχρι συντειμήσεως may refer to something unusual in the case.

3. Registers and miscellaneous official documents.

PAPYRUS 604.—A. D. 47.

THIS papyrus, which was originally purchased by Mr. D. G. Hogarth at Assouan, has had a rather peculiar history. It owes its present form to the writing on its verso. It consists actually of two distinct documents, which have been fastened together in such a way that the writing on the one runs in the opposite direction to that on the other. Thus the beginning of the document which we call A is in the middle of the roll of papyrus, the text of B being upside down in relation to it, and lying to the left of it. Neither document is complete, so much only being taken of each as was required for the text which now occupies the verso. This is in demotic, and contains a highly interesting and important Egyptian romance, which has been published in full, with a complete facsimile, by Mr. F. Ll. Griffith (Stories of the High Priests of Memphis, 1900).

The Greek texts are official documents relating to the land revenue and administration in the district of Crocodilopolis,—not the Crocodilopolis of the Fayum, which in Roman times was known as Arsinoë, but the smaller place of the same name in Upper Egypt, near the modern Gebelên. The first document, which we distinguish as A, is intact at the beginning, and therefore has both date and title. It is a return, made by the κωμογραμματεὺς of Crocodilopolis, of the arable land in his district which had been irrigated by the inundation of the Nile in the 7th year of the emperor Claudius. Such a return was necessary for revenue purposes, since only the irrigated land was fit for sowing, and it was only upon this that a full tax could be levied (cf. Pap. 350, vol. II. p. 192). This list accordingly gives the names of all the cultivators of the district, with the amount of irrigated land held by each exactly stated down to $\frac{1}{64}$ of an aroura.

The land is expressly stated (l. 6) to fall into three categories, βασιλική, ιερά, and ιδιωτική, as to the meaning of which there is no difficulty. In the register itself, however, the terminology is different. Three varieties of land are recognized (though of course not every cultivator has land of each of the three kinds), indicated by abbreviations or symbols β^{\perp} (or $\beta\alpha\sigma\iota^{\perp}$), $\alpha \frac{\circ}{\circ}$ (the \circ being usually a half-open circle attached to the α), and \mathfrak{d}^{-} . The first of these is of course $\gamma\eta$ βασιλική, the third is the regular symbol for the fraction $\frac{3}{4}$, and in the light of this the second can hardly be anything but the numeral 1 followed by the symbol for artaba; and this is confirmed by the occurrence in two passages (ll. 105, 107) of the symbol $\beta \frac{\circ}{\circ}$, formed in quite analogous fashion. The second and third categories, accordingly, are 'one-artaba land' and 'three-quarter (artaba) land,' with a couple of instances of 'two-artaba land.' These it is natural to connect with the tax of $\frac{1}{2}$, $\frac{3}{4}$, 1, or 2 artabas levied on various categories of land in the Tebtunis papyri, which Messrs. Grenfell, Hunt, and Smyly identify, with much probability, with the ἀρταβεία (cf. Tebtunis Papyri 5, ll. 15 (note) and 59 (note); 61 b, ll. 323–341 (note); 98 introd. and l. 27; and 99). That, like this, was a tax on land actually sown (Tebtunis Papyri 98, l. 27 $\tau\eta\varsigma \epsilon\nu \sigma\pi\acute{o}\rho\omega \dots \iota\epsilon\rho\acute{\alpha}\varsigma \gamma\eta\varsigma$), and was based on a survey (Tebtunis Papyri 61 b, l. 333 and note); and the amounts correspond. The same tax likewise appears in Brit. Mus. Papp. 175 a, 193 (see vol. II. pp. 119, 120), in which we have charges at the rate of 1, $1\frac{1}{2}$, or 2 artabas per aroura.

The question which first presents itself is whether the 'one-artaba' land and the 'three-quarter-artaba land' are to be identified with the $\gamma\eta$ ιερὰ and ιδιωτικὴ respectively; and here the evidence is conflicting. On the one hand it may be said that the triple division in the items corresponds naturally with the triple division in the title; and that if the $\gamma\eta$ ιερὰ and ιδιωτικὴ are not mentioned under these designations, they are practically not mentioned at all in the document, in spite of the inclusion of them in the title. This, however, may be accounted for by the loss of the latter part of the register, in which these categories may have been dealt with, apart from the βασιλική . Further, the term ιδ(ιωτικὴ) does occur in l. 9 (the first line of the register) and ιερὰ apparently in ll. 13 and 44. The amounts charged for this tax in other papyri do not settle the point. In the Tebtunis papyri half an artaba is the charge for $\text{ιερὰ } \gamma\eta$, but in the Rosetta stone (l. 30) it is 1 artaba; in most of the papyri, as in the British Museum MSS. quoted above, no indication is given of the reasons for charging different holdings at different rates. In the second part of the present register (604 B), the charge on $\gamma\eta$ βασιλική works out at $1\frac{1}{3}$ artabas per aroura (ll. 246, 247), while one small group of holders of $\gamma\eta$ ιδιωτικὴ is rated at 2 artabas (ll. 255-259). This group, however, is followed by a long list of persons rated at 1 artaba, and it is not clear whether this land is also ιδιωτικὴ or not. One class of persons is described as 'three-quarter foot-soldiers' (ἐλ πεζοί , 604 B, l. 174), and one would naturally regard them as being rated at $\frac{3}{4}$ artaba per aroura; but in the general summary (ll. 246-252) their land is included in the βασιλική , which collectively is rated at $1\frac{1}{3}$ artaba. On the whole, therefore, it must be confessed that the question of the incidence of the corn-tax is still obscure, though this papyrus contributes some further material which will have to be taken into account.

7. ⊙: i. e. σπ, = σπερματισμού or σπυράς.

ω is apparently preceded by some letter (the lacuna might perhaps hold two letters, but more probably one), though none is required by the sense.

8. επεντλησθαι: so MS., for επαντλησθαι.

9. ι^δ: sc. ιδιωτικῆς γῆς.

13. ιει^ι: so MS. apparently, but the second ι is probably meant for a ρ, sc. ιερὰς γῆς.

105. β- : this abbreviation is formed in analogous fashion to the α- which is one of the regular headings in the register.

116. Ισαγορ(υ) : one might be tempted to regard the ay as curiously written forms of ιδ, but the name recurs, written in precisely the same way, at 604 B, l. 27 (p. 77). It is presumably a variant of 'Ισαγόρου.

125. Κιττιδ(ου) : or Βιττιδ(ου). The name recurs in 604 B, l. 35 (p. 78), where the termination is written in full, but the first two letters are lost.

183. Above this line a word (or words) beginning with απο has been written in very cursively.

205. Scanty and mutilated remains of two more columns are preserved.

PAPYRUS 604 B.—circ. A. D. 47.

THIS document, which is attached to Pap. 604 A in the manner described in the introduction to that papyrus, is mutilated at both ends, and has lost both title and date. The latter is immaterial, since it is plainly contemporary with 604 A, many of the same names occurring in both, and the hand of B, which is very similar to that of A, but more cursive, appearing in one or two passages of A (cf. note on 604 A, ll. 38-43). The loss of the title is more serious, since there is no indication of the exact nature of the text. It is a register of names, followed by figures, the fractions of which show that they are arouras of land. In most cases the amounts are small, but they range up to 22 arouras in the part of the document relating to γῆ βασιλική, and to 44 in that which follows. The register is divided into groups, with the following headings: πλεονασμῶν βασιλικῆς (l. 54), πρὸς εἰκοσιπενταρούροις πόλεως (l. 69), κατοίκων (l. 132), τῆς εἰς κάθαρσιν (l. 169), εἰ πεζῶν (l. 174), κατεργασιῶν πρὸς χρεΐαις (l. 239), ιδιωτικῶν β $\frac{\text{—}}{\circ}$ (l. 255), α $\frac{\text{—}}{\circ}$ πόλεως (l. 260); but these do not wholly elucidate its nature. One can only say generally that it appears to be a register of land liable to the corn-tax, embodying the results of a revision of the land-survey, such as was annually necessary on account of the variations in the inundation of the Nile. The totals of each column are stated at its foot; but if a section of an account ends in the middle of a column, and a new one begins, the total of the upper part of the column is stated at the top, and that of the lower at the bottom. In ll. 246–254 all the preceding totals are summarized, but a similar summary for the next section of the register is lost through the mutilation of the papyrus.

8. κ(αι) με(τοχων): this is the probable reading of a succession of almost identical strokes, of a kind which, in this hand, go to form κ, μ, β, ι, ω, or any combination of these letters. It recurs frequently (cf. ll. 24, 41, 46, 59, &c.). In l. 202 καὶ μετόχων is written at length.

21. Ζωπυρας: cf. l. 220.

25. Νικοσστρατου: for a large number of spellings of this kind, see Goodspeed's Alexandrian Hexameter Fragments in Journ. of Hellenic Studies, xxiii. 237. It recurs in ll. 28, 67, 103, 170; and cf. l. 154 Καλλιστρατου.

33. The dash after Ισιδωρου probably stands for a repetition of the word, 'Isidorus, son of Isidorus.' The only passage which casts doubt on this explanation is l. 47; for if the Dioscurides there named is identical with the Dioscurides of l. 231, who has the same grandfather (assuming Σαμαλωι to be a proper name, cf. l. 383), his father's name was Dorcon. There may, however, have been two grandsons of the same name; and in every other case this interpretation is suitable. It is observable also that unless this is the case, there is no example in the whole list of a son bearing the same name as his father. Moreover, the names to which this mark is attached would otherwise be the only ones in the list of which the father is not given.

35. Κιττιδου: cf. 604 A, l. 125 (p. 74).

47. Σαμαλωι: the same name recurs in l. 231, where the reading is certain. Cf. l. 383.

54. Πλεονασμων βασιλ(ικης, sc. γης): Πλεονασμός occurs in Pap. 192 in the heading of a return of additions made to the lands held by certain individuals since a previous return. Here the sense is probably similar, the amounts specified in ll. 55-67, all of which are small, being additions to tenancies of crown land registered previously. Cf. Tebtunis Papp. 78, l. 7, and 81 [not 82], l. 27, where the term again denotes additions to land as the result of a fresh survey.

69. κέ^ητροις: i. e. εικοσιπενταρούροι. Similarly formed words (e.g. εκατοντάρουροι) occur in several of the Petrie and Tebtunis Papyri, and a place in the Fayum, Ἰβίων Εἰκοσιπενταρούρων is mentioned both in the Tebtunis Papyri and in Fayum Towns

226. The words καὶ του, both here and in the next line, appear to be subsequent additions, presumably for καὶ τοῦ υἱοῦ.

240. φϚ : i. e. πεντακοσιάρουρος, cf. note on l. 69, also ll. 244,

245. γεν^ο στρ^ι = γενομένου στρατηγού.

Ηλιοπολ(ιτου) : the reading is doubtful, the characters more resembling ηνοβολ.

246-8. The totals in these lines have been altered. That in l. 246 has been altered from $884 \frac{1}{4} \frac{1}{16} \frac{1}{32} \frac{1}{64}$ to $885 \frac{1}{4} \frac{1}{8} \frac{1}{16}$; that in l. 247 from $1174 \frac{1}{2}$ to $1180 \frac{1}{2} \frac{1}{8}$; and those in l. 248 from $908 \frac{1}{8} \frac{1}{32} \frac{1}{64}$ and $1226 \frac{1}{2}$ to $909 \frac{1}{8} \frac{1}{16}$ and $1232 \frac{1}{8} \frac{1}{24}$; that is, a sum of $1 \frac{1}{8}$ is added in each case to the arouras, and $6 \frac{1}{8}$ to the artabas. It is to be observed that the proportion of artabas to arouras is exactly $1 \frac{1}{8} : 1$ in ll. 246, 247, and approximately so in l. 248. That is, therefore, the rate in this instance on crown land.

248. Above the fraction $\frac{\epsilon}{\varsigma \kappa \omicron}$ is written $\overline{\sigma \omega}$, which may be meant for the fraction $\frac{\sigma \nu \varsigma}{\sigma \nu \varsigma}$. On the fractions of the artaba and aroura, see Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 749, 775.

250-52. These lines, which give the totals of the various columns or sections of the preceding account, are enclosed in a large bracket. Since only two totals precede that which appears in l. 38, only two columns, probably, of the register are lost before that column, of one of which we have slight remains. The total of these three lines is $884 \frac{1}{4} \frac{1}{16} \frac{1}{32} \frac{1}{64}$, i. e. the cancelled total given in l. 246. The brackets mark it as incorrect.

253. This line is also cancelled by brackets. There is nothing to show why the total, which is identical with that of ll. 250-252, is divided into two parts.

PAPYRUS 900.—Late 1st cent.

THIS is a portion of a register of corn and other produce received and issued, covering a space of six months, from Epeiph in the fourteenth year of an unnamed emperor to Tubi in the fifteenth year. The scale of the account shows that it cannot relate to a private estate, but is an official document. It is not, however, a register of the operations of the sitologi, since they are named as the persons to whom the produce is issued; consequently it must be referred to the village officials, and notably the κωμογραμματεὺς, who received the corn from the cultivators and transferred it to the sitologi. (On this subject in general, see Rostowzew, Kornerhebung und -transport im griechisch-römischen Ägypten, in Archiv für Papyrusforschung, III. 201 ff.).

The first part of the register, containing the receipts, is imperfect. It is arranged in sections, each section recording the amount of produce received from one estate (οὐσία). At the end (ll. 20, 21) is a summary of the receipts, which shows that the one surviving column of them only contains about a quarter of the whole amount. The totals are 17193 $\frac{5}{8}$ artabas of wheat, 3277 $\frac{1}{3}$ artabas of lentils (φακός), and an uncertain quantity of barley. Nothing is said of beans, which figure largely in the issues.

The register of issues occupies two columns, and is complete except for local mutilations, which can in all cases be supplied, owing to the frequency with which the items are summarized in totals. Each section of the register relates to one month, but in the first three cases it is subdivided, the first subdivision recording issues to the sitologi of 'the village,' the second to those of Euhemeria. The produce issued includes wheat, barley (very little), lentils, and beans, the wheat predominating in Epeiph and Mesoré, the lentils and beans in Thoth. The issues of each kind of produce fall, however, into two or more categories. Wheat is issued under the headings of σπέρματα (seed-corn) and ἐκφόριον (rent), while to each of these are attached further amounts under the name of προσμετρούμενα. The other classes of produce appear under the headings of ἐκφόριον and προσμετρούμενα alone. The amount of the προσμετρούμενα bears no constant proportion to that of the principal charges. The total issues for the six months amount to 1661 $\frac{2}{3}$ artabas of wheat, 20 $\frac{3}{8}$ artabas of barley, 2163 $\frac{1}{2}$ artabas of lentils, and 1101 $\frac{1}{3}$ artabas of beans, so that a very large quantity of corn remained in hand at the end of the period covered by the register.

It is noticeable that the division of the wheat and barley into σπέρματα and ἐκφόριον appears in both parts of the register. The cultivators of domain land, who received advances of seed-corn, had no doubt to repay these advances, probably with some addition, and also to pay a rent. The seed-corn would be required again for the same purpose, while the rent would be required for export; and it appears that the accounts were kept separate while the corn passed from the cultivators to the village officials, and from the village officials to the sitologi.

The locality to which the register relates is fixed by the mention of Euhemeria to the division of Themistes in the Arsinoite nome (cf. Grenfell and Hunt, Fayum Towns, p. 43). The village which stands first in the accounts, and of which the name is not given (no doubt because it had been mentioned in the heading of the document) must be one of those adjoining Euhemeria, such as Theadelphia, Philoteris, or Dionysias (cf. Wessely, Topographie des Faijûm, p. 64). The writing suggests the end of the first century, and the use of the name Germanicus for the month Thoth shows that it is not earlier than the reign of Domitian (cf. note on l. 37); hence the fourteenth year mentioned in l. 22 may refer to that monarch (= A.D. 94-95), or perhaps to Trajan (= A.D. 110-111).

PAPYRUS 1212.—A. D. 252–286.

THIS mutilated document evidently relates to the operations of the θησαυροί, or state granaries, in receiving and paying out grain, and in spite of its imperfect condition may be of use in combination with similar registers. It is divided into sections, each relating to a different allotment. Reference is made to the records of the second year of Gallus and Volusianus (= A. D. 252–253), apparently as a past event; hence the second year to which the register itself relates is probably that of Valerianus and Gallienus (= A. D. 254–255).

On the verso is a note of the payment of seed-corn in the third and second year [of Diocletian and Maximianus, = A. D. 286–287].

PAPYRUS 1170.—3rd cent.

THIS long papyrus is part of a register which must have been of enormous size when complete, since the eighteen columns of which it consists are numbered from 76 to 93, implying that about four times as much is lost from the beginning, while a considerable amount is also required at the end to complete it. It is a register of revenue left behind by an outgoing strategus for the benefit of his successor. The names of the localities mentioned in it show that the province in question is that of the divisions of Themistes and Polemon in the Arsinoite nome. The name of the incoming strategus is Julius Isidorus. An Isidorus is known as strategus of this province in A. D. 143-144 (BGU. 891), but the hand of the present papyrus points to a later date, in the first half of the third century.

The register takes the form of a list of taxpayers, with the sums due from them. It relates only to money payments, which are described simply as πρόσοδοι ὑπαρχόντων, without nearer definition. The names are grouped by villages, so that the papyrus is of some value for the geography of the Fayum, and as indicating the comparative sizes of the various places named. The villages are arranged in approximately alphabetical order, as also are the names of the taxpayers in each of them. The list is as follows, with the number of taxpayers named in each¹: Athena (12), Apias (37), Alexandri Nesus (7), Apollonias (3), Argias (7), Andromachis (26), Anubias (7), Bucolon (2), two villages whose names are lost (4 and 6), Dionysias (293), Euhemeria (89), Hermopolis (6), Heracleia (32), Theadelphia (30), Theoxenis (10), Kerkeosiris (10). At this point, half way through the alphabet, the papyrus breaks off; a considerable portion must be lost, but perhaps, considering the preponderance of Dionysias in the first half of the alphabet, not so much as has been preserved. On all these places Wessely's Topographie des Faijûm may be consulted for references to the other mentions of them in extant papyri. All of them lay in the division of Themistes (i.e. the western portion of the Fayum), except Kerkeosiris, which was in the division of Polemon.

given by ll. 626, 707, where it is written at length as αυτενιαυτων. Contrasted with this we have in the case of several villages (e.g. ll. 70, 97) entries under the head of εξενιαυτων, usually abbreviated as εζε⁺, indicating charges not due for the current year, but presumably arrears, or payments which did not fall due till the expiration of the year to which they related.

70. εξενιαυτων: the termination is not quite certain, but the ν is fairly clear. Cf. note on l. 14. The entries under this head often include some of the names which have already appeared in the main list (αυτενιαυτων). In Amh. Papp. 85, l. 14, and 86, l. 11, Grenfell and Hunt take εξενιαυτα to mean merely 'annual,' nearly equivalent to κατ' ετος: but it is plain that such a sense is impossible here, and it is unnecessary there. The phrase in which it occurs, αποδώσομεν εξενιαυτα (86 adds κατ' ετος) έν μηνι Φαωφι means that the rent for each year shall be paid in Phaophi (the second month) of the following year. Otherwise εζε⁺ has no force. Cf. B. M. Pap. 17, l. 19, and Paris Pap. 25, l. 12.

154. Βουκολων: the letters Βου, though mutilated, are fairly certain. The restoration is suggested by Dr. Grenfell. The village Βουκόλων is known to have been in the division of Themistes or Polemon (cf. Wessely, Topographie, p. 53). The only alternative is Bubastus, which was in the division of Heracleides, but apparently near the border of Themistes, being often named in connexion with Heracleia (ib. p. 52); and it is possible that two residents in Bubastus were taxpayers in the division of Themistes. The other restoration, however, is the more probable.

158. Αρ—: from its position in the papyrus, this must be the name of a village, though it comes out of proper alphabetical order. Arsinoë and Archelais are possible names.

172. Διονυσιαδος: the number of names under this head, as compared with those for Euhemeria, indicates a much greater relative importance for Dionysias than could be gathered from the present appearance of their respective sites (cf. Grenfell and Hunt, Fayum Towns, pp. 43, 63).

PAPYRUS 1226.—A.D. 254 (?)

ACCOUNT, or part of an account, rendered by Heroninus, φροντιστής of Theadelphia, to Appianus, formerly ἐξηγητής of Alexandria, the official to whom appertained ἡ ἐπιμέλεια τῶν τῇ πόλει χρησίμων (Strabo, bk. xvii, p. 797). A large collection of letters and papers relating to this Heroninus has recently come to light. A few will be found in this volume, and others in Papyrus Th. Reinach, nos. 52–55, and Grenfell and Hunt, Fayum Towns, no. 133; but the bulk of the collection is at Florence (see Vitelli, Atene e Roma, vi. 254, Papiri Fiorentini, vol. i, pp. 26–30). They belong to the years shortly after the middle of the third century. The first of the Florentine papyri (Pap. Fior. i. 26) is a document exactly similar to this, and addressed to the same official, apparently for the month Pauni in the third year. For a similar but longer account from a φροντιστής, see BGU. 14. In that case, as in this, the accounts relate to money received from the sale of such commodities as wine and wheat. The φροντιστής is the manager or steward of an estate (in this case presumably of whole villages which were part of the domain land of the state), who has to give periodical accounts of his receipts and expenditure to his superior. The receipts for the month are complete, so far as the totals are concerned, but the account of expenditure is imperfect. Reference is made to ‘the current second year,’ which may be that of Valerianus and Gallienus (Vitelli, op. cit., p. 26).

2. Απιανωι: so spelled also in most of the other papyri of this group (see Vitelli, p. 27), but occasionally with a second π (ib. p. 30). A number of ostraca, addressed to the same person, are published by P. Jouguet (Bull. de l'Inst. franç. d'archéologie orientale, 1902); these are almost equally divided between the two spellings.

εξηγ⁺: probably ἐξηγητεύσαντι rather than ἐξηγητῇ, cf. Preisigke, Archiv für Papyrusforschung, iii. 44.

4. Θεαδελφιας: or -ειας. Heroninus appears sometimes as φροντιστής of Theadelphia, sometimes of Thraso, sometimes of Narmuthis (Vitelli, Atene e Roma, vi. 254).

6. In the margin is noted the total (3836 drachmae), which is arrived at in l. 11.

7. μονοχω(ρα): the μ and χ are certain, the rest very cursorily written, but there can be little doubt as to the correctness of the reading. The measure μονόχωρον occurs in Fayum Pap. 220, in Papp. 1170 verso and 1210 below, and in Reinach Pap. 54, l. 8; and δίχωρον and τρίχωρον occur in BGU. 531 and 248 respectively (cf. Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 763). Wilcken connects the termination -χωρον with the Hebrew cor, which appears in Byzantine papyri under the form κοῦρι: but the present passage, which gives 8 drachmae as the price of a μονόχωρον of wine, makes that interpretation impossible, since a cor is equivalent to about 90 gallons. BGU. 248 likewise indicates a smaller measure, since the writer asks that an ass (ὄναριον) may be sent to him with a τρίχωρον of wine, which would be equivalent to a load of 270 gallons, or 135 dozen in modern measurement.

PAPYRUS 1166.—A. D. 42.

CONTRACT between two Persians of Hermopolis and Dios, a gymnasiarch-elect, for the supply by the former of heating to the gymnasium during the latter's year of office. Dios, it may be noticed, is only twenty years of age, and the contract is made thirteen months before the commencement of his term as gymnasiarch. The contractors undertake to keep up an unfailing supply of heat as long as the baths (attached to the gymnasium) are in use; and their payment for the year is to be 2000 drachmas, of which 500 are to be paid to them at once in advance, 200 in the course of the intervening year (this instalment is said to be for the purchase of asses, no doubt for carrying fuel), and the rest in three instalments during the actual year when they are at work. There is also an agreement for the supply of chaff for brickworks belonging to Dios, but the full details of this are lost through the mutilation of the papyrus.

8. δων: l. των.

Σεβαστου και Πτολεμαικου νομισμ(ατος): see note on Pap. 1168, l. 7 (below, p. 136).

9. Διου: at first written Δειου, but the ε is struck out.

The symbol for δραχμή in this papyrus is of an unusual form, resembling that for ἄρουρα. In l. 11 the usual form S̄ is found as well as the more uncommon one.

12. μαντακ(ας): i. e. μανδάκας, cf. Pap. 131, ll. 596, 600, 604, 628, and an ostrakon quoted by Grenfell and Hunt, Arch. Report of Eg. Expl. Fund., 1904-5, p. 16. In both places it is used of the loads of crops carried by donkeys. In the papyrus (e. g. ll. 581, 586, 616) ἀγώγια is similarly used for waggon-loads of the same character; but here the ἀγώγια would seem to be identical with the μανδάκαι.

Ιβιωνα Τεταχθι: the suggestion that Τεταχθι (written Τεταφθι in l. 13) is a part of the place-name, distinguishing this village from several others of the name of Ἰβίων in the Hermopolite nome, is due to Messrs. Grenfell and Hunt.

12, 13. Perhaps και αυτοθεν ως ο Δ. επιτελλει.

13. Σινκερκ(ει): cf. Amherst Papp. 122, l. 6, and 126, l. 23, where the name is spelled Σινκυρκεως or Σενκυρκεως. Here the ι is certain and the ε probable. Two villages of the name of Ibion appear among the Amherst papyri (126 and 139), and a third in BGU. 900. Λεννεου (of which the first two letters are doubtful) is unknown, unless it is to be identified with the doubtfully read Μετινεν . . of BGU. 842, col. 3, l. 23.

14. ομολουντας: l. ομολογουντας.

εκτεισται: so MS. apparently, for εκτεισονται.

15. Perhaps εις λογον, in place of the more usual ανα λογον.

19. εινα: there is more than enough blank space left between the α and the lacuna to contain the final ι, but there is no trace of its having been written.

PAPYRUS 1171 verso.—A.D. 42.

THE recto of this papyrus contains agricultural accounts for two months in the twenty-second and twenty-third years of Augustus [= B.C. 8], which will be printed below. On the verso are inscribed, in two or three different hands, rough drafts of official documents relating to the second year of Claudius [= A.D. 42]. They are contained in three columns of irregular width, and are preceded by scanty remains of another column. The first document apparently began in this mutilated column. It is concluded in the first of the three more perfect columns, but not enough is preserved to show its purport. It contains, however, the date and place (Hermopolis) and a mention of an ἐγλήμπτωρ μέλιτος καὶ κηροῦ, and is worth printing on this account.

The second document is again a draft of an official contract, with many cancellings and alterations, and much mutilated at the beginning. It contains another reference to honey and wax; indeed, it appears to be a second draft of the document in the preceding column, with some additional clauses. Near the end it contains a reference to the impost known as ἀρταβιεία.

The third document, which is nearly perfect, is more interesting. It is a proclamation by the Prefect, L. Aemilius Rectus, for the protection of the natives from unauthorized violence and forced labour or extortion, and is a noteworthy example of Roman provincial administration.

1. L. Aemilius Rectus is known as prefect of Egypt in A.D. 42 from an inscription (Bull. dell. Inst., 1877, p. 52), but has not hitherto appeared among papyri.

2. ενγαρευειν: i.e. ἀγγαρεύειν.

5. The readings at the end of this line are doubtful.

6. αποδιδοντας: written over an erasure of λαβοντες αυτων.

7. The distinction here made between στρατευόμενοι and μαχαιοφόροι confirms the contention of Grenfell and Hunt (as against P. M. Meyer), that the latter were not regular soldiers, but armed attendants upon officials. Cf. Tebtunis Pap. 35, l. 13 note.

9. μη . . . πεποηκως: both words are doubtful. The termination of the second more resembles κκος.

PAPYRUS 906.—A.D. 128.

AN application for a grant of the gold-smithing industry at Euhemeria, in the division of Themistes. The lease is to be for four years, at a yearly rent of 264 drachmas. The name of the official to whom the application is addressed is lost. One of the applicants is the retired soldier Gaius Longinus Priscus; the name of the other (or others) is lost. On the subject of the monopolies of various industries in Roman times, see Grenfell and Hunt, Fayum Towns, pp. 149-152. The use of the term ἐργασία here seems to support their contention that it is the trade itself, and not the right to collect the tax upon it, which is the subject of such contracts as these. The existence of a tax designated as χρυσοχοική in Ptolemaic times is established by Petrie Pap. II. 43 b, but that does not affect the point at issue.

3. Λογγινου Πρεισκου: presumably the person mentioned in BGU. 581 (A.D. 133), where he is similarly described as ἀπολύσιμος ἀπὸ στρατείας. Hence the praenomen Γαίου can be restored.
 7. The visible traces at the beginning do not seem to suit

PAPYRUS 1231.—A.D. 144.

NOTIFICATION, addressed to the strategus of the Hermopolite nome by two cultivators, of their wish to resign a lease of certain land (presumably crown land), which had been held by them jointly with a third partner, now dead. They ask that notice of their intention may be given to some one, apparently the Flavius Heraclius mentioned in l. 8, who seems to have been the person from whom the tenants held the land immediately, in order that he may make provision for the future cultivation of the land, from the beginning of the ensuing year. This notice is dated in Mecheir, six months in advance.

PAPYRUS 1157 verso.—A. D. 246.

ON the back of the taxation account printed above (p. 61) are various writings in different hands, occupying nine columns. Two of these are official documents and belong to the section now under consideration; the rest belong to the class of accounts. Columns 1 and 2 contain a document, with an enclosure, relating to an application for the purchase of twelve arouras of public land which had gone out of cultivation, and had consequently been offered for sale. The main document is the application of Aurelius Apollodorus, a beneficiarius of the Prefect, addressed to Aurelius Maecius Nemesianus, acting strategus of the Hermopolite nome, to the prytaneus of the city and a δεκάπρωτος of the toparchy. In this is enclosed (ll. 11-24) a copy of the application which he had already made to Claudius Marcellus, the καθολικός, and Marcius Salutaris, the procurator Augustorum who had ordered the sale, together with their answer (ll. 25–27) authorizing the local officials to grant the application. The last lines (28–36) contain the formal request for the execution of this order, and the date. The price offered is the nominal one of 20 drachmas. The land is in the territory of Alabastriné (see above, p. 60). For a similar application, leading to correspondence on a more extended scale, see Amherst Pap. 68. Cf. also Oxyrhynchus Pap. 731. In the first of those documents (and probably in the second, which is mutilated) provision is made for an annual rent; hence Mitteis, followed by Grenfell and Hunt, regards them as examples of emphyteusis, or permanent lease, rather than as sales proper. In the present instance there is no rent, and the transaction is described explicitly as a πρᾶσις.

The second document, in a different but similar hand, is a draft, without names, of an application for instructions to the βιβλιοφύλακες for the registration of a loan, apparently because it was secured upon real property, and therefore might lead to the alienation of it. But the mutilation of the papyrus leaves some of the contents obscure.

(a) 1. Νεμεσιανῶ: cf. Amherst Pap. 72, where for Μαρκίω Μαικίω should be read, as the facsimile also shows. In that papyrus his name is given 'Α. Μαικίω τῷ καὶ Ν., which is merely the Egyptian scribe's misunderstanding of the Roman form of name. In Amh. Pap. 81 he is called 'Α. Νεμεσιανός.

2. Αρα . . ω: the third letter may also be μ. The next letter or letters seem to be cancelled. The name may be Αραβίω.

της μεγαλ(ης) αρχαιας και λαμπρας και σεμνοτατης: cf. Pap. 955 below (p. 127), C. P. R. xx, xxxix. In Amh. Pap. 100 και σεμνοτατης is omitted; in C. P. R. ix it follows αρχαιας.

4. Πατεμιτ(ου): the termination ιτ is so given in BGU. 553, 556, 557, and Amh. Pap. 109; here it might be read as ητ.

5. επαρχου Αιγυπτου: Valerius Firmus (see Amh. Papp. 72, 81).

6. καθολικω: the catholicus has hitherto been regarded as a creation of the reorganization in the time of Diocletian (Milne, Roman Egypt, p. 13; P. M. Meyer, Hirschfeld-Festschrift, p. 147).

Μαρκιω Σαλουταριω: a Marcius Salutaris is mentioned by Charisius as a commentator on Virgil (cf. Prosop. Imp. Rom. II. 339). He is described as perfectissimus (= διασημότατος), but there are no means of identifying him with the person here mentioned.

8. υπολογου: on this phrase, meaning land left uncultivated, see Tebtunis Papyri, I. p. 540.

εικοσαδραχμω: so spelled also in l. 15.

9. περι κωμογραμματειαν: for this phrase, meaning the district administered by the κωμογραμματεῖς, cf. Amh. Pap. 101, l. 7, where the editors suspect a scribe's mistake.

10. γειτ: sc. γεινίαις, but with no mark of abbreviation.

(δ) 3. απολοτριουσται: so MS., apparently, for ἀπαλλοτριουῖσθαι.

5. γνωμονος: in the unusual sense of 'judgement'; but it does not seem possible to read anything else.

6. χειρογρον: miswritten, and partly rewritten, for χειρόγραφον. After και one or two letters have been erased and three or four written above the line, the reading of which is uncertain.

επι κ.τ.λ.: Grenfell and Hunt suggest ἐπεὶ ὑφορῶμαι νῦν μὴ ἐξαλλοτριώσῃ as the words intended, but it is impossible to be certain as to the letters actually written.

PAPYRUS 1159.—A. D. 145-147.

THIS is an interesting and unusual text, being a return by the town-clerks of Hermopolis of the names of persons on whom the duty falls of furnishing provisions and other supplies in view of an impending official visit from the Prefect of Egypt, L. Valerius Proclus. The list was evidently a permanent one, which had to be modified for any particular occasion by the provision of substitutes for those who were (1) excused by virtue of special warrants, (2) engaged in the performance of other public duties, as tax-collectors, corn commissioners, embankment inspectors, and the like, (3) dead (ll. 5-7). The list is a long one, occupying three broad columns, and breaking off incomplete, there being remains of a fourth column, which itself shows no sign of being the last.

A RETURN by the κωμάρχης of Nilopolis and Socnopaei Nesus, giving the names of two persons qualified to fill the post of πράκτωρ ἀργυρικῶν, the present occupant having completed his term of office. These names are submitted to the Prefect, and one of them will be selected by lot. The document, which is endorsed κλήρος πράκτ(ο)ρος, is written in red ink. An approximate date is given by the mention of the Prefect, Subatianus Aquila. On the procedure cf. BGU. 194, 235, Wilcken, Gr. Ost. I. 601 ff. In some cases only the precise number of persons required are nominated, and there is no question of a ballot (Amh. Pap. 139, Pap. Flor. 2).

16. For the property qualification cf. vol. ii. p. 158. The fact that different sums of money are attached to a nomination of persons qualified, as here, is strongly in favour of the explanation that it is a statement of income, and not the salary attached to the office. Cf. Grenfell and Hunt, Fayum Pap. 23.

PAPYRUS 974.—A.D. 305-306.

THIS document relates to the appointment of a καρπώνης, or contractor for the supply of fruit, for the city of Hermopolis. It consists of two mutilated columns, of identical content, each containing a guarantee for an individual appointed to this office. The name of the guarantor is lost in both cases, and that of the contractor in one, so that it is impossible to say whether they are two guarantees for the same person by different guarantors, or whether they apply to two different persons appointed simultaneously to the post. The dates and formulas are identical, and between the two examples the substance of the document is practically complete. The date is in the year following the abdication of Diocletian.

PAPYRUS 903.—early 2nd cent.

OWING to the mutilation of this papyrus, and the very cursive character of the writing, which makes restoration difficult, its full details are doubtful; but it is evidently one of those applications to the βιβλιοφύλακες ἐγκτήσεων for the registration of a transfer of property, of which other examples exist in Papp. 299, 300, BGU. 184, 379, &c. The property in question is in the neighbourhood of Hermopolis. The date is in the reign of Trajan, after his assumption of the title of Dacicus (A.D. 103).

PAPYRUS 940.—A.D. 226.

A PERFECT example of a return addressed to the βιβλιοφύλακες ἐγκτήσεων of the possession of property (cf. vol. II. p. 150). It belongs to the papers of the family of Hermaeus (see above, p. 29), the persons making the return being the brothers Herminus and Theognostus, who claim to be registered as owners of certain house property in Hermopolis, as heirs (jointly with another brother, Isidorus) to their uncle Herminus, who had died childless and intestate. At the foot of the document, however, is a note by the βιβλιοφύλαξ to the effect that his registers show no property left under the name of their uncle, and that there is nothing to prove that the inheritance belongs to them. It may be observed that the point is rather late in arising, since the uncle had been dead for twenty years. In Pap. 935 (above, p. 30), it is stated that he had died in the 14th year of Caracalla, leaving his brother Hermaeus his heir. Hermaeus was also dead by now (he is mentioned as dead in Pap. 932, the date of which is A.D. 211), and his sons claim the succession. Indeed, the ὁλόκληρος οἰκία καὶ αὐλὴ καὶ χρηστήρια καὶ ἀνήκοντα πάντα ἐπ' ἀμφοδου Φρουρίου Λιβός (ll. 13–15) are probably those which are also mentioned in Pap. 935, l. 7, and elsewhere (see the following papyri). No disturbance of title appears to have taken place as a result of this expression of official scepticism, for in Pap. 1158 (printed below), dated six weeks later than the present document, Herminus is found selling his share of the house to Theognostus; and in Pap. 941 (which follows the present text) Theognostus' registration of this purchase is apparently endorsed by the same βιβλιοφύλαξ with a recognition of his right of inheritance.

16. αναφερομεν και: cursively written, so that the final ε of αναφερομεν has practically disappeared, and the ν coalesces with the following κ. Cf. Pap. 942, l. 10.

PAPYRUS 941.—A. D. 227.

THE three following documents are likewise returns addressed to the βιβλιοφύλακες ἐγκτήσεων of Hermopolis, and relate to the same persons. The first is unfortunately mutilated at the most important part, through the flaking off of the ink from the papyrus; and all that is discernible is that it is a return by Theognostus, the second of the sons of Hermaeus, of his possession by purchase of a part of a house in Hermopolis. Probably it is the register of the purchase effected in Pap. 1158 (see below, in § 5).

14. ο καὶ Μωρος: omitted by Theognostus, but added above the line by the scribe who has written the body of the document.

PAPYRUS 942.—A. D. 227.

IN this return, made out two days after the preceding one, Theognostus registers the portion of a house in Hermopolis which he acquired by purchase from his brother Isidorus. As Pap. 1158 records the purchase by Theognostus of the share which belonged to his other brother, Herminus, it is evident that he became sole owner of the house which the three had jointly inherited from their uncle, and which forms the subject of Pap. 940 and several other papyri (935, 941, 945, 1158, 1298).

17. The βιβλιοφύλαξ is different from that of Papp. 940 and 941; but as the present text is dated only two days after Pap. 941 it is not likely that there had been any change in the office. Artemidorus and Chaeremon were therefore colleagues in the office. The regular number of βιβλιοφύλακες ἐγκτήσεων in a nome appears to be two; cf. Papp. 299, 300 (vol. ii. p. 150). They must have had several clerks under them, all of these documents being written in different hands, and being also countersigned by different people.

PAPYRUS 945.—A. D. 231.

THIS is a return by Aurelia Dioscorous to the βιβλιοφύλακες of Hermopolis, registering for the current year the property purchased by her from her brother Aurelius Theognostus, namely a third share of a house in the West Fort of Hermopolis. This is evidently the house which has formed the subject of so many other documents. Left equally to the three brothers (Pap. 940), the whole was acquired by Theognostus, who bought the share of Herminus in Pap. 1158 and registered it in Pap. 941; he then bought the share of Isidorus in Pap. 942, and apparently returned himself as owner of the whole in his census-return for the census of A. D. 229–230 (Pap. 946). Now he sells a third of it to his sister Dioscorous, who, as appears from Pap. 936, was also his wife; and the banker's certificate relating to the sale is contained in Pap. 1298.

27, 28. παρακειμ(ενον) (or παρακειται) κ.τ.λ.: cf. Pap. 940, l. 21 (p. 118).

PAPYRI 1213-1215.—A. D. 65-66.

THESE five documents are requisitions from Diodotus Norbanas Claras, who is apparently the steward of an οὐσία (1215, l. 15), and whose order is ratified by C. Julius Salvius (presumably an official), to a sitologus named Metocus, for the issue of certain amounts of corn from the public granary under his charge. In the first four cases the amount to be issued is at the rate of one artaba per month over periods of four, nine, one, and four months respectively, the object of the issue not being stated. It may have been an allowance for food, an artaba per month being equivalent to a loaf per day; cf. Pap. 18, l. 48, note (vol. I. p. 42). The remaining document (Pap. 1215) is an order for an issue of 35 artabas of seed-corn, to be repaid with interest at $33\frac{1}{3}$ per cent. after the next harvest; the cultivator's receipt is attached to it. All are dated within the period from Nov. 7, A.D. 65, to Jan. 5, A.D. 66. The locality is not stated, but a reference to the μέτρον Ἀθηναίων (Pap. 1215, l. 8) points to Hermopolis.

3. There is room for about five letters, and dim traces of two letters between the end of αρουρων and the beginning of εικοσι, but too faint to read with certainty. Perhaps ως εἴκοσι or (on the assumption of five letters) ἐκατὸν εἴκοσι.

8. μετρω Αθηναιωι: cf. Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 774; Grenfell and Hunt, Amherst Papyri, II. p. 109.

ταις εκατον κ.τ.λ.: apparently this is a further charge of 12½ per cent. on the produce of the land.

PAPYRUS 1219.—A.D. 196.

THIS is a certificate from a κωμογραμματεὺς to the strategus of the divisions of Themistes and Polemon, to the effect that nothing has been reported during the last three months as due to the department of ἴδιος λόγος. This officer, as chief controller of the emperor's privy purse in Egypt, had authority over all confiscated and unowned property; cf. P. M. Meyer, Διοίκησις and Ἰδιος Λόγος (Festschrift O. Hirschfeld, p. 131 ff.), and Archiv für Papyrusforschung, III. 86 ff. The present document shows the officials of the nome and village acting as intermediaries for his department. A similar (but not verbally identical) certificate is mentioned and partially quoted by Hartel (Über die griechischen Papyri Erzherzog Rainer, 1886, p. 70), and Meyer (Festschrift, p. 162), on the authority of Wessely, mentions two others as existing in the same collection; but none has been published in full. The present document, though somewhat damaged, admits of almost complete restoration.

3. Τριστομον: cf. Wessely, Topographie, p. 149. Wessely's map conjecturally places it near Busiris, but it is not possible to read that name here in l. 2. As observed by Grenfell and Hunt, the phrase τοῦ καὶ Τριστόμου occurs in a mutilated and unpublished text on the recto of Pap. 256. The preceding word there is wholly lost. The present text suggests that it may have been Βουκόλων, but it is to be observed that the other texts in Pap. 256 relate to a village in the Heracleides division, and it is possible that the term Τρίστομος was applied to more places than one, no doubt with some reference to the irrigation-sluices.

κατὰ μηνὰ: the reading is doubtful. If correct it is equivalent to μηνιαῖον, a monthly report.

4. σεσημασθ(αι): cf. Amh. Pap. 68, l. 45. The mutilated word or words which follow must signify 'as pertaining to.'

11. Πασίων: the third letter is formed like an ο, but is probably only a miswriting of σ: cf. l. 2.

PAPYRUS 904.—A. D. 104.

THIS papyrus, which is imperfect at both ends, is apparently a portion of an official letter-book. It contains three letters. The first is from an official whose status is not mentioned, acknowledging the receipt of twenty-four ichneumons (one being dead) from the strategus of the division of Themistes. Probably the ichneumons were intended for the Prefect; for the next letter, which is addressed to the same strategus, refers to a letter sent by him to the Prefect on the subject of these animals. It also refers to a letter on the subject of measures (μέτρα) addressed to the ἐπίτροπος τῆς Νέας Πόλεως. The third document is of greater public interest. It is a rescript from the Prefect requiring all persons who were residing out of their own nomes to return to their homes, in view of the approaching census. The analogy between this order and Luke ii. 1-3 is obvious. The census in question is that of the 7th year of Trajan (A.D. 103/4), and the determining date is the last day of the year (see vol. II. p. 17). The rescript is accordingly issued in Epeiph (ll. 37, 38), the last month but one, which would give time for the necessary journeys. The last part of the rescript apparently contains some relaxation of the general order, in the interests of agriculture, on which ἡ πόλις ἡμῶν (presumably Alexandria, though in the mouth of the Prefect it might conceivably be Rome) is so largely dependent; but this part of the papyrus is hopelessly mutilated. Edicts requiring persons to return to their own homes are contained or mentioned in BGU. 159, 372, Geneva Pap. 16, and Fay. Pap. 24; these, however, have no reference to the census, but to persons who have left their domiciles to avoid λειτουργία.

The hand in which the papyrus is written is large and clear, as befits an official document. It contrasts very strongly with the extremely cursive characters of the almost contemporary Pap. 903.

1. Ευτυχης: it would be equally possible to read Ευτυχη or -χη, but it is not likely that the name Julius would stand alone.

8. Perhaps καὶ πρότερόν σοι ἔγραψα. The only traces of writing which remain would suit πρ.

10, 11. τον επιτροπον της Νεας Πολεως: this official is also mentioned in BGU. 8, II. 26, 28 (of A.D. 248), and was previously known only from two second-century Latin inscriptions, in which he is described as procurator of Neapolis and the Mausoleum of Alexandria (Néroutsos, L'Ancienne Alexandrie, 1888, p. 56). The present document is the earliest extant evidence of his existence, and of the name Neapolis as applied to the Graeco-Roman quarter of Alexandria.

18. The Prefect's name is recoverable from BGU. 329 and Amherst Pap. 64.

22. A rather longer supplement is required.

LETTER from a citizen of a town with a Greek constitution (probably Alexandria) to the strategus of the Heracleid division, enclosing a copy of a rescript received from the acting ἀρχιδικαστής, of which he requests that another copy may be given to a certain woman. The contents of the rescript of the ἀρχιδικαστής are lost.

1. Κλαυδιω Κερεαλ(ε)ι: Grenfell and Hunt, Greek Papyri, II. 46a shows that Claudius Cerealis was strategus for the year 138/9; the present text shows that he was also in office in 137/8, thus accounting for the whole of the interval between Vegetus (BGU. 352) and Sarapion (BGU. 422).

2. Αυξισπορειου του και Αλθαιεως: a new tribe-name. On the general subject of such names, see below, introduction to Pap. 1164.

3. διεποντος τα κατα την αρχιδικαστειαν: see below, p. 132, note on Pap. 908, ll. 17, 18. The present text should perhaps have been printed in that section.

6. Αιλιου Αδριανου Σεβαστου: for this form of Hadrian's name, cf. Rainer Pap. 1514 (Führer durch die Ausstellung, no. 219). A letter appears to have been struck out before Αιλιου.

PAPYRUS 911.—A. D. 149.

THE existence of some kind of poor-rate in Roman Egypt, which Wilcken (following Mommsen) somewhat hesitated to accept on the solitary authority of a single ostrakon (Gr. Ostr. I. 161), has since been confirmed by references to this same ἐπιμερισμός (or μερισμὸς) ἀπόρων in Fayum Papp. 53, 54, 256, and in BGU. 881 (where ἐπιμε(ρισμοῦ) is to be read for ἐπικε(φαλαίου), cf. the 'Berichtigungen und Nachträge' at the end of the volume, p. 7). The present document is a copy of an official certificate of lack of means, which presumably implied that the person named in it was entitled to poor-relief.

1. γραφης απορων: this seems more naturally to mean a certificate of poverty than a register of paupers, though the latter is not impossible.

7. Πεναυτος: might more easily be read as Πεναυος.

PAPYRUS 955.—A. D. 261.

THIS papyrus is much mutilated, but documents from the reign of Macrianus and Quietus are sufficiently rare to make it advisable to print it, both in text and in facsimile (cf. Pap. 954). It is addressed to the Senate of Hermopolis, and refers to a grant of corn made by the emperors. From its resemblance in certain details to a census-return, it is probably an application by the writer for the inclusion of his name among the recipients of the dole. The papyrus is dated on the 21st Mecheir (= 15th Feb.), which might be in either A. D. 261 or 262; but such a donation would probably be made at the beginning of the usurpers' reign, as a bid for popular support. Consequently the earlier date is the more probable; and it coincides with the period which Clinton (Fast. Rom., 1845, I. 286) assigns for the beginning of the reign. As on most of the coins, it is the two sons, the younger Macrianus and Quietus, who appear as emperors, not their father.

6. κδδ: cf. l. 16. It cannot be a date, nor the age of the petitioner (which is apparently given in l. 17), but seems to be part of the local description.

10. σιτηρεσιου: probably a gratuity decreed by the usurping emperors in order to conciliate favour.

20. For the names of the emperors (the two sons of Macrianus, not the father himself, whose praenomen appears to have been Marcus, Prosop. Imp. Rom. II. 94, 95) cf. Pap. 954. The reading Fulvius here is quite certain.

PAPYRUS 971.—3rd-4th cent.

THIS papyrus contains a text which is somewhat unusual in form, and consequently deserves publication; but it needs more explanation than can here be supplied. It appears to be a formal document, addressed to some official (l. 5 ἐκέλευσας, l. 7 τῆς σῆς ἀρετῆς), and to be concerned with the appointment of a guardian for a woman's property; but the details are obscure, partly through the mutilation of the papyrus, and partly from the brevity of some of the phrases and the obscurity of the allusions. There are no means of determining how much is lost to the right of the papyrus, but the column is already exceptionally broad.

6. The word before τοιουνν has been miswritten and corrected, leaving the result doubtful.

9-12. These lines are thus indented in the papyrus, and similarly ll. 15, 19, 20. This may be due to the defective state of the papyrus, which is in bad condition to the left of these lines, or it may be due to the different character of the contents, which appear to be in conversational form. The abbreviation

Ψ presumably stands for the name of the interlocutor, perhaps the πραιπόσιτος mentioned below.

12. βοηθουσιν: the traces suggest this rather than βοηθωσιν.

14. προνοιαν: sc. εχειν or εχετε.

16. λειτουργιας: so MS., apparently, for λειτουργιαν.

18. της σης: the lacuna would hold more letters, but σ is often widely spaced out in this hand; and cf. l. 7.

4. Petitions.

THE beginning of a petition addressed to the ἐπιστάτης φυλακιῶν by an inhabitant of Euhemeria, complaining of an assault committed on or by one of his labourers. The details are lost, as also is the date; but the handwriting appears to be of the early part of the first century.

1. επιστατη φυλ(ακιτων): this official appears in several of the Tebtunis papyri. Wilcken (Archiv, III. 233) regards the φυλακίται as existing only in the Ptolemaic period; but the present papyrus (subject to the incompleteness of our present knowledge of the palaeography of the first century B.C.) appears to bring them down at least to the time of Tiberius, and the document which follows establishes their existence in the reign of Caligula.

4. *του*¹ : ἱ. ε. τοῦ καί.

9. ενκλ : a participle is wanted, but the remains do not suggest any suitable word.

PAPYRUS 1218.—A.D. 39.

THIS mutilated text is worth printing mainly on account of its explicit and dated testimony to the existence of the φυλακίται in the Roman period, to which reference has been made in the note on l. 1 of the preceding document. Like the last, it is a petition addressed to the superintendent of that corps by an inhabitant of Euhemeria; but its purport is lost through mutilation.

2. τελων: the reading is not certain, the first three letters being a correction written over something else.

PAPYRUS 908. —A. D. 139.

THIS document, when complete, must have rivalled in length the well-known Petition of Dionysia (Oxyrhynchus Pap. 237), since the two columns here preserved are numbered 14 and 15 respectively. The last column, which alone is intact, measures nine inches in width, so that, if the others were of the same size, the whole document would have had a length of 11 ft. 3 in. When so large a portion is lost, it is naturally impossible to give a full account of the contents. The petitioner is apparently Eudaemonis, daughter of Marcus Ulpus Sarapion, also called Serenus, ex-gymnasiarch of Hermopolis, and her petition was probably addressed to the Prefect, who at this date was C. Avidius Heliodorus (cf. Oxy. Pap. III. p. 175). In the part of the document here preserved, the petitioner is sending to the strategus of the Hermopolite nome, Avillius Longus (ll. 6–12), a memorial which she had previously addressed to the ἀρχιδικαστής (ll. 17–38). In this memorial she had asked (ll. 29–31) that the strategus might be instructed to send a copy of it to the person of whose action she was complaining, whose name appears to be Aphrodisius (l. 22); the deputy of the ἀρχιδικαστής had given orders that this should be done (ll. 13–16), and consequently the petitioner now forwards the document to the strategus for this purpose. The main object of the petition remains obscure, but it apparently relates to some property alleged to be wrongfully detained (ll. 31–35). Oxy. Pap. 485 is a document of almost identical character; cf. also BGU. 578, 888.

2–4. These lines are restored from ll. 38–40. As the first words in l. 2, Φαρμουθι ῥ, are identical with those which precede the formula καὶ ὑπογραφῆς κ.τ.λ. in l. 38, it looks as if the document to which that date belongs (ll. 17–38) were also repeated.

19. Ευδαιμονος: the restoration is probable, but not certain. In the year 143/4 Eudaemon was ἀρχιδικαστής (BGU. 741, l. 1), and it is quite possible that he was acting as deputy five years earlier. The next preceding name, so far as at present known (cf. Otto, op. cit., p. 198), is Claudius Philoxenus, who held the office in 134/5 (BGU. 73, 136), and it is possible that Φιλοξενωι should be restored in l. 17. It is suitable in point of length, as Ευδαιμων is in l. 13. Another instance of an ἀρχιδικαστής acting through his deputy occurs in Oxy. Pap. 727.

36. Προπαπποσεβαστιον τον και Ζην(ε)ιον: the Propapposebastian tribe is already known as belonging to Alexandria (cf. Archiv., II. 74), but the present passage adds a new deme to it. A deme Ζήνιος occurs in Tebt. Pap. 99, l. 55, but without a tribe.

39. ενωπιω: in the similar phrase in BGU. 578, ll. 1, 6, this is read, doubtfully, as ενωπιον, but here the reading is clear.

PAPYRUS 921.—Late 2nd or 3rd cent.

THIS papyrus is remarkable, as it comes from the Phthemphuthic nome in the Delta, a locality hitherto unrepresented in the papyri. How it came to be preserved is unknown. It is addressed to the βασιλικὸς γραμματεὺς of the nome, and is apparently of the nature of a petition; but it is too imperfect to afford much information. The petitioner appears to be claiming some agricultural privilege which had been granted to his father by the Prefect Pactumeius Magnus. Since Magnus' term of office fell in 176–180, this papyrus cannot be later than the early part of the third century.

3. Ταυαειτων πολεως: on the Canopic branch of the Nile, south of Naucratis, capital of the Phthemphuthic nome (Smith, Dict. of Geog., s. v.).

5. Μαγνου του κρατιστου: presumably T. Pactumeius Magnus, prefect in A.D. 176-180.

6. θς: this may be intended for the termination of the name of the nome, though that appears to have been abbreviated. Above s is a short perpendicular stroke, perhaps part of an ι or τ, besides the horizontal abbreviation-mark.

7. μονες: sc. μόλαις.

9, 10. ετι . . . χρονον: one would rather have expected από Τρ. χρόνου, but the final ον of χρονον is clear.

11. τα υπογεγρ(αμμενα): a blank space sufficient for one or two lines follows, and then the papyrus breaks off, the annexed document being lost.

PAPYRUS 924.—A.D. 187-188.

PETITION addressed to the strategus of the Heracleid division by the πράκτορες σιτικῶν of Socnopaei Nesus, complaining that whereas they had always paid the dues on certain land on the border of the lake (αἰγιαλῖτις γῆ) when it had not been irrigated and consequently not sown, this year, when the inundation had reached it, and it had been sown, the inhabitants of the neighbouring village of Theogenes had forcibly taken possession of it. They consequently beg that the intruders may be required to pay the dues on the previous unproductive years.

1. Απολλωνιω: this supplies the missing name in BGU. 242, l. 1, and fixes approximately the date of that papyrus. He may be identical with the Apollonius who was strategus of the division in A.D. 183/4 (BGU. 361, col. ii, l. 11).

7. την Σοκνοπαιου: cf. l. 11 τῆς ἡμῶν, 12 τῆς Θεογένους.

9. την παραγραφην: the registered charge entered in the official survey books; cf. Oxy. Pap. 488, passim.

9, 10. εκπυρικοις: a new word. The reading is clear, but not the meaning.

12. της Θεογενοῦς: this village is elsewhere more fully named as Φιλοπάτωρ ἢ καὶ Θεογένους, cf. Wessely, Topographie, p. 157. Wessely also (Karanis und Soknopaiu Nesos, p. 7) quotes from various Rainer papyri instances of inhabitants of this village occupying part of the αἰγιαλῆτις γῇ of Socnopaei Nesos.

13. συ: ἴ. σοι.

18. προς το . . . δυνηθωμεν: a confusion of two constructions of this final formula.

5. Sales and Leases.

PAPYRUS 1168.—A.D. 18.

THIS document is of unusual interest, being exceptionally full and very little damaged by mutilation. It is a mortgage by Stotoëtis, daughter of Dioscorus, a Persian of the Ἐπιγονή, through her guardian and brother Pecusis, to Chichois, another brother, of a sixth share in a house and appurtenances in the Western quarter of the Fort at Hermopolis. The remaining five shares are already in the possession of the same Chichois. The mortgage takes the form of a lease for four years in consideration of a payment of 220 drachmas; and in lieu of interest the lessee is to have the use of the property. At the expiration of the term, Stotoëtis is to repay the 220 drachmas, or to forfeit all right to the share. The mortgage is made through the private bank of Syrus. The main document (ll. 1-17) is followed (ll. 21-25) by a copy of the banker's certificate of payment of the 220 drachmas to Stotoëtis and a receipt (ll. 26-31) from the latter, all being dated in the month of Tubi in the fourth year of Tiberius. Above the certificate is a receipt (ll. 18-20) addressed by Chichois to the banker Syrus in Pharmuthi of the same year, declaring that in consideration of the repayment of the 220 drachmas he surrenders the lease; and after this, in a separate column (ll. 32-48), follows a receipt to the same effect and of the same date addressed to Stotoëtis. On the verso (ll. 49-61) is a copy of the banker's certificate noting that the mortgage is cancelled. This is dated on the 10th of Pauni in the same year.

The first column is preceded by a strip of papyrus, so attached that its fibres are at right angles to those of the main roll. On this is written a short account in five lines, having no connexion with the main document except that the name Stotoëtis occurs in it.

It contains the word ὕφαντρα (χιτῶνος), but is otherwise unimportant as well as imperfect, and is omitted both in the text and in the facsimile.

1. σεβ(αστης): added above the line. On the ἡμέραι σεβασταί see Oxyrhynchus Papyri, II. p. 284, where it is noted that such days are especially frequent in first century papyri.

2. The description of Stotoëtis, from νγ to με^ε, is supplied by another hand. The same hand has written the whole of the next line as far as the first αυτης.

3. ἀρειω: one expects ἀριστερω, but it is impossible to read this. The letter before ω may be τ.

αυτης: written in duplicate, once by the principal scribe and once by the scribe who has inserted the personal description.

4. μεροις: L. μέρος.

5. του εν Ερμουπολει . . . μερεσι: this is evidently an early form of the place-description which was ultimately abbreviated into Φρουρίου Λιβός.

7. Στοτοητις: apparently written Στοτοητις, both here and in l. 10.

Σεβαστου κ(αι) Πτολεμαικου νομισματος: cf. Oxy. Pap. 264, 8, and note. The phrase implies that Augustus took over the coinage which he found in use among the Ptolemies. This is in accordance with the numismatic evidence, which shows that Augustus continued the bronze coinage of the last Ptolemies, and Tiberius, who resumed the coinage of silver, did so by re-issuing the tetradrachms of Ptolemy Auletes, the last of the Ptolemaic series (Poole, Coins of Alexandria, p. xxviii). In BGU. 713, a document of A.D. 41/2, Πτολεμαϊκὸν νόμισμα is specified alone (l. 23); Oxy. Papp. 264 and 271, which are of A.D. 54 and 56 respectively, have the longer phrase.

3, 4. Τερτον κ.τ.λ.: Τέρτον Πετοχνούβεως appears as a village in the toparchy of Πατρή ἄνω in the Hermopolite nome in BGU. 552, col. 2, l. 9 (on the provenance of which see Grenfell and Hunt's note on Amh. Pap. 68, l. 5). There were several other villages with the name of Τέρτον in the same neighbourhood, but this is the only one whose second name suits the remains.

6. αρουρης: l. αρουρας.

9. αποτατκου: l. αποτακτου.

10. μετρησω: the ω is written over ις, the scribe having at first written the formula for a grant of a lease. Similarly in l. 3 there are signs of σοι having been corrected from μοι.

11. φορετρον: l. -ρων. For διαφορον cf. Fay. Pap. 86, but there διαφόρον φορέτρον appears to stand as one phrase. In BGU. 835 διαφόρον stands alone. In each case it is a small supplementary charge, but its exact nature is uncertain. Cf. Pap. Gen. 9, ll. 8, 9.

PAPYRUS 1223.—A.D. 121.

AN application from six citizens of Hermopolis, for a lease of land. The crops and rents are specified, and instructions are given as to the manner of payment of the latter. The papyrus is damaged both by rubbing and by mutilation and is very cursively written, which makes decipherment difficult. The land is evidently government land.

6. The place name is apparently not the Πεννη- of Pap. 1239 (above, p. 52). The word which follows may be α' (=πρότερον).

8. † Ψ: apparently = ὑπὲρ πυροῦ. The rent was to be 5 artabas for the land now under light crops preparatory to the sowing of wheat.

μετ[†] δ^η δοχ^ο: i. e. μέτρῳ δημοσίῳ δοχικῷ. On the μέτρον δοχικόν see Pap. 1239.

11. After φορετρον some words (beginning with κ_ι) are erased. The meaning of ν^η is not clear. It may be part of the words erased, having been overlooked by the corrector. It would be possible to read ων^η, but there is no question of a sale.

14. σπονδ(ην): cf. Oxy. Papp. 101, l. 19, 525, l. 7. The preceding word may be δωσομεν.

PAPYRUS 838.—A.D. 123.

8. The end of the line may be απο Θωθ. The preceding word is doubtful. It cannot be ενε(στος ετος), but it may be ενα(τον ετος).

9. εις ποραν: a common clerical error for εις σποραν.
 αποτα^κ: the writing rather resembles αποτε^κ, both here and in l. 11, but αποτάκτου (sc. φόρου) seems to be the word required.

10. ξυλαμή is the term generally used for the sowing of άρακος and χόρτος. The χ here is certain; hence, if the restoration is correct, it must be the scribe's blunder. The letters ξυ might also be read as σα.

12. The last words in the line may be αν αργ, but the remains cannot easily be reconciled with this.

PAPYRUS 839.—A.D. 123.

SALE of a cow and calf, at Hermopolis, for 62 drachmas. The papyrus is entire, but has been much injured by rubbing, so that in some places, particularly at the beginning and the end, almost all traces of ink have disappeared.

THIS is a lease for one year, by seven πρεσβύτεροι of Apias, in the division of Themistes, of the pasturage of sheep during both winter and summer in the plain called 'Ψαρβαταλις και Πυρρον.' The writing is very cursive, and the latter part of the papyrus is mutilated. The boundaries of the pastures in question are specified, but owing to the mutilation of the papyrus some of the place-names are uncertain.

 20 [Αντωνεινου Σ]εβαστου Ευσεβους Επειπ ις

9. γεινούνται: the γ has been crossed out and then re-written.

11. L η: this is the date which appears in the receipt, l. 18, and it is more likely that the agreement was made two than fourteen months previously. "The document is, in effect, a purchase of the standing crop, made on the eve of the harvest, and to be actually paid when the harvest is complete.

17. It does not seem possible to read < ρις, as the sense apparently requires.

PAPYRUS 1227.—A.D. 152.

A REQUEST for a lease of state land addressed to Apollonides, the στρατηγός of the Hermopolite nome. The papyrus is somewhat rubbed and the writing in places very cursive, so that decipherment is difficult.

PAPYRUS 858 a.—A.D. 153-154.

THE first part of an application for a lease. The papyrus is much mutilated, so that neither the amount of land to be leased nor its exact position is clear, but the lessor is described as of Hermopolis. The land forms part of the κλήρος of Zopatrus.

PAPYRUS 1179.—2nd cent.

THE nature of this papyrus is not certain. It consists of six fragments, which it seems impossible to fit together into a connected whole. The document would appear to have been a register of various legal transactions. The first fragment contains some sort of agreement on the part of a large number of persons; the second may be a sale or lease; the third apparently contains parts of three transactions, the first perhaps being a receipt, and the others sales or leases; and the others are doubtful. Reference is made occasionally to the βιβλιο-φύλακες (ll. 52, 130), and it seems on the whole most probable that the papyrus is a part of a register of transfers of real property, kept by these officials. A bank in the street Ταμείων is mentioned (l. 95), which points to Arsinoë as the metropolis in which the office of the βιβλιοφύλακες in question was situated. The bank of Suchas, which is also mentioned (l. 72), is not otherwise known. The names of the villages Μοῦχis and Φιλωτερίς point to the divisions of Polemon and Themistes as the localities to which the document relates; presumably the records of these jointly-administered divisions were kept distinct from those of the division of Heracleides. Reference is constantly made to the 'present 10th year,' but the emperor's name is lost. The non-occurrence of the name Aurelius among so many shows that it cannot be later than Caracalla; and the occurrence of the description, Πέρσης τῆς ἐπιγονῆς (l. 18), makes it probable that it is before A.D. 150 (cf. vol. II. p. 15). On the other hand, the mention (in l. 12) of the month Hadrianus supplies an upper limit.

95. τραπεζης Ταμειων : there was a district and bank of this name in Arsinoë, cf. Pap. 332, l. 7, and Wessely, Die Stadt Arsinoë, p. 46.

116. Μουχειν : cf. Wessely, Topographie des Faiyum, p. 107. It appears in connexion with places in the division of Polemon :

here, in frag. f, Philoteris is mentioned, which might suggest that it was in or near the division of Themistes, but if, as seems probable, the papyrus is a register kept by the βιβλιοφύλακες of the metropolis, this argument would not be cogent.

PAPYRUS 932.—A. D. 211.

IN this papyrus, as in nos. 1158 and 1298, which follow, we return to the family of Hermaeus (cf. pp. 29–32, 117–121 above). This is a deed by which Isidorus son of Hermaeus renounces, in favour of his brothers Herminus and Theognostus, all share in the inheritance of his parents. His father Hermaeus is described as dead, his mother Souerous as surviving. It is agreed that Herminus and Theognostus shall assume full responsibility for the payment of their father's debts and for the maintenance of their mother. The papyrus is dated the 12th of Mecheir in the 19th year of Septimius Severus, Caracalla and Geta, i.e. two days after the death of the first-named, the news not yet having reached Egypt. The first section of the text (ll. 1–10) is a repetition of the deed in the names of Herminus and Theognostus, written very cursively and with many abbreviations at the top of the papyrus, and countersigned by the banker who effected the transaction; the body of the deed is written, well and formally, in ll. 11–24, and is followed by the signatures of Isidorus and Theognostus.

THE latter part of an application for a lease. The names of the parties and of the locality are lost; but certain indications (see l. 9) point to Hermopolis as the place, and the date suits the Hermaeus group of documents. The existing portion of the document contains particulars as to the crops to be sown on the land, and the amount and manner of payment of the rent.

5. το μ̄εν: the ν of μ̄εν is clear, but με, if that is the correct reading, is so written as to form only one sign, resembling ν or λε. This line extends further than some of the others.

6. αρεστον: this confirms Grenfell and Hunt's suggested emendation of Amh. Pap. 89, l. 9, where the papyrus has δοκιμον αριστον. The third member of the phrase as it stands here is new; its restoration is due to Grenfell.

8. πρωτη μετρησει: cf. Amh. Pap. 88, l. 25.

9. μιαν δοχικω αντι μιας Αθηναιου: sc. μέτρον. Cf. Amh. Pap. 87, l. 21, and the editors' note. The use of the μέτρον δοχικόν points to Hermopolis as the region to which this document relates.

PAPYRUS 1158.—A.D. 226-227.

SALE by Aurelius Herminus to his brother, Aurelius Theognostus, of half of a two-thirds share, i.e. a third of the whole, in a house and appurtenances in the Western quarter of the Fort at Hermopolis. The buyer already possesses the other half of the same two-thirds share. The boundaries of the property are specified. For the sale by Aurelius Theognostus to his sister, Aurelia Dioscorous, of a third share of what is no doubt the same house, see Pap. 1298, which follows. The latter sale was in A.D. 231, so that the share in question may be the same which is here purchased from Aurelius Herminus.

As in Pap. 932 above, the first part of the document is a summary of the deed in the name of the purchaser and signed by the banker, giving the whole substance of the contract verbally, but without specifying the boundaries, &c., and being written with many abbreviations and in a less formal hand. To the left of the main document is affixed another sheet of papyrus, verso uppermost, on which are a few lines of writing. They are hopelessly defaced, but contain the names Διοσκορουτι, i.e. the sister of Herminus and Theognostus, and Πινουτιωνος, i.e. her legal representative in Pap. 1298. It cannot, therefore, be a docket of the contents of this document, but may possibly relate to the subsequent sale.

18. εγκυκ(λιον) : see above, introd. to Pap. 1201 (p. 4). The rate is apparently 5 per cent. (15 dr. on a sum of 300 dr.). When Wilcken published his Griechische Ostraka, nothing was known as to the rate of this tax in Roman times (cf. I. 184). Several Oxyrhynchus papyri (nos. 99, 242, 333) show that in the first century (down at least to A.D. 89) it was 10 per cent., as under the later Ptolemies. For the second century no evidence is at present published, but Grenfell and Hunt state that the Tebtunis papyri of that period show that the rate was still 10 per cent. The present document appears to show that early in the third century it was 5 per cent. It is unfortunate that the line containing the record of it is mutilated.

PAPYRUS 1298.—A.D. 231.

THE series of sales of fractions of what is evidently a single house between members of the same family is here continued, and, so far as our present knowledge extends, concluded, by the sale by Theognostus to his sister Dioscorous of a third share in this house. As observed in the introduction to Pap. 1158, this may well be the portion which Theognostus bought in 227 from Herminus. Evidence of the present sale has already been before us in Pap. 945 (p. 120), which is the affidavit of Dioscorous to the βιβλιοφύλακες ἐγκτήσεων, asking for the registration of her purchase. The present document is incomplete, containing only the banker's summary of the contents of the actual contract; but, as appears

PAPYRUS 1164.—A. D. 212.

THIS papyrus, containing as it does records of both sales and receipts, may stand between the two groups of such texts. It is a composite roll, consisting of ten originally distinct documents, fastened together. The bond of union lies in the fact that all the transactions to which the several documents relate were carried out through the bank of Anubion, son of Ammonius, in the city of Antinoöpolis; and all fall within the month of Pharmuthi in the 20th year of Caracalla. At the head of each document the bankers have made a note of the day of the month, the names of the parties, and the amount of money involved. It is imperfect at both ends, but it is unlikely that any complete document is lost, since the second is dated on the second day of the month, and the last on the 29th.

Besides the ordinary interest attaching to a group of business documents, this papyrus has a special value from the light which it throws upon the organization of Greek cities in Egypt. It comes from Antinoöpolis, the city founded by Hadrian in A. D. 122 in memory of his favourite Antinoüs, which was established from the first on the Greek model, with a senate and with citizens classified in tribes and demes. It is this latter fact that is especially illustrated by this papyrus. The names of most of the parties mentioned in it are followed by double epithets of the pattern Σαβείνιος ὁ καὶ Τροφωνιεύς, Σεβάστιος ὁ καὶ Ἡράκλειος, κ.τ.λ. Double epithets of this kind have been known previously, the commonest being Σωσικόσμιος ὁ καὶ Ἀλθαιεύς, and have been interpreted as containing the names of demes, which, for some unknown reason, had been re-named and consequently had duplicate titles. The true explanation was first given from this papyrus, which shows that in fact the first epithet contains the name of the tribe, the second that of the deme (see Archiv für Papyrusforschung, II. 70 ff.).

If Antinoöpolis was founded on the Athenian pattern, as seems likely, it presumably had ten tribes; and of these nine are named in the present papyrus, and the tenth is recorded elsewhere. The number of demes is quite uncertain; twenty-seven are mentioned here, and four elsewhere. The list of them may be repeated here from the article referred to above, with two additions which have come to light since that article was published.

¹ The article also contains a list of the tribe and deme-names, elsewhere than in Antinoöpolis, that are at present known. To this list the following additional deme-names may now be added from the Petrie Papyri: 'Ανδρομάχειος (P. P. III. i. col. 2, l. 20, xiv. 2, xix a. 12), Αἰτοδίκειος (ib. xiv. 8, cf. p. xii), Θεοξένειος (ib. xvii b. 4, cf. xi. 1), 'Ινάχειος (ib. xxi d. 6), Καστόρειος (ib. xi. 28, &c.), Λυσимаχέως (ib. vi a. 47), 'Υπερβόλιος (ib. cxxxii. 21). Four of these ('Ανδρομάχειος, Αἰτοδίκειος, Καστόρειος, and 'Υπερβόλιος) are explicitly stated to be Alexandrian, and the rest are probably so. M. Seymour de Ricci refers to two mutilated names on inscriptions: —ἀρειος ὁ καὶ Ε— (Petrie, Koptos, pl. xxviii, no. 7) and Φιλο— (Petrie, Naukratis, I. pl. xxx, no. 3); whether the last is a deme-name is uncertain. The Berlin papyrus, BGU. 981, has the new combination, 'Αγαθοδότειος ὁ καὶ 'Αλθαίεύς. Pap. 908 in the present volume gives the Alexandrian tribe Προπαπποσεβαστία with the deme-name Ζήνειος (which occurs by itself in Tebtunis Pap. 99, l. 55), and Pap. 1222 Αὔξισπόμενος ὁ καὶ 'Αλθαίεύς, making the eighth tribe which is known to have had a deme of this name; while a ninth is added by Pap. Lips. i, 'Αρχιστράτειος ὁ καὶ 'Αλθαίεύς. Tebt. Pap. 99 also has the new deme-name Εὐεργέσιος (l. 58).

(a) 1. The greater part of the width of this column is lost. It must have been very broad, since, to judge from l. 19, nearly sixty letters are lost in each line.

φυ^λ: here is the first proof that the adjective 'Οσειραντινόειος (cf. l. 5) denotes a tribe, not a deme.

17. ετησει: L αἰτήσει. So again l. 21.

21. Απ . . ευς: the letter before ευς is possibly δ or σ. The π may be a μ, and one letter is wholly lost in a lacuna.

(b) 1. The banker's abstracts at the head of each document are written in a different hand from the documents themselves, but are not reckoned in the numeration of hands. In the present instance, the date β̄ is inconsistent with that given in l. 3, and is presumably a mistake.

Γαμηλιεως: so, apparently, for Γαμηλιευσ. It is this word which should be restored in BGU. 179, l. 2, not Γαληνέως, as in the index to that volume.

7. γενομενης κ.τ.λ.: cf. e, l. 6.

8. . . . τι μηνι: not ενεστωτι, but just possibly οντι or παροντι, very badly written. This word and the date following are additions in a different hand, the original scribe having left a lacuna.

11. καταγαίω: l. καταγαιω. The form in -γαιος, instead of -γειος, recurs in e, l. 8.

12. εν τω δ̄ γρ̄ πλινθ̄ ζ̄: these (which recur in other documents of this series) must be the local divisions of Antinoöpolis, and are presumably to be supplied as γράμματι and πλινθίω. The latter word suggests that the town was laid out in regular blocks, like a chess-board or an American town.

13. τη: l. της.

14. Τιθοητιωνος και αλλων: sc. οικια.

15. Κορνηλιου και αλλων: added to fill a lacuna, as in l. 8.

19. εξακοσιας . . . χ: added, as in ll. 8 and 15.

(d) 3. Πανηου: sic; the whole of the date (except perhaps the day of the month, which has apparently been re-written) is in a different hand and fainter ink than the rest.

5. Ειρηνιεύς: so, quite plainly, for Ειρηνιεύς.

8. εμβαδείας: entry into possession of property by a creditor by way of security; cf. Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 190, and Pap. 1168 above (p. 135). The noun occurs in Oxy. Pap. 485, l. 33, and the verb in BGU. 101, l. 16, but not in this formula.

10. κατα παρακλησιν υπερ διαλυσεως: apparently the debtor might serve his creditor with notice of his intention to discharge his debt, and thereupon re-enter into possession of his property, on paying the amount of the debt together with the interest and all other incidental charges (in this case raising the original 330 drachmas of the debt to a total of 600).

(e) 3. δωδεκατη: here again the date of the day, and perhaps the month, are subsequent additions in spaces left for the purpose.

Καλλιτεν: the termination is blotted, but does not appear to be τεκ^ν, as one would expect.

4. Αλεξάνδρω: the same person as appears in c above, where he sells another part of the same inheritance.

(f) 5. Χαιρημονος: the same who has been named (as Σεβάστιος ὁ καὶ Ἡράκλειος) in documents c and e above.

φυλης της αυτης και δημου: i. e. Σεβαστίου τοῦ καὶ Ἡρακλείου. Here is the most explicit proof that these double epithets contain the names of tribe and deme.

9. Κορνηλιω: the purchaser in c, where he buys from Alexander the half house which Alexander had bought from the children of Chaeremon, and which Cornelius now sells back to them.

Cornelius gave Alexander 600 drachmae for the property, and now sells it, about a week later, for 700 drachmae.

20. τα: at first written ταυτα, but the first two letters have been washed out, and the third was no doubt intended to be so.

37. Φιλαντινοος κ.τ.λ.: cf. i, l. 22, and k, l. 27.

38. υπερ αυτου: probably και has dropped out before this. The signature of Dioscorus is in very illiterate uncials.

(g) This is a very broad column (composed of one complete κόλλημα, with parts of two others to right and left), but much less in height than its neighbours. It is in perfect preservation and clearly written, and the few scribe's errors in it explain themselves. It is interesting from the number of priests of different temples mentioned in it.

measuring 15 inches, and composed of 1½ κολλήματα. The minute enumeration of the furniture of a boat in ll. 7-11 is interesting, and contains several new words.

5. The word at the end of the line might be read as ενεχ[ομ]ηνην, but the sense is not apparent, and it is doubtful if there is room for the letters ομ. The κατα which follows is perhaps repeated by mistake.

6. μισθοπρασιαν: a new word, whose significance cannot be properly estimated without more evidence. As in the present instance the lease is for 60 years, long before the lapse of which the boat would certainly have ceased to exist, it may be taken to mean a sale in the form of a lease. It is to be observed that payment is made by a lump sum, not by a yearly rent.

7. κεχαλατριωμενον: cf. χαλάδριον in Oxy. Pap. 646, where it occurs apparently as part of a weaver's appliances.

αρμενω: this seems the most probable restoration, though the singular does not occur elsewhere.

10. κατωτιον καταγευστριδα: cf. ll. 17, 25. Apparently a small boat is meant, but both words are new.

11. ανηκοσ: so MS., apparently, for ἀνήκοσι, though the last three letters might equally, or better, be read as -μας.

14. προκτητικας: or προβλητικας, and so again in l. 27.

22. εἰς τὸ δημοσίον: λ , καὶ εἰς τὸ δ.

30. Sarapion seems to have written for both parties, since both subscriptions are in the same hand.

(i) A plainly written document, except that it is badly rubbed down the left-hand edge. Its contents are rather curious, as they show that an athlete, who had gained the privilege of being supported at the public expense (σίτησις) by his victories in the great games, could transfer this privilege to another. Here Turbon, having twice been victorious as a boxer in the Antinoeia, is able to sell the right of σίτησις to two youths, for whom their father buys it for 1000 drachmae. The father is a member of the Senate of Antinoopolis.

8. . . . ταλιέως: the first part of the word has been miswritten and corrected. The letter before τ appears to be α or μ.

9. τῶν ἱερονικῶν: in CIG. 4683, l. 4, mention is made of a certain Sarapion as τῶν ἐξ Ἀντινόου ἱερων[ικ]ῶν (to be restored so, apparently, not ἱεροποιῶν). Cf. Pap. 1179, l. 21 (p. 145).

(k) This, the last, column measures 1 ft. 3½ in. in width, and has lost at least an inch at the right-hand end (more in the case of the first four lines). It is composed of two κολλήματα, of 7½ and 9 (?) inches. It is well and clearly written, except where it has suffered from rubbing.

8. ἀπογραφῇ: l. ἀπογραφῇ. This is the census of A.D. 201/2. προφέρεται κ.τ.λ.: cf. l. 21. It is doubtful if there would have been room for οφείλεσθαι here, and it may have been omitted by mistake.

26. For the supplement cf. z, ll. 23, 24.

28. Σαβινιος: the reading is a little uncertain, but the demename Τρυφονευς appears to be the Τροφωνιεύς of b, l. 6. The writing is very rough.

6. Receipts.

PAPYRUS 890.—B. C. 6.

RECEIPT for the payment of 60 drachmas, residue of the price of five cows. No locality is named, and the parties are not described, nor is the total amount of the price specified. The money is paid through the private bank of Hermaeus. There was in Arsinoe, as we learn from Rain. Corp. CCXXX, a bank [πλ]ησίον τοῦ Ἑρμαίου; and possibly Ἑρμαίου in the present papyrus is the genitive of Ἑρμαῖον, not Ἑρμαῖος. But the Rainer papyrus is over a century later and can hardly be used as evidence. The present receipt is couched in the same form as in Pap. 1164 above (b, d, g, i), the body of the document being a statement of the payment addressed by the debtor to the creditor, to which the creditor appends his autograph receipt; and it has no principal verb. Compare also for the form B. M. Pap. 332 and Rain. Corp. XIV; and see Gradenwitz, Einführung in die Papyruskunde, p. 139 ff.

PAPYRUS 892.—A.D. 16.

IF the interpretation of lines 7 and 8 given in the note is correct, this is a receipt for rent in the form of hay, to the value of 1000 drachmas. No locality is specified. The beginnings of the first few lines have been rubbed, and almost all traces of the ink have disappeared from the first half of lines 1 and 2.

7, 8. χορτου δραχμας χιλιας: this apparently means '1000 drachmas worth of hay.' After χορ comes no doubt the usual restatement of the amount in numerals; but it is difficult to accommodate the visible remains to the figures required, viz. < ā.

PAPYRUS 840.—A. D. 129.

RECEIPT for 1432 drachmas, in part-payment of rent. The beginning of the papyrus is mutilated, and there seems to be no indication of the residence of the parties; but one of them is perhaps described as a Greek citizen (of Alexandria?).

2. A tribe-name, Κλανδιανός ὁ καὶ . . . ιδος, would suit the visible remains; or the last word may be read as παιδος.

Ευτυχιδη Σαραπιωνος: probably the person of this name who is mentioned several times in the Amherst Papyri. See especially the introduction to Amh. Pap. 131. The dates correspond.

PAPYRUS 907.—A. D. 134.

THIS is a receipt from a woman named Thasia, daughter of Lucius, for the repayment of money owing to her. Only part of the document is preserved, and of this the last five lines are mutilated; but the money seems to be a deposit or part of a deposit. The word ὀγδοήκου[τα] occurs in line 14 and seems to be the amount repaid; but whether this was the whole amount owing is not clear. The payment is made through the bank of Chaeremon at Dionysias, but the residence of the parties to the deed is not specified.

10, 11. The bank of Palamedes at Dionysias is mentioned in BGU. 70 (see the Corrigenda to vol. I), of A.D. 131, and BGU. 468, of A.D. 150. The bank of Chaeremon, which is named in l. 4, does not occur elsewhere.

PAPYRUS 909 a.—A. D. 136.

THIS very illiterate document is concerned with the sale of a camel, and should more properly have been included in the section dealing with sales. The beginning is damaged, both by rubbing and mutilation, nor is there any subscription, so that the names of the parties are not certain; but the sale seems to be from Anchorimphis to Ptolemaeus. The former is described as resident in Dionysias, in the division of Themistes, and apparently also in the neighbouring village of Euhemeria; while the latter belongs to the metropolis, i.e. Arsinoë.

PAPYRUS 918.—A.D. 171.

THIS is a receipt from Pacysis son of Pacysis for 112 drachmas owing to Harpagathes, his father's brother, who has died leaving him heir. The earlier part of the document is considerably mutilated, and the whole is written in a very cursive hand.

4. There is room for more than Παρθικου Μεγιστου in the lacuna, but in November, A.D. 171, Marcus Aurelius had not yet assumed the title of Germanicus, so that the line was probably a short one.

9. Γυναικων Νησου (Grenfell and Hunt): near Socnopaei Nesus, cf. Wessely, Trographie, p. 56. The letter after Γ might be ω.

11. γωνατι: or [Παουη]τι, the description of personal marks being omitted, and the age of Pacysis written in words; but the slight traces before τι suit a rather better than η.

20. καθ ομολογ(ε)ιαν goes with ωφειλεν, not with επι κληρονομω.

22, 23. ην και φησιν is perhaps possible, but does not suit the remains very well.

PAPYRUS 920.—A.D. 176.

A RECEIPT from Horion son of Onnophris, apparently a priest (the reading in lines 3-4 is doubtful) of Suchus, for the rent of a garden, from the month of Pachon, 175, to that of Pharmuthi, 176. The papyrus is somewhat mutilated, and is so badly written that decipherment is difficult. The curious division of words in lines 6 and 11 should be noted.

3. [σ]τολειστης: the letter before ολ looks more like part of a π than a τ, but στολιστής is the only word which suggests itself which is at all reconcileable with the remains. For a ἱερεὺς καὶ στολιστής of Socnopaei Nesus (i.e. of the god Suchus) see BGU. 321, 322.

PAPYRUS 1210.—A. D. 264.

RECEIPT for various amounts of wine, acknowledged by Aur. Maximus in a letter to his father, Aur. Heroninus. It is dated in Phaophi, Athyr, and Choiach of the 12th year, and the writing is plainly of the third century. There need therefore be no doubt that it belongs to the correspondence of Heroninus which has been described above in connexion with Pap. 1226 (p. 103). The 12th year here can only be that of Gallienus; and that this (with the interpolated rule of Macrianus and Quietus) is the reign to which the Heroninus-papyri as a group must be referred has been proved (since p. 103 was printed off) by Breccia (Bull. de la société archéol. d'Alexandrie, vol. i, fasc. 3, 1905, p. 136) and Wessely (Anzeiger d. phil.-hist. Klasse d. Akad. in Wien, 1906, no. 8), from papyri in their possession in which the names of the emperors are given. See also the still more recent note of Vitelli in the 'Aggiunte e Correzioni' to his Papiri Fiorentini (Papiri Greco-Egizii, vol. i), p. ix.

5. γεννηματων suits the remains rather better than γεννηματος.

6. ευσχημονων: cf. Vitelli, Pap. Fior. 16, note on l. 20. The complimentary epithet appears first in the third century.

7. αχ^ω: this stands for μονοχωρα (see l. 12). See note on Pap.

1226, l. 7 (p. 103), and for an estimate of its size see below, Pap. 1170 verso, note on l. 174.

7. Loans.

PAPYRUS 1273.—A. D. 29.

A MUTILATED acknowledgement of a loan of 593 drachmas, interesting chiefly for the illiterate mis-spellings with which it abounds.

12, 13. πεντακοσ(ε)ιας τριακοντα τρις: in l. 3 the amount of the loan is given as 593 drachmas. The whole document so abounds with mistakes that it is impossible to say which statement of the amount of the loan is correct.

14. επιστασθαι: it is doubtful if there is room for this, but the writing is much compressed here.

PAPYRUS 939.—A. D. 225.

A LOAN of 64 drachmas in Hermopolis. The papyrus is mutilated in places, but the writing is as a rule clear. It belongs to the collection of papers relating to the family of Hermaeus, the lender being Aurelius Theognostus.

3. Απη^λ: Aurelius Copreas occurs in Papp. 943 and 945 as κύριος of Aurelia Dioscorous, sister of the Aurelius Theognostus who appears in the present document; and as in Pap. 945 she is described as ἀναγραφομένης ἐπ' ἀμφοδου Πόλεως Ἀπηλιωτοῦ, the reading Απη^λ here seems fairly certain.

9. The letter after κε has a long tail, and it looks as if κεφαλαιου had been repeated by mistake.

21. το σωμα : these words are certain, but the preceding letters only remotely resemble εγρ]. The whole phrase is probably the same as in Pap. 943 below, l. 15 (p. 176).

23. ειγ : ειδεναι. The reading of the whole of this final formula is doubtful, the writing being extremely cursive. As a matter of fact, Copreas does not write for anyone but himself; yet it does not seem possible to find room for another name.

PAPYRUS 943.—A. D. 227.

A DEPOSIT (παραθήκη) of 600 drachmas by Aurelia Dioscorous with her brother, Aurelius Theognostus. The papyrus, with the exception of some gaps in the upper part, is well preserved.

PAPYRUS 1243.—A.D. 227.

THIS is a loan by Aurelius Phoebammon, a pancratiast, to Aurelius Cornelius of Hermopolis. The description of the former in lines 5 and 6 is of some interest, and may be compared with similar descriptions in Pap. 1178. There is a difficulty with regard to the dating clause, which is mutilated. The name Αυρηλίου is clear, and the fact that both parties to the transaction are called Aurelius seems to show conclusively that the document cannot be earlier than Caracalla. The numeral, ζ, shows however that Caracalla, who counted his regnal years consecutively after those of Septimius Severus, is out of the question; and the only possible emperor is therefore Severus Alexander. His invariable formal title is αὐτοκράτωρ καῖσαρ Μάρκος Αὐρήλιος Σευήρος Ἀλέξανδρος Εὐσεβῆς Εὐτυχῆς Σεβαστός; but in the present papyrus there is a whole line and part of another between Ἀλεξάνδρου and Εὐσεβοῦς, and we can only suppose that the emperor must have been described by other titles, of which hitherto no indication has been given. The papyrus is considerably mutilated throughout.

8. Accounts.

PAPYRUS 1171.—B. C. 8.

THE following farm-account contains several items of interest, and is palaeographically valuable on account of its date. Papyri of the reign of Augustus are scarce, and the hand in which this is written is sufficiently careful and well formed. The accounts relate mainly to the maintenance of sheep and goats, and the cultivation of ἄρακος; but incidental expenses are included, together with the public taxes (ll. 69–74). The papyrus is mutilated, and both the beginning and the end are lost. On the verso are the official documents of the reign of Claudius, which have been printed above, p. 105. It is noteworthy that the accounts were thus preserved for half a century before the verso was put to use.

2. The form in which the abbreviation for δραχμή appears in this papyrus suggests the origin of the common symbol ζ. It is an α of the Ptolemaic cursive form (Λ) attached to a Γ, which itself is no doubt an amalgamation of a P and a Γ, so that ζ = αγ = αργ = αργυρίου δραχμή.

7. ιβμηνου: i.e. δωδεκαμήνου, here used as a feminine substantive.

10. κ' τ: i.e. 300 κοτύλαι. Since there were 12 κοτύλαι in a χοῦς, and 8 χόες in a μετρητής of wine (Revenue Pap. col. 31, l. 6, Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 757), this amounts to 3½ μετρηταί, and the price of a μετρητής works out as approximately 5½ drachmas. Six drachmas is a common price in the Petrie Papyri, though usually it is rather higher (cf. P. Salluzzi, Sui prezzi in Egitto nell' età Tolemaica, 1901, p. 42).

ιη: η as a numeral in this papyrus is of the υ form in an early stage. As a letter, the older Η form is retained.

11. πισσης υγρας: cf. Pap. 929, ll. 69, 71, πίσης ξηρās (p. 43).

15. αριθμητικου: cf. Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 351. It appears as a tax on κάτοικοι in BGU. 883 [= 236], and 817, and Brit. Mus. Papp. 380, 451 (reading κατυκον = κατοίκων, with Wilcken), but its precise nature is unknown.

17. ψψς: this should be ψπς, i.e. 720 + 66. The κ in l. 14 is mutilated, but it cannot be read as λ.

21. υπερδαπανωι: i.e. debit balance, or deficit.

26-31. These lines give a statement of the numbers of sheep and goats in the flocks at the end of the twenty-second year, before proceeding to the account for the twenty-third year.

32-49. Against the deficit in money is to be set off the value of the ἄρακος left in store, after allowing for what is required as food for the flocks.

37. ξυλαμη(ν): cf. Oxy. Pap. 280, ll. 15, 16, ξυλαμήσαι ἀράκω, and Herwerden, Lexicon Suppletorium, s.v., where the reference should be to the papyrus just mentioned. Cf. also Pap. 838, note on l. 10 (p. 140).

38. χορταρακον is new, = ἄρακος for fodder, or (as Grenfell and Hunt suggest) a mixture of χόρτος and ἄρακος, on the analogy of κριθοπυρός.

49. < $\bar{\lambda}$ α: here < plainly has the value ἀργ(υρίου), cf. l. 25.

54. ἐλαιου^σ: i.e. ἐλαιοῦση. The σ is written close to ἐλαιου, and apparently cannot be taken as a separate word (= σύν). In this papyrus the words are generally separated.

55. χορτοσπερμου: cf. Oxy. Pap. 533, l. 7, and the Edict. Diocl. in Ἐφημ. Ἀρχ. 1899, 150.

59. Ἰβίωνι Πετσαφθι: cf. Pap. 1166, l. 12. If the places are identical, Πετσαφθι must be an earlier form of Τεταφθι, but the two documents are only fifty years apart.

60. ἀναβολῆς ναυβίων; ναύβιον here has its Ptolemaic sense of a quantity of earth excavated for the construction of a dyke or bank, not its Roman sense of a tax, presumably for the performance of such labour. Indeed, as it stands here, it might actually mean the dyke itself, but this must be a derivative sense from the meaning, which is found in the Petrie papyri of the third century B.C., of the units by which the construction of the dyke is measured. Cf. l. 70, where it appears in the Roman sense, as a public tax, paid in money.

68. ἀμεσησιοῖς: in Amh. Pap. 93, l. 12, the word ἀμεσσειοῖς occurs as the name of a feast, and is thence restored in Fayum Pap. 95, l. 16. In the present document the reading ἀμεσησιοῖς is clear, and it should probably be restored in the others. The name recalls that of Amesesis, which occurs in Georgius Syn-cellus (Bonn ed., p. 180) among the kings of Egypt.

72. ἐκτῆς τεμαχῶν: this tax has not occurred previously.

Beginnings of the lower half of a mutilated column follow.

73. πηχισμον: the term is familiar as indicating the measurements of areas of land in contracts of sale or lease; here it must be a tax for the taking of such measurements.

74. επαρουριον: cf. Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 193, and Fayum Papp. 41, 226, where it occurs in conjunction with the ναύβιον, as here.

PAPYRUS 1177.—A.D. 113.

ACCOUNTS of the four commissioners for the waterworks of the μητρόπολις, addressed to Demetrius, the ἐξεταστής. The μητρόπολις is not named, nor is there anything in the accounts themselves to identify it. It is probably Arsinoë or Hermopolis, since most of the papyri in this volume come from those nomes; and one slight indication (l. 57) points rather to the latter. The first part of the papyrus is well preserved on the whole, though in places somewhat rubbed; but the last seven remaining columns are badly damaged, both by rubbing and mutilation. Continuous decipherment is in parts of these columns impossible, but all except the last three have been transcribed, as they contain several new words or uses of words, and supply interesting information as to the work in connexion with the springs and reservoirs.

The first column of the account is preceded by a space of $7\frac{1}{2}$ inches, containing the conclusion of another account, which ends with the summary, $\gamma(\epsilon)\acute{\iota}\nu\omicron\nu(\tau\alpha\iota)\ \epsilon\pi\acute{\iota}\ \tau\omicron\delta\ \alpha\upsilon\tau\omicron\delta\ \upsilon\pi\epsilon\rho\delta\alpha\pi\alpha\nu\eta(\mu\alpha\tau\alpha)\ \acute{\alpha}\rho\gamma(\upsilon\rho\acute{\iota}\omicron\nu)\ \langle\epsilon\rho\nu\theta$. There are also some rough notes in a different hand, which has also made occasional entries in the margins of the main account. The account itself, after the introductory heading (col. 1), gives the income of the Board for the period in question, which covers the last three months of the 16th year of Trajan, and the first two months of the 17th year. Their income is derived from certain of the town officials (the gymnasiarchs, the κοσμητής, and the ἐξηγητής), who pay a certain fixed sum per month, and from payments for the supply of water to various baths and fountains, for which there is a fixed daily charge. Their total income for the five months (ll. 62–63) amounts to very nearly two talents. The rest of the roll is occupied by the expenditure, which is divided into several sections. First (ll. 65–111) come payments to contractors for men employed in pumping. The contractor himself receives 40 drachmas a month, the labourers only $1\frac{1}{3}$ drachmas (unless this is to be taken as their daily wage, see note on l. 70). The next charge (ll. 112–157) relates to animal labour, being for the drivers of the oxen employed on the works. Then there are payments for jars (ll. 158–163), cords for fastening the jars (ll. 164–166) and for the machinery (ll. 167–174), wood for the machinery (ll. 175–224), pitch (ll. 225–229), nails, &c. (ll. 230–247), fodder (ll. 248–266), carpenters (ll. 267–276), solderers (ll. 277–293) and materials for their work (ll. 294–310), and labour in maintaining the underground pipes and wells connected with the fountains (ll. 311–334); after which the account becomes too much mutilated to be followed further.

21. ομοίων: I. ομοίως.

30-31. ημερησι^ο . . . — ιη: that is, 18 obols a day for the month. The obols are reckoned at $7\frac{1}{4}$ to the (silver) drachma (cf. Pap. 131 passim, Oxy. Pap. vol. I. p. 78, II. p. 188, Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 734). As therefore the fraction for reducing them to drachmas is $\frac{29}{4}$, the reckoning is, for convenience, made for 29 days only, the 30th day being added afterwards. Thus the total for the month is < $\sigma\beta$ — ιη. The sign —, which usually means 1 obol, here stands simply for 'obol.'

33. The reading of the papyrus appears to be αντι των αιρουρ[ο]υσων, i.e. ἀντὶ τῶν αἰρουσῶν.

43. $\rho\nu\beta$ — ιδ: the total of the items is 144 dr. 81 ob., or 152 dr. 23 ob., not 152 dr. 14 ob.

50. $\sigma\epsilon$ — $\lambda\varsigma$: in this total the item of 14 dr. 5 ob. mentioned in l. 47 is not reckoned.

56. ημπ⁻: one expects ημερων κδ, but the third letter is plainly π, followed by a letter or abbreviation-mark above the line.

τιγ — ο: the total of the items is 313 dr. 57 ob. The 13 obols which should normally have been paid in Mesoré (l. 53) have inadvertently been included, as well as the 5 actually paid.

57. προσευχης Θηβαιων: the existence of a synagogue of natives of Thebes makes Hermopolis more probable than Arsinoë as the town to which this papyrus relates. The high water-rate paid by the Jews is noticeable.

62. Παχων ῑ: so MS., apparently, but ᾱ must be meant, Pachon having been reckoned as a full month in every case.

63. The totals for the various sections amount, as they stand, to 11861 dr. 289 ob., which (at 7½ obols to the drachma) is equivalent to 1 tal. 5900 dr. 6½ ob.

70. ανδρων ψςζ̄: it is possible that this means, not 797 men working for 30 days each, but 797 days' work done in all during the month, so that one man who did 30 days' work would be reckoned as 30 men. This would account for the method by which the wages are calculated, viz. 40 drachmas for 30 men. Thus a man regularly employed would earn (or rather the contractor would receive on his behalf) 40 dr. a month; but not every man would be regularly employed. 1½ drachmas seems impossibly low for a monthly wage.

73. γε: sc. γ(ε)ίνεται: 2000 obols are approximately equal to 276 drachmas.

154. εως κ: κ seems to be a mistake for λ.

158. κεραμειδων: evidently jars for carrying water, as there could hardly be so large a demand for tiles. The number required each month shows how rapid the consumption of such vessels was, and explains the origin of the countless ostraca.

167. κομματ(α): an unfamiliar use of the word, as it is evidently a part of the mechanism of the water-engines, and is produced by a σχοινοπλόκος (l. 170).

295. μοτωματος: hitherto only known in the sense of 'lint' for dressing wounds; here it is a material used in soldering metal vessels (cf. ll. 301-303).

313. φραι^τ: the reading is certain, but the word is new, unless it is a corruption of φρέατα. This section deals with the underground part of the waterworks.

325. ανακαθαρσιν: or ανακαθαρει, cf. ll. 326-7.

15. ξ̄: in the papyrus this is a ξ with the top horizontal stroke considerably prolonged, not a separate stroke above it as here printed. It is the symbol for ξέστης.

20. This line is an insertion, though by the first hand. θινινων: so MS. apparently for θινινων.

PAPYRUS 1165.—2nd cent.

1. Φεμπησεως: or Φεμησεως, and so also in l. 4.

2. ορθου: this seems to mean 'standing' hay.

9. Μεφεως: l. Μεμφεως, the village in the division of Polemon (Wessely, op. cit., p. 105).

PAPYRUS 965.—3rd cent.

8. κα γ: γ is a fraction, but the line which should have been written above it to mark this has been omitted.

9. κοβαλισ(μον): cf. B. M. Pap. vol. I, pp. 178 sq., though there the verb is κοβαλείω, from which one would expect κοβάλευσις. It appears to mean 'carting.' Cf. Oxy. Pap. 146, l. 2.

11. χγ = 3 χαλκοί.

PAPYRUS 1170 verso.—A. D. 258–259.

THE following long text, which is written on the back of the large revenue-register printed above (p. 92 ff.), belongs to the papers of Heroninus (see pp. 103, 173). He is here described as προνοούμενος τῶν περὶ τὴν Θεαδελφίαν, and the document is addressed to Aurelius Heracleides, senator and ex-gymnasiarch of Arsinoe. Reference is made to the sixth year; the emperor is not named, but he can only be Gallienus. As has been shown above, all the Heroninus papyri which can be dated with certainty belong to the period covered by this emperor, and unless further evidence should come to light to extend the period of Heroninus' correspondence over a wider range than at present is necessary, it will be safe to assign it to the fifteen years of his reign (A.D. 254–268, the years of Gallienus' sole reign being numbered continuously with those of his joint rule with Valerianus), including the interpolated reign of the usurpers Macrianus and Quietus (A.D. 260–262). Some more documents belonging to this group will be found below, in the section containing letters (pp. 209–211).

The present document is an account of receipts and expenditure on the property of which Heroninus was steward at Theadelphia, including payments to workmen and allowances of wine, together with a daily record of work done. The beginning is lost, but the first column preserved contains the commencement of a sub-section. New main sections of the account, with fresh headings, begin at cols. 7 and 11. The papyrus is much damaged by rubbing and mutilation, and many parts of it do not admit of transcription. Where whole columns are thus omitted, no account is taken of them in the numeration of the lines.

58. Κιαβαν : elsewhere Κιβαν.

73. δ̄ : corrected from ε.

75. Before μονοχ^ω, δι has been written (for διχ^ω) and struck out.

79 οξυρυν^γχ^ι : it appears from lines 358-361 that this measure = 1½ μονόχωρα. It is curious that it has not yet appeared among the Oxyrhynchus papyri. For other local wine-measures cf. Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 764 ff. The following lines, 82-83, show that three beasts of burden (i.e. asses, as appears later, e.g. l. 386) carried a load of 12 δίχωρα, which gives 8 μονόχωρα as the load of a single ass ; and this is confirmed by ll. 145 (2 asses carry 6 'oxyrhyncha' and 4 δίχωρα = 17 μονόχωρα), 164-165 (3 asses, 27 μονόχωρα), 217 (4 asses, 32 μονόχωρα), 249-250 (2 asses, 16 μονόχωρα), 366 (4 asses, 32 μονόχωρα), 387 (2 asses, 16 μονόχωρα). This result may be compared with Pap. 1169, ll. 48, 73, and introductory note (p. 43), where four κεράμια appears to be the load of an ass ; from which it may be concluded that a μονόχωρον = ½ κεράμιον = 4 χόες.

86. After this line a line has been begun and struck out. It reads δυ . . . και.

88. Before < ξ—, λβ— has been written and struck out.

94. ξδ—: a correction from ιε.

112. Π̄: this is apparently the sign for 10,000, and the α shows that only one 10,000 is intended. It is difficult to see what the number means. It cannot be workmen. The abbreviated word before it appears to be the same as in l. 114, but its interpretation is doubtful. It is paid for at the rate of rather more than 200 to a drachma; and if it denotes an area, a comparison with ll. 115, 116, shows that 10,000 would be equivalent to 3 arouras, so that one would equal 3 square cubits.

< ξ—: before this something has been struck out.

113. Perhaps δράττοντες (whence δράγματα, cf. l. 126), though the active is not otherwise known.

123. After this line a line has been struck out. It reads: και ομοῑ υπερ τιμης οψαριδιων < ιβ—.

124. After αλος something has been struck out.

127. Perhaps μεταφέρ(οντες), but it is not quite easy to reconcile the remains with this.

128. Before της, ως has apparently been struck out. The sum of 3½ dr. is apparently the total of the 2 dr. and 1½ dr. mentioned in the preceding line, and 17½ dr. is the result of multiplying this by 5; but 17 has been written instead of 17½.

299. Κυαμωνος: there is a space large enough for two letters between K and υ. There is, however, no trace of writing, and as the ink in the lines above and below this is quite clear at this point in the papyrus, it seems certain that nothing has been written. Κυαμωνος is therefore probably the right extension of the abbreviation Κυα which occurs so frequently (see col. I above and col. II below).

304. Before εργ̄, two or three letters have been struck out.

305. υποσχ(ιζοντες): so Hunt, referring to Amh. Pap. 91, l. 11, and Fayum Pap. 112, l. 3, where ὑποσχισμός (= ploughing) occurs among other operations of agriculture.

In this line and the next, two or three letters have been struck out after κληρ,. The first deleted letter in this line is clearly δ; and probably δρῦ has been written in both cases.

307. Κτησει: it is not clear whether this is a proper name or not, but it occurs repeatedly as an indication of place.

317. Before οι προκει, two letters have been struck out. The ο seems also to be struck out, but this is probably due to inadvertence.

is by no means clear how it is to be explained. The reading is quite plainly ησει in ll. 492, 498, 506, 507. Here and in l. 471 it would be possible to read ηγει. ηργει is not possible.

9. Letters.

PAPYRUS 854.—1st century.

AN interesting letter from Nearchus to Heliodorus, describing a journey up the Nile to Syene and the source of the Nile (!), and a visit to the oracle of Ammon. The letter is unfortunately mutilated, but we learn that the writer consulted the oracle (if line 10 is correctly given), and that, in accordance with an usage which we know to have been common in ancient as well as in modern times, he carved the names of his friends in the temples.

1. α —: possibly αδελφω, as the name of the addressee is shown by the verso to be Heliodorus. This line is separated from the next by about twice the usual space.

7. γενομενος τε: at first written γενομην, but the letters ην are struck out and ενος τε added above the line.

10. ευτομα: for ευστομα?

PAPYRUS 897.—A.D. 84.

THE following letter is evidently addressed to some person living in the Arsinoite nome; and we may infer from line 12 that the writer lived at Alexandria. Only part of the letter remains, the portion transcribed being preceded by the remains of another column, which has probably been the first, as the first two lines seem to be the address. The portion which remains concerns the writer's coming to the Arsinoite nome. He appears to have met with very injurious treatment on his last visit, and declares that he will not come unless his correspondent sends for him, and can guarantee him against a repetition of the injury; and he repeatedly asks him to let him know the truth on this point. He assures his correspondent of the friendship which he bears him, and concludes by saying that he knows the other's care for his interests. In a postscript he sends friendly greetings to his correspondent's household.

7. παραγεναμενου: altered from παραγενου εις.

9. ησα: síz, apparently for ἦς.

13. δινα: if this is the true reading it must be a colloquial use of the demonstrative τὸ δέινα without the article.

15. λαβωι: after this word πεμψ has been written and struck out.

18. ευρησει: perhaps the bearer of the letter is the subject of this verb; and αυτος no doubt refers to Dios.

20. μετεωρων: cf. Oxy. Pap. 238, l. 1 and introduction; but the reading here is very uncertain.

22-3. μελανησης: it is not clear what this can mean, but the reading of all the letters except λ (which might possibly be τ) is certain. μετανησης, for μετανοήσης, is possible. There does not seem to be room for πλανησης.

28. After τεκνου the following words have been written and struck out: . . με . . σε | ουκ επιθυμωι εις Αρσινοιτην π.

PAPYRUS 1173.—A. D. 125.

THE following letter is apparently one from a farm bailiff to his employer. Owing to the mutilation of the papyrus it is impossible to make out completely the sense of the letter, but it is a recital of the business which the writer has transacted.

PAPYRUS 848 verso.—A.D. 213 (?).

A SHORT note giving order for the payment of five fleeces to the wife of Agathinus. It is dated in the 21st year, which, if the identification suggested in the note on l. 1 is correct, must be that of Caracalla, the other documents connected with the individual in question bearing dates in A.D. 216–219.

6. Φαμενωθ : this is very cursively written, and might possibly be read as Φαρμουθι ζ.

PAPYRUS 948 verso.—A.D. 257.

THE following letter is part of the voluminous correspondence of Heroninus, described here as φρο(ντιστής) simply, and elsewhere as φροντιστής of Theadelphia and other places. See above, pp. 103, 173, 193. The present letter is from Heraclides. There are three other letters from this Heraclides to Heroninus in the present collection (Papp. 962, 968 verso, and 1122 b, of which 962 and 1122 b are transcribed below), and from these we learn that Heraclides was the son of Heroninus. The hand, it may be observed, is different in each case. This letter is addressed to Heroninus and Syrus, and is dated in the fourth year, which (see p. 173) presumably means A.D. 256/7. The document on the recto is dated in A.D. 236 (see below, in § 10).

PAPYRUS 962.—A.D. 254 or 261.

A LETTER from Heraclides to his father Heroninus, requesting him to receive from the shepherd Αταις 200 drachmas, which he is to employ as he thinks fit. See introduction to the preceding papyrus. The date is in Thoth of the second year, i.e. presumably either A.D. 254 or 261.

PAPYRUS 1122 b.—circ. A.D. 254–268.

A LETTER from Heraclides to his father Heroninus. It is only fragmentary, and would not be worth transcribing but for the chance that other portions of it may exist in other collections.

3. τυπον: the υπον is certain, but there is no trace of the cross stroke of τ. Possibly it is meant for λυπον = λοιπόν. If the reading is correct, the word perhaps means 'mould,' αδιτηλατη: the reading seems certain, but it is quite uncertain what the word can mean.

5. αμεσυσ: l. ἀμέσως?

7. It is not certain that a letter is lost between και and ρ.

PAPYRUS 964.—Late 2nd-3rd cent.

IT is not clear at first what relation the two parts of the following document bear to each other. They are by the same hand, and are separated only by a line drawn between them. The second is a letter, evidently referring to the preparations for a wedding feast (cf. line 19). The first is a short register of customs payments, for the 28th, 29th, and 30th of Mesore. The fact that the letter is addressed to Serapammon, μισθωτῆς ἐρημοφυλακίας, suggests that the sender Apollonius may have been a subordinate official employed by him to collect the customs. Apollonius sends him, for some reason, a register for the three last days of Mesore (the papyrus is complete at the top, and nothing has been written before Μεσορη κῆ), and takes the opportunity to add a letter on private affairs. For customs registers of this kind, see Papp. 929 and 1169 in the present catalogue (pp. 40-47), with the prefaces thereto. The present one is noteworthy inasmuch as the entries are all for imports, whereas in the others the exports are in a large majority. As however only two days are in question, no conclusions can be drawn from this. The entry Ἑρμῆς for the 29th should be compared with similar entries in Pap. 1169 already referred to. It appears that there were two officials, and that on the 29th Hermes was on duty; so that Apollonius makes no return for that day. In 1169 the other official is also called Hermes; the writing of the present papyrus appears to be of a later date, but it is so rough that it cannot be fixed with certainty. The fact that the letter is addressed to the μισθωτῆς ἐρημοφυλακίας may perhaps suggest that the ἐρημοφυλακία is the tax meant in all of these customs registers. For an account of this tax, see Fayum Towns, p. 195 sq., and Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 359.

THE concluding portion of a letter; the writer is the father-in-law or mother-in-law of the recipient, and the subject is the nursing of a newly arrived infant. The names of both parties are lost. The letter concludes with greetings to several persons who are named. The writing on the recto (see below, p. 220) being dated in A.D. 249, the present text belongs probably to the latter part of the third century.

OF the miscellaneous texts which form the last section of the Roman period in this volume the most interesting is that here printed, which is indeed in some respects the most unique in the present volume, no similar document having been hitherto published, though several inscriptions are in existence which throw light upon its contents. It is a diploma of membership conferred on an athlete of Hermopolis (our friend Herminus ὁ καὶ Μῶρος, cf. p. 29) by the athletic club known as ἡ ἱερὰ ξυστικὴ περιπολιστικὴ Ἀδριανὴ Ἀντωνιανὴ Σεπτιμιανὴ σύνοδος τῶν περὶ τὸν Ἡρακλέα καὶ τὸν ἀγώνιον καὶ αὐτοκράτορα καίσαρα Λούκιον Σεπτίμιον Σευήρον Περτίνακα Σεβαστόν. The latter part of the title no doubt varied with each reign, and in its shortened form (see ll. 2, 3) the title ended with the word σύνοδος. The society was already known to us from a series of inscriptions (CIG. III. 5906–5914, see Franz's introduction, p. 779 = Kaibel, IGI. 1054, 1055, 1102–1105, 1107, 1109, 1110); but the present document adds some further details of its history to those which are there given. Nos. 5906 and 5907 record privileges conferred upon the society by Hadrian and Antoninus, to which, no doubt, it owed the names Ἀδριανὴ and Ἀντωνιανὴ which it bears here; and the present document quotes other favours derived from Claudius, Vespasian, and Septimius Severus. So far as can be gathered from the inscriptions which have come down to us, it was the principal athletic society in the Roman empire (cf. Friedländer, Darstellungen aus der Sittengeschichte Roms, ed. 6, II. 491 f.).

The arrangement of the document is as follows. The text is written across the roll, i.e. with the writing parallel to its height, as in documents of the Byzantine period. To the top of the roll was attached another piece of papyrus, about ten inches in length (cf. note on l. 7), on which is written, first, the name of the person to whom the diploma is granted (l. 1), and secondly a copy of the words which actually confer the diploma (ll. 2–7). This part of the text is written roughly, and evidently served the purpose merely of a docket, or abstract of the contents of the main roll. At the back of the beginning of the main roll are three formless lumps of dark wax. The diploma itself is written formally, though not in a particularly good hand. It consists of the following parts: (1) a letter from the emperor Claudius to the club, dated in A.D. 46, acknowledging with thanks the golden crown which it had sent on the occasion of his victorious campaign in Britain (ll. 8–15); (2) another letter from Claudius in A.D. 47, expressing his gratification at the games performed in his honour by the club for the kings of Commagene and Pontus (ll. 16–31). There are some features about these documents which make it doubtful whether they were copied from authentic originals (see notes on ll. 8, 17, 18). (3) Letter from the emperor Vespasian, without date, briefly confirming the privileges conferred on the club by Claudius (ll. 32–36). It is rather remarkable that the privileges conferred by Hadrian and Antoninus, which one would expect to follow here, are not mentioned. (4) Then follows the main substance of the diploma, in the form of a notification to the members of the club of the admission of Herminus as συνοδίτης, on his payment of the fee of 100 denarii (ll. 39– 44). (5) Next the date, which is at Naples on the occasion of the 49th quadriennial performance of the great games founded there by Augustus, in the consulship of the emperor Septimius Severus and Cl. Septimius Albinus Caesar [= A.D. 194], on the 22nd of September (ll. 45-49). (6) The enumeration of the officials of the club occupies ll. 50-65, viz. (a) the three chief priests, who are also ξυστάρχαι for life and superintendents of the imperial baths (ll. 50-57); (b) the officiating ξυστάρχης, who is one of the three previously named (ll. 58, 59); (c) the two ἄρχοντες τῆς συνόδου and the treasurer (ll. 60-63); (d) the ἀρχιγραμματεὺς, acting as secretary to the club (ll. 64, 65). The names of all these officials are accompanied by a full recitation of their titles and the honorary citizenships conferred on them in recognition of their victories, and a statement of the class of athletics practised by them. (7) The signatures of most of them are appended (ll. 66-83). Here the original document appears to be complete, but another set of signatures is appended, containing the certificate of the payment by Herminus of a further fee of 50 denarii at the great games of Asia (κοινὰ τῆς Ἀσίας), held on this occasion (the date is not stated) at Sardis (ll. 84-102). The officials signing are the archons, treasurer, chief priest, and secretary; but the persons holding these posts are different from those officiating at Naples.

1. This line is separated from the next by a space of about an inch.

2. περιπολιστική: cf. CIG. 5804 ἡ φιλοσέβαστος καὶ φιλορώμαιος Ἀλεξανδρέων περιπολιστικὴ εὐσεβῆς σύνοδος. The epithet is not applied to this society in CIG. 5906-5914, and the purport of the grants from the emperors there recorded was to give it a local habitation in Rome, at the Baths of Trajan. But the possession of this centre, at which its records might be preserved, would not prevent its being described as περιπολιστική, in virtue of the constant travels of its members to the various games at which they appeared. Ignarra, in his edition of CIG. 5804 (De Palaestra Neapolitana, Naples, 1770, p. 23), explains the phrase ἀπὸ καταλύσεως κατοικοῦντες (ἐν τόπῳ τινί) there applied to it as practically denoting the same condition of things as περιπολιστική; but Kaibel (IGI. 1105, note) takes ἀπὸ καταλύσεως as meaning 'after its dissolution,' implying that the club had been ejected from a former home and had taken refuge at Rome. If the term περιπολιστική was dropped when it had a fixed home at Rome, the club must have been turned out of that home before the date of the present document. The epithet περιπολιστική is again found applied to it in A.D. 313 (IGI. 956, b. 19).

After περιπολιστική the word σεβαστή has been written and obliterated.

5. Ερμοπολειτην: two other natives of Hermopolis appear as members of the club in CIG. 5912-14, the father and son, Demetrius and Asclepiades (also named Hermodorus), the latter a very distinguished athlete between A.D. 177 and 183. The former is presumably the person named below, l. 54.

A blank is left after ετων both here and in l. 42. His actual age was 27 (see p. 29).

7. After this line there is an interval of nine inches of blank papyrus. Six inches of this belong to the κόλλημα on which the foregoing text is written, the fibres of which run parallel to the height of the roll: the rest belongs to the first κόλλημα of the main body of the text, the fibres of which are parallel to the length of the roll.

8, 9. αρχιερευσ κ.τ.λ.: the style follows the Latin formula, giving the consulship and tribunicia potestas instead of the regnal year. Cf. Josephus, Ant. XX. i, 1. 2. The title 'Sarmaticus' does not elsewhere occur in papyri, nor, apparently, in any inscription or coin; consequently it cannot be regarded as authentic.

9. δημαρχικης εξουσιας το 5 κ.τ.λ.: the form of 5 (ἥ), here and in l. 17, is noticeable. The sixth tribunicia potestas of Claudius was in A.D. 46, in which year he was named imperator for the eleventh and twelfth times. As he is here αὐτοκράτωρ τὸ ἱβ, and also consul designate, the letter must belong to the latter part of the year.

10. το δ: Claudius was consul for the fourth time in A.D. 47. The authorities quoted by Clinton, however (Fast. Rom., sub A.D. 45), describe him as consul designate for the fourth time in A.D. 45, in the fifth year of his tribunicia potestas. Hence perhaps we should read το ε here, which may help to explain the mistake in l. 17.

12. τη κατα Βρεταννων νεικη: no doubt Claudius' expedition in A.D. 43, celebrated on his return to Rome in 44.

14, 15. The abbreviations Τιβ. Κλ. are marked by inverted commas (like rough aspirates) above them. So also in ll. 51, 55, 56.

17. υπατος το ς: in point of fact Claudius was only consul five times (cf. Suet. Claud. 14), and in A.D. 47 he was consul for the fourth time. If υπατος αποδειγμένος το ε be the reading in ll. 9, 10, some scribe may have been led to write ς here, through ignoring the distinction between consul and consul designatus.

18. το ιη: Claudius was really imperator for the eighteenth time in his ninth year of tribunicia potestas; in his seventh year he was imperator for the fourteenth and fifteenth time. These mistakes in the imperial style tend to show that the record from which this rescript was copied was not itself a contemporary document.

20. Probably εν τοις ψηφισμασι, cf. l. 28. The letter before τοις κατα appears to be ι.

21. The letter before ει had a long tail, such as γ, ι, ρ have in this papyrus.

Γαιω Ιουλιω Αντιοχω: the title βασιλει in the next line, and the mention of Polemon of Pontus, make it fairly certain that this is Antiochus IV of Commagene, appointed to that kingdom by Caligula and then deposed by him, and restored by Claudius.

22. Κομμαγηνης: or Κομμαγηνων, as on his coins; but the use of Πόντου in the next title perhaps makes the former more probable.

Ιουλιω Πολεμωνι: Polemon II of Pontus, who likewise owed his kingdom successively to Caligula and Claudius; cf. Prosop. Imp. Rom. II. 59. His use of the name Julius is not otherwise known.

25. αγωνας: in this year (A.D. 47) Claudius celebrated the ludi saeculares, and it was probably in recognition of that fact that Antiochus and Polemon held games in honour of the emperor.

30, 31. There is not room between Σανδογενης and Μικκαλου for a patronymic, a place-adjective, and another name, so that probably the lacuna at the beginning of l. 31 should be filled by an alternative name of Sandogenes, preceded by ο και.

34, 35. παντα οσα ο Κλαυδιος . . . συνεχωρησε: the preceding documents do not in fact confer any privileges which would need confirmation. If Claudius had actually granted the club any favours, it is strange that they should not be quoted rather than these merely complimentary letters.

37. Here the main body of the diploma begins ; cf. ll. 2-7, which repeat ll. 37-44.

42. ως ετων : a space of nearly an inch is left for the statement of Herminus' age, which has not been filled in.

43. ενταγιον : the word occurs in Papp. 1051, l. 7 and 1060, l. 8 below and in other papyri, all of the sixth or seventh centuries, in the sense of 'receipt.' Here, which is the earliest known instance of its use, it appears to mean rather a fee, presumably a fee for registration, since ἐντάσσειν has the sense of 'register.'

46. των μεγαλων Σεβαστων Ιταλικων Ρωμαιων : these games were founded at Naples in A.D. 2 ; cf. CIG. III. 5805, Ignarra, de Pal. Neap. 148 ff. The forty-ninth festival fell in A.D. 194, as here indicated. In CIG. III. 5913, l. 23 they are called simply Σεβαστὰ ἐν Νεαπόλ(ε)ι.

49. An oblique stroke has been drawn after the letters οκτω at the end of the line, as if it were proposed to abbreviate the word ; but the termination is written nevertheless in the next line.

50. αρχιερεων : cf. l. 77. The same combination of titles (ἀρχιερεὺς τοῦ σύμπαντος ξυστοῦ, ξυστάρχης, and ἐπὶ βαλανείων Σεβαστῶν or τοῦ Σεβαστοῦ) is held by M. Ulpius Domesticus in CIG. 5908 and by his son in 5911.

51. Μ. Αυρ. Δημοστρατου Δαμα : cf. CIG. 5909, a decree of the club in honour of this identical person, from which the mutilations in ll. 52, 53 can be made good. In the present document he has the additional title of Τραλλιανου, otherwise the descriptions are identical. The genitive Δαμᾶ occurs in Vitelli, Pař. Fiorentini, 24, l. 26.

52. Σαρδιανου κ.τ.λ. : these epithets, which recur in other descriptions of athletes (see below, and cf. CIG. 5910, 5912, 5913), cannot merely mean that they were victorious at the places named, but that they actually received the citizenship of these towns. Thus in CIG. 5913 the distinguished athlete M. Aur. Asclepiades is described as citizen of Alexandria, Hermopolis, Puteoli, Naples, Elis, and Athens ; but the list of his victories includes many other places. Cf. Friedländer, Darstellungen, ii. 496.

54. αλειπτου : from ἀλείπτος, not ἀλείπτης, cf. CIG. 5909, l. 11, and the note there.

55. Μ. Αυρ. Δημητριου : cf. l. 58. No doubt this is the person in whose honour an inscription (CIG. 5912) was set up in Rome (presumably in the Baths of Trajan) by his still more distinguished son, M. Aur. Asclepiades, whose record is contained in CIG. 5913. The description of his offices and athletic distinctions is the same here as there.

57. Σμυναιου : Ι. Σμυρναιου. The first letter of the preceding word had a long tail.

60. αρχοντων : two ἄρχοντες of the club likewise appear in CIG. 5908, ll. 10, 11.

Αλεξανδρου β : sc. Ἀλεξάνδρου Ἀλεξάνδρου. του should be του και, cf. l. 66.

73. αλιπτης: not a miswriting of ἄλειπτος, but corresponding to γυμνάστης in l. 63. The first epithet may be [Σ]α[ρδι]ανός.

84. The remaining subscriptions seem to have been added at a celebration of the Asian games at Sardis, by the archons, treasurer, and other officials of the club then in office. On this occasion Herminus officiated as priest of the guild (ιερασάμενος) and paid a further sum of 50 denarii. The grammar of the two first subscriptions is so bad as to leave the construction rather doubtful.

87. κοινω(ν) της Ασιας: the great games of Asia, celebrated in different towns on different occasions; cf. CIG. 5804, l. 26, and note.

PAPYRUS 905.—2nd cent.

MEMORANDUM of property in Philoteris and Dionysias belonging to a woman named Demetrous. It is written on the same papyrus, but in the reverse direction, as two tax-receipts (now much mutilated) of the third year of Antoninus Pius, and is apparently subsequent to them. Its chief interest arises from its remarkably bad grammar and spelling. The absence of any principal verb in its first and main sentence (ll. 1-11) contributes to the obscurity of its purport.

2. Ηρων Πετεσουχου: these names occur, but separately, in some mutilated writing on the verso.

ω: probably for η, since Demetrous is the principal party.

10. κ, ελεων: the reading is doubtful, and rather resembles κτολεων or ιστολεων.

PAPYRUS 948.—A.D. 236.

THIS is a freight-contract (ναυλωτική), whereby a ship-master hailing from Antaeopolis agrees with a senator of Arsinoe to take a cargo of vegetable seed from the metropolis (sc. Arsinoe) to Oxyrhynchus. The cargo amounts to 250 artabas (the full burthen of the ship), and the freightage to 100 drachmas, of which 40 were to be paid in advance. The ship-master is also to receive a κεράμιον of wine for a libation on his arrival at Oxyrhynchus, and 16 drachmas a day if he is detained there for more than four days.

With this document may be compared Papp. 256 (a) and 301; but these (certainly in the first case and probably in the second) relate to the transport of wheat for the public service, while the present is a private venture.

It may be noted that this text, though on the recto of the papyrus, is written across the fibres. The text on the verso has been printed above, p. 209.

ασημου: cf. Pap. 256 (a), l. 9, ἡς παράσημος ἴβις. The termination is doubtful, and has perhaps been altered.

PAPYRUS 95I.—A.D. 249.

A WELL-WRITTEN fragment from the end of a contract, dated in the last year of the reign of the Philippi. The nature of the contract is uncertain, consequently it has to be relegated to its present position among the miscellanea. It may be a division of property.

In the margin is the name Πουφινῶι, roughly written.

8. οἰς: possibly οἰοῖς, but the visible remains are confused.

10. Λ ζ': Decius was certainly emperor by Oct. 16, A.D. 249 (Clinton, Fast. Rom. i. 268), hence the seventh year of the Philippi can have lasted six weeks at most.

11. Καρπικῶν Μεγιστῶν Γερμανικῶν Μεγιστῶν: the only occurrence of these titles in papyri yet notified. They occur, however, on coins (Eckhel, vii. 323, quoted by Clinton, op. cit., p. 265).

PAPYRUS 755 verso.—4th cent.

THE text which follows is written on the verso of Oxyrhynchus Pap. 71. The text on the recto, which is published in Oxyrhynchus Papyri I, p. 131 ff., consists of a series of petitions to the prefect Clodius Culcianus, dated in A.D. 303¹. The text on the verso is consequently to be assigned to the fourth century, but not, so far as appears from the handwriting, to a late stage in it. It was not printed by Grenfell and Hunt, who merely describe it as 'three columns containing a list of buildings with measurements'; but it is sufficiently curious to deserve publication. It is not so much a list of buildings as a list of columns (στῦλοι) existing in certain buildings, and the measurements give the height and thickness of these columns. It is also stated whether the columns are still standing (ἐστῶτες or ὀρθοί) or are fallen (χαμαὶ κείμενοι), and whether they have their base mouldings (βάσεις or, usually, σπ(ε)ῖραι) and capitals (κεφαλίδες); and a special point of interest appears to be whether these are of imported (ξενικαί) or native stone (ἀπὸ ἐντοπίου λίθου). Three columns, all more or less mutilated, remain of this inventory, and there are traces of a preceding column, but none of any following. There is nothing to show what its purpose was, nor, unfortunately, the place to which it relates. Reference is made to ἡ πόλις (l. 17), but none of the place-names appears to be identifiable. The buildings to which the columns belong are in no case temples. The list is only a rough draft, with many corrections by the original scribe. The last lines of each column are lost. Across the end of the roll is written, in large uncials, the words ΝΙΚΗ ΔΙΟΝΥΣΙΩ Ε . . Ε . ΔΟΥ . . ; the last word has been obliterated.

4. παλ(αστων): cf. Oxy. Pap. 9, verso, l. 11, ἔχει ὁ πήχης παληστῆς ξ, ὁ δὲ παληστῆς ἔχει δακτύλους δ, ὥστε εἶναι τῶν πήχων (sc. τὸν πήχυν) δακτύλων κδ.

6. αι: here and in most other places in the papyrus where this formula occurs αι is corrected from τας.

7. υστερικωι τοπω: corrected from τω αλλω.

σαμσυχ': the reading seems certain, except that a small ο might be lost between σ and υ.

10. Apparently therefore this inventory related especially to columns of imported stone; cf. ll. 43, 51.

12. μαρμαρινοι: the word is enclosed in a bracket.

16. βαλανιω: there would apparently not be room for νει in the lacuna, and ι for ει is common in this papyrus.

21. εις δε: corrected from αλλ' α-.

25. ετερον δε: corrected from αλλ' ομο̄.

29. ι[]: possibly no figure is lost. If there is it must have been a small one, and 5 is excluded by the fact that if ι5 were read the dimensions of the second pillar would be identical with those of the first.

32. After εν, μεν has been written and struck out.

33. ρ: possibly an abbreviation of προς, but the characters are damaged.

interpreted as τ^ο=τοίτων.

42. This line has been inserted subsequently, but by the same scribe.

C. EARLY BYZANTINE PERIOD.

1. Official Documents.

PAPYRUS 1246.—A. D. 345.

THE three papyri which open this section are all documents of the same class. They are returns, with warranty, of the names of villagers to be entrusted with the duty of ὑδροφυλακία, that is, apparently, of regulating the overflow of the river for their village and its neighbourhood. In each case the document is addressed by two comarchs to Flavius Olympiodorus and Achilles, described as χωματεεπικται (sic, apparently for χωμάτων ἐπιμεληταί) of the southern districts of the Hermopolite nome. In Pap. 1247 several other villagers are associated with the comarchs in their warranty; in the present document and Pap. 1248 the comarchs act alone. The formula is similar but not identical in all three papyri, and all are dated in the summer of A. D. 345. They are considerably mutilated, but decipherment is aided by a comparison of one with another. Similar formulas also occur in Pap. Fior. 2. Papp. 1246 and 1247 have duplicates, differing slightly in wording. In each case the first copy is the better preserved and has therefore been transcribed; but the duplicates have been used to throw light on mutilated passages. The name of the ἐποίκιον in the present document is Pa . . .

1-5. Restored from the duplicate and Pap. 1247. Flavius Olympiodorus, to whom all these papyri are addressed, appears also in Pap. Fior. 34 as praepositus of two districts (πάγοι) in this nome in A. D. 342.

2. χωματεεπικται: so in Pap. 1247; and the duplicate of the present document has]ικτ[.

νομου . . . νοτινων: Papp. 1247 and 1248 have the natural order, νοτινων μερων νομου Ερμοπολιτον; but the remains of the duplicate of the present document read]ικτ[. . . .]οιτον [. . .]ων[.

6. This line is longer than the average and may be incorrectly restored. The reading here given is that of the duplicate.

7. δια κοπου . . . οα ως: so in the duplicate. The meaning of the words δια κοπου or διακοπου is not clear. It occurs in each of the three papyri relating to the ὑδροφυλακία; but only in Pap. 1247 is it complete. There the reading is δια κο||που τη τη[, and, in the duplicate, δια κοπου||[. In every case, π might possibly be read as ν, but Pap. 1247 makes it impossible to restore διακονους or διακονουντας in the places where the word is mutilated. It is most probable that it is a place-name.

οριων: cf. Pap. 1247, l. 10.

9. αλληλεγ[γυης τ]ους. The lacuna has in the next line nine letters as against five here. The duplicate however reads [α]λληλεγ[γυ]||[γυ]ης [τους].

11. αι[. . .]θαι: the lacuna is too large for αιρεισθαι.

12. After αμεμπτως the duplicate has another line, which reads υπ[ε]ρ αλ[ε]ιποτακτ[. . . .]ας εισι δε,

23. The name Ἀμαντιοῦ is repeated by inadvertence. The duplicate has the correct reading, i.e. Ἀμαντίου καὶ Ἀλβίνου.

PAPYRUS 1247.—A. D. 345.

A SIMILAR document to the previous one, from the comarchs and other villagers of Sentryphus(?). The duplicate is very badly mutilated.

4. In the duplicate the order of the names is reversed.

9. Σεντρυφῶ: the termination is uncertain.

12. υδροφυλακίας: sic; also in the duplicate.

14. τι: sc. τις.

15. In the duplicate there is a space of a quarter of a line between παραστησομεν and ημεις, but it is too much mutilated to make out.

16. εἰ ενοχοι εἰμεν: the duplicate has εἰνοχο (sic) εἰμεν; but in this copy there is a lacuna between εἰ and χοι large enough for at least three letters. εἰ is of course a mistake for ἦ. returned in the year in question. Cf. Pap. Fior. 39, l. 4.

3. διαδοται Φιλων: apparently for διάδοχοι Φίλωνος.
 ιε S^ν: the symbol is probably the ordinary one for ἔτους, though it is not usual to insert this word along with the indiction.

4. Αυρηλιω: probably the rest of the name was intended to be inserted later.

5. ημιν seems intended to be struck out by a line drawn through it. Or this may be simply a lengthening of the top stroke of the previous sigma.

6. εις . . . ημιν: repeated by inadvertence.

8. ινδικτιωνος: i. e. 'of the present indiction.' But there is a blank space before the word, and it may have been the scribe's intention to insert the number later.

A LOAN of agricultural produce. The portion of the papyrus containing the specification of this is mutilated; but it apparently consists of 3 artabas of aracus and $1\frac{1}{2}$ artaba of lupines. The papyrus is in a very bad state of preservation, and decipherment is difficult.

9. θερμον: the reading is doubtful.

23. εκαστων γενων κ.τ.λ.: this apparently means '4½ artabas of both kinds together,' not '4½ artabas of each kind'; for in line 9 αρταβαν μιαν ημισυ occurs. Hence the restoration of the beginning of that line.

PAPYRUS 976.—A. D. 315.

4. γ̄ ινδικτιωνος: the restoration is not certain, as the month in which the document was drawn up is omitted. If it was early in the fourth consulship of Constantine and Licinius, Pauni and Epeiph in the same year must be intended; and the indiction will then be the third. But as the commencement of the indiction was during the months of Pauni or Epeiph (see vol. I, p. 197), it follows that a date during or after those months will imply that the repayment is to be made in Pauni and Epeiph, 316, i.e. in the fourth indiction. ετους in l. 3 is presumably the indiction-year. The phrase του ενεστωτος ετους γ̄ ινδικτιωνος is unusual, but it is to be remembered that this was in the first indiction-cycle, when the terminology may well have been unsettled.

5. αδολον αβωλον: cf. Pap. Fior. 41, l. 17, as corrected on p. xii.

καικοσκινευμενον: l. κεκοσκινευμένον.

6. του ου καθαριζ': the meaning of this is quite obscure. It might be possible to read τοπου, but even that would not be clear; possibly 'in a clean place'?

μετρουντος: for μετρούντες.

13. ΜΕΜΕΤΡΗΜΑΙ: corrected from ΜΕΜΕΤΡΗΜΕ.

PAPYRUS 977.—A. D. 330.

THE following document is too much mutilated for continuous restoration. It is obviously a sale, but the word describing the thing sold is mutilated and uncertain. The deed is dated in the consulship of Flavius Gallicanus and Symmachus, i.e. A.D. 330, but the month is lost.

4. Σαραπιδι: the reading seems certain, though the last two letters are mutilated. One expects a genitive, as the name of the writer's mother. The name of the addressee does not come till l. 10.

6. ριον: perhaps this word may be restored from line 36, where εντολικαριου ('commissioner') occurs in a similar formula.

9. φυλης Παυλινης: Παυλίσιος appears as a tribe-epithet at Antinoopolis (Pap. 1164 e, l. 4, p. 159 above), but one would expect the tribe-name to be Παυλινία rather than Παυλίνα.

PAPYRUS 978.—A. D. 331.

A DIVISION of house property in Hermopolis. There are four parties to the division, apparently a brother and three sisters. The brother receives $\frac{3}{8}$ ($\frac{1}{3} + \frac{1}{24}$) of the whole property, and the sisters $\frac{5}{8}$ ($\frac{1}{2} + \frac{1}{8}$) between them (l. 6), or $\frac{5}{24}$ ($\frac{1}{6} + \frac{1}{24}$) each (l. 9). The details of the division are minutely specified. The papyrus is much damaged, but a good deal can be restored. The first 11-13 letters of each line are lost.

A LOAN of five χρύσινοι at Panopolis. The borrower pledges as security part of a half share in a house, the boundaries of which are specified. The papyrus is mutilated, and between a third and a half of each line appears to be lost. The papyrus is however of interest as it is one of the few from Panopolis. The date is unfortunately lost.

7. και επει εαν ην: the last two words are doubtful, and the meaning of the whole phrase obscure. Some such phrase as 'however large it may be' would be conceivable, but it is difficult by any exercise of ingenuity to get this meaning out of the text.

8. ρυμιω τυφλω: a phrase equivalent to our 'blind alley.'

12. Something, apparently μερ (for μερος), has been written after προκειμενον and struck out.

13. πωλλησαι: i. πωλησαι.

3. Accounts.

PAPYRUS 1254.—4th cent.

THE following papyrus is a portion of an account, evidently military. The entries consist usually of the names of certain classes of troops, followed by the amount of payments, which are partly of minae, partly of litrae, of some unnamed articles. In many cases, but by no means in all, there is a regular proportion between these, 3 minae going with a $\frac{1}{2}$ litra, 9 with $1\frac{1}{2}$ and 12 with 2. The troops mentioned are Μαῦροι, ὀφφικιάλιοι (officiales), ἵπποτοξόται, and λεγιωνάριοι; and it is to be noted that the proportion just mentioned between minae and litrae holds good always of the second and third classes, never of the first and last. The two columns transcribed are preceded by one of which only the ends of the lines remain. In this occurs several times the entry ἵπποις, which does not occur in the two columns transcribed. The papyrus is much damaged by rubbing, and parts of the last column are illegible.

PAPYRUS 984.—4th cent.

THE precise purport of the following text is uncertain, since both beginning and end are lost, but it is worth printing on account of its metrological data, the symbols in which they are expressed, and the enormous figures characteristic of the fourth century (cf. vol. II, pp. 304, 306).

2. ζ' : this appears to be the sign for 'talent.' It is identical with the third character in the abbreviation ταλ' which occurs in ll. 5, 9, 15, 21, and which certainly means 'talent,' as shown by the arithmetic; and in l. 18 ταλ' appears to be used as equivalent to the sign ζ' in ll. 6, 10, 15, 22. The sign in Pap. 712 (= Grenfell and Hunt, Gk. Pap. ii. 72) is similar.

α,χ: i.e. 1,600. The thousands are thus marked throughout.

4. ξ' : i.e. ξέστης. The stroke is in reality drawn through the ξ , as usual.

$\bar{\iota}$: the symbol is a monogram of λι, i.e. λίτρα. It is noticeable that the ξέσται of wine and λίτραι of flesh are added together, the total being given in λίτραι. The sextarius is thus equated with the λίτρα.

5. χ: the usual sign for 'denarius,' reckoned as equivalent to a tetradrachm, so that 1,500 make a talent.

ἡ: sc. 10,000. The sign as written varies between this shape and that of a Π. (ἡἡ = 100,000,000) is written either as two distinct Π's, or cursively, when it resembles three Π's. On the first instance of its occurrence in this line, ἡἡ is a mistake for ἡ, the price of a λίτρα being 330,000 denarii, as shown by ll. 9, 14, 18.

ταλ' ἡξβ: the calculations are not quite exact. 662,000 talents make 993,000,000 denarii, not 992,500,000, and 3,008 λίτραι at 330,000 denarii apiece make 992,640,000 denarii.

τεως δια κ.τ.λ.: this formula recurs in ll. 9, 15, but the meaning of the first word is obscure. Possibly 'hitherto collected by.' The τ might also be read as λ.

6. The relation of the sum at the end of the line (and similarly in ll. 10, 15, 18) to the rest of the calculation is obscure.

21. In this line a word resembling κωρ,, takes the place of the usual χἡ. The figures following λγ seem to have been added hurriedly, in fainter ink, and the arithmetic is not exact. 1,755 λίτραι at the usual price should make 579,150,000 denarii, not 570,000,000, and 384,000 talents make neither of these totals, but 576,000,000.

4. Μαγδωλων Μιρη: in the Hermopolite nome; cf. BGU. 759 (where Wilcken rightly reads 'Ερμο(πολίτου) in l. 1), Amherst Papp. 87, 105. Μιρη should also probably be supplied in BGU. 552 B. l. 9, 555, 3.

5. Βουσιρεως: a village of this name in the Hermopolite nome occurs in BGU. 552 A. II. 4. There was another in the Fayum. The villages named in ll. 7, 9, 11, are not otherwise known.

6. Λ: the mark of subtraction, cf. ll. 8, 10. In each case the subtraction is from the total of wheat in the preceding line.

8. ρ̄: i. e. πρόσ, as in l. 6.

PAPYRUS 1259.—4th cent.

THE following account is very much mutilated, and only the bottom part of each column is sufficiently well preserved for decipherment. As, however, several interesting items occur, the last few lines of four columns have been transcribed.

On the verso is another very much mutilated account, headed Αγγετον βρ/ (sc. βρεούιον) χλαμυδων ις . . . The word χλαμυδων is curious, as small fractions occur; but it seems clearly impossible to read anything else. Three lines of the account are added as a specimen:—

2. Ζ: probably for ζεύγος, = a pair. This suits the arithmetic, the price of a single pig here and in ll. 3 and 15 being then 2400 dr.

6. χοιροδ': cf. l. 9, which suggests that the word meant is χοιροδέλφαξ, but the price, which is 20 to 25 times as much as that of a χοῖρος, seems inconsistent with this.

5th Col. mutilated.

13. δοκα: if the reading is right, this must be a neuter form of δόκος. It is not possible to read δοκια, and a diminutive would not suit the epithet.

21. επθια: presumably for εφθια, = εφθά.

32. αψινθατιον: no doubt the same as αψινθᾶτον, wine mixed with wormwood.

PAPYRUS 653.—Early 4th cent.

THIS is a letter from Heraclius to his 'lords and brothers' Paulus and Papirius; but the bad grammar and the mutilation of the papyrus render its meaning very obscure. The mention of fourteen- and fifteen-year περίοδοι at first sight seems to refer to the 14-year census period and the 15-year indiction period, but probably means simply the official circuits of the Prefect or some other magistrate in the 14th and 15th years of the reigning emperor [qu. Diocletian?].

PAPYRUS 981.—4th cent.

THE beginning of a letter from John, described as a deacon, to John, whom he addresses as 'father.' The greater part of what survives is taken up with expressions of affection and respect, but in the last three lines the writer comes to the point and mentions a meeting which he has had with the Dux. Here, however, the papyrus breaks off.

5-6. μακαριοι κ.τ.λ.: no doubt a reminiscence of Isa. xxxi. 9
 'Τάδε λέγει Κύριος, Μακάριος ὁς ἔχει ἐν Σειῶν σπέρμα καὶ οἰκίους ἐν Ἱερουσαλήμ.' The Vulg. however has a different rendering, with which the English A.V. agrees: 'Dixit Dominus, cuius ignis est in Sion, et caminus eius in Ierusalem.'

7. εσμεν: qu. ἴσμεν?

PAPYRUS 982.—4th cent.

AS the beginning (4-6 letters) of each line of the following letter is lost, it is difficult to make out the sense of the whole; but it appears to be a request for some money of the writer's, for the receipt of which he has sent his mother and wife. He speaks of his correspondent's having given a solidus to himself and another person (his brother?), which they had divided between them; and perhaps in lines 7-8 he states that his own share has gone on doctor's expenses.

[τω δ]εσποτη μου και πατρωνι Ερμινω

 5 [μεν ε]ις εαυτους αφ οιας γαρ ημερας ανηλ
 [θομεν] απο της δοκιμασιας Αννιανου

2. ναολεκτης: the reading seems certain, but the word is meaningless. νεόλεκτος is a possible correction, which would be in harmony with στρατεύοντι, if that be the true restoration. It appears to suit the available space better than γραμματεύοντι, which is the alternative.

4. ολοκοττινον: a solidus or νόμισμα (not a denarius, as stated in Sophocles' Lexicon). See Pap. 985 (p. 228 above), ll. 7 and 14, where the terms are interchanged. The term is especially common in Coptic documents; cf. index to Crum's Catalogue of Coptic Papyri in the British Museum.

9. Perhaps βραδὺς ἦμεν.

20. The readings in this line are fairly clear (except εμω, where the second letter has been re-written), but they do not seem to give intelligible words.

PAPYRUS 988.—4th cent.

BAD grammar and mutilation make the following letter difficult to understand. It concerns certain books which apparently the person to whom the letter is addressed has asked the writer to register but which he has in his own possession.

Λουκια Κασυλλατι τω αδελφω πλειστα χαιρειν .
 γραφισ μοι οτι καταχωρισον τα και καν [. .] . εδωκαμεν επι το \ν' ηγεμονα πεμψον μ[ο]ι ο[υ]ν αλλ[]ν το διαστολειακον ι δ ου συ ουκ ηθε

3-5. The meaning of this very ungrammatical sentence seems to be: 'You write to me to register the books; but how can I do this when you have them yourself?'

5. After συ, β has been written (probably as the beginning of βυβλια) but has been struck out.

7. Possibly και [ε]καν[α]ς.

9. ι δ ου συ ουκ: the reading is not certain, but if it is correct, we must suppose it to stand for ει δ' ου(ν) σὺ οὐκ ἤθελ. In this case, perhaps ἄν should be understood with ἀπήλθαμεν, and we might translate: 'if therefore you did not wish to arrange(?) it, we would have gone to Μέγαλα Ἠράγκατα' [the name of a place?]. But the passage is obscure.

RECEIPT from the banker Philoxenus to Pamouthius, προν(οητῆς) Πυλίας (presumably the name of an estate), for a payment for the money taxes of the thirteenth indiction. The document is dated by the eras of Oxyrhynchus and in the thirteenth indiction.

4. εκτος ροπης: cf. Oxy. Pap. 143, a group of tax-receipts relating to this same Pamouthius, in which this phrase recurs. Its precise meaning is uncertain. It is, however, a deduction from the nominal value of the coins in question, and may represent the difference between that nominal value and the actual value as shown in the scales.

5. παρὰ: i.e. 'minus,' but the deduction of such a large sum as 1905½ carats is unusual, though not unparalleled. Probably it is some form of discount.

8. κερ(ατια) β, ξβ\ d: this total is arrived at by adding the 157½ carats of ροπή to the 1905¼ carats previously mentioned.

μο/ : i. e. μόνα, cf. Oxy. Papp. 143, l. 4, 145, l. 4, &c.

9. (εροις) στα ρπ: on the eras of Oxyrhynchus, dating respectively from Thoth 1st, A. D. 324 and 355, see Grenfell and Hunt, Oxyrhynchus Papyri, I. p. 192.

PAPYRUS 1035.—6th cent.

 κωμ(ης) Συναπε: cf. Papp. 1063, 1095 (below, pp. 247, 249), where the name is spelled Συναπη. In the latter instance the βοηθός Basilides recurs.

2. One or two letters appear to intervene between εν and ευστ(α)θ(μα), and it is possible that ενος was written by mistake.

ζυγ(ω) ι(διωτικω): the symbol is apparently an ι followed by a flourish and an oblique mark of contraction. On the various standards of solidi (ιδιωτικῶ, δημοσίῳ, and Ἀλεξανδρείας), see Grenfell and Hunt, Oxy. Pap. I. p. 236. Other local standards occur elsewhere, e. g. Pap. 1036, l. 4 (p. 268).

PAPYRUS 1038.—6th cent.

TWO separate receipts are written on this piece of papyrus, both in the same hand. They are given by the official known as ἐξπελλευτής, for payments of corn for the ἐμβολή (see note on l. 2) of public corn in Hermopolis, and differ only in the names of the persons who pay the corn and in the amounts. In one case the amount is 6½ artabas, in the other 3½.

1. ἐξπελλ/: sc. ἐξπελλευτής, the official charged with the duty of collecting arrears of public contributions (Justin. Novell. 128, cap. 6).

2. πληρωθην: sic, both here and in the next column.

εμβολ/: l. ἐμβολ(ῆς), which means the tax in kind raised for exportation to Byzantium and perhaps to other towns. Cf.
 Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 364, 365, Grenfell and Hunt, Oxy. Pap. I.
 p. 197.

3. $\frac{\text{f}}{\circ}$: this seems a new symbol for $\frac{1}{3}$. It is no doubt merely a development from $\bar{\Gamma}$ or $\bar{\Gamma}$.

4-5. These should be signatures, but are in the same hand as the rest. Presumably, therefore, these are copies kept as records in the office to which they relate.

4. αποδειξι: sic, in each case. The last letter is an iota, not a mere sign of contraction.

5. απαιτιτο^ν: l. ἀπαιτητοῦ.

PAPYRUS 1063.—6th or 7th cent.

THIS papyrus contains two receipts, each forming a single column and both of the same type. The first is too much damaged for transcription, and only the second is given. It is a receipt for the tax known as ἐμβολή (cf. the preceding Pap., l. 2, note), in this case however not for δημόσιος σῖτος but (ὑπὲρ) ναύλου. This makes it probable that there were two divisions of the tax, one for the corn itself and the other for the conveyance of it to Byzantium. Cf. Wilcken, Gr. Ostr. I. 387, Justinian, Ed. xiii. cap. 7 and cap. 12 τοὺς παγάρχας ἀγνωμονοῦντας ἢ περὶ τὸν σῖτον ἢ περὶ τὰ ναῦλα.

 Αγαριος γνω[στ/] στοιχ,

1. Σιναπη: cf. Pap. 1035, l. 1, note (p. 246).

2. In the name at the end of the line the letter after Καλκ is perhaps the Coptic ϣ.

3. καννονος: or κανωνος, but the formation is not like that of ω elsewhere.

PAPYRUS 1152.—7th cent.

THE three documents which follow (1152, 996, 995) are almost identical in form, being certificates of the delivery of the annual charge (κανών) of corn to the boat which was to convey it down the river. They are dated respectively in the 6th, 11th, and 15th indiction-years, but there is nothing to show whether all belong to the same cycle, and Pap. 1152 may be the last of the series instead of the first. In two cases (1152 and 995) the corn is said to have been delivered to the πλοῖον τῆς Μετανοίας. This name recalls those given to some of the vessels of the Roman fleet in Pap. 229 ('Salus,' 'Providentia,' 'Virtus'), but rather a different light is thrown upon it by Pap. 996, where the phrase runs, εἰς πλοῖον [τοῦ] μοναστηρίου τῆς Μετανοίας, which indicates that the ship had its name from the monastery to which it belonged. In 1152 and 995 the tabellio who gives the certificate is the same, named Peter, while in 996 he is Phoebammon. If there was only one such official at a time, this might indicate that 995 and 1152 are to be brought together in date (1152 belonging then to the 6th year of the next cycle after 995), and 996 will be the earliest of the series; but it is impossible to affirm this with certainty. Papp. 995 and 996 are perhaps written by the same scribe.

2. χειρογραφεια: this may mean either 'register' or 'office,' more probably the former; and the meaning will then be 'entered in the great register.' The document is evidently a copy of the official entry, given to the person who brought the corn.

4. The name of the tabellio has not been filled in, but from l. 9 it should apparently be Peter.

7. σ—: an abbreviation of ο^ντως (= videlicet, 'to wit'), which one sees in process of formation in Pap. 996, l. 7, and fully developed in Pap. 1162 verso, l. 2 (p. 252). Here it is superfluous, as ο^ντως has already been written at length.

2. ι//: presumably = ζυγῶ ἰδιωτικῶ, cf. Pap. 1035, l. 2 (p. 246 above), where the symbol is the same. Otherwise it might be read as μ/ (= μόνα).

13. There ought to be at least two persons named instead of one only, as the verbs above are in the plural. υποδεινυμεν): presumably for ὑποδεικνύμενος, but the meaning is not clear.

PAPYRUS 1073.—6th cent.

THE following document, as appears from the mutilated endorsement, is addressed to Anatolius, comes of the province of Arcadia, entreating him to give instructions for the protection of the petitioners from certain of their neighbours, who are preventing them from building. The petitioners are peasants, but their names are not given; as they are described as οἱ γραμματηφόροι, they presumably presented their petition in person; but the petition is written by some individual on their behalf (l. 4 μοι χαρίζεσθε).

+ οἱ γραμμαγηφοροι γεωργοι λεγουσιν κωλυεσθαι ακαιρως παρα τινων

1. γραμμαγηφοροι: γραμματηφοροι is not a possible reading, though it is presumably intended.

2. πρωτοκωμητ(αις): these officials are mentioned in Oxy. Pap. 133, of A. D. 550.

PAPYRUS 1309.—6th–7th cent.

AN order from the comes Gerontius to the εἰρηνάρχαι of the village of Ares to secure the murderers of the ἀγροφύλαξ. The document is in the usual form of such orders, written lengthways on a long, narrow strip of papyrus.

Π' Γεροντιου κοιμτος

2. κωμ(ης) Αρεως: there was a village of this name in the Hermopolite nome (Pap. Fior. 64, ll. 38, 42) and another in the Fayum (Wessely, Topographie, p. 40).

PAPYRUS 1162, verso.—7th cent.

THE following document is a list of sailors in two columns, the first τῶν ἐξ(ελθόντων) ἀπὸ τοῦ Κλούσμα(τος), the second τῶν μὴ ἀπελθ(όντων) εἰς τὸ Κλοῦσμ(α). The place named is, no doubt, the port of Clysma, on the Red Sea; but there is nothing to throw any light on the purpose and circumstances of the list. It is written on the verso of a letter of the seventh century relating apparently to the affairs of a farm, and may itself belong to the Arabic period.

1. The words from γνῶ(σις) to δ refer to the sailors named in the first column, those from (καί) to Κλοῦσμ(α) to the second column only.

3. Κλανδιον: as the other names after ἀπό are names of places, this is no doubt also a local name.

6. After this line the following has been written and crossed out: Σενουθης Μαρκο^ν ἀπο Παχωμ^ε.

PAPYRUS 1323.—7th cent.

AN official order to pay twenty solidi for the price of hay, on behalf of Colluthus, a σταβλίτης, or horse-trainer. The letter has been folded in the middle, and this part is mutilated and difficult to read.

1. κτητορσι: i. e. the owners of the hay.

2. σταβλιτου: cf. Oxy. Pap. 140, a contract of a σταβλίτης with the proprietor of a stable.

3. κουφ: i. κουφ(ον): there is no sign of abbreviation.

PAPYRUS 992.—A.D. 507.

THE following document is somewhat uncommon in more than one respect. It dates from the reign of Anastasius, and appears to come from the city of Antinoopolis; and it belongs to the class of deeds known as compromissa. It is an agreement to submit certain matters at dispute to arbitration, the parties binding themselves, apparently under a money penalty, to appear at the place appointed for the arbitration and to abide by the decision of the arbitrators.

1. υπατ]ει[ας]: what is here read as ει might more readily be taken for λ of [βασι]λ[ειας]; but there seems scarcely room for ειας before του, and the expression το γ̄ in the next line suits a consulship better than the year of a reign. Moreover A. D. 507, the year of Anastasius' third consulship, was the first year of an indiction-period, while the third year of his reign was not so. It is true that the third consulship of Anastasius was not a sole consulship; but where one of the consuls was the emperor it is not unnatural to find the other's name omitted.

4. Φλλ: for the doubling of the last letter cf. note on Pap.

1095, l. 3 (p. 249).

5. Αντινοου]: the restoration is not quite certain, being inferred from the abbreviation απο Αντι/ in l. 24.

6, 7. The words υπερ εαυτου και are a subsequent addition.

8. Βησνικων]: the name is extraordinary, but it seems impossible to read anything else.

9. η τουτου του μερους]: probably γυνή should be supplied.

13. σχολαστικους φορου Θηβαῖδος]: the expression appears to be new.

35. προτηλευθεντων: l. προδηλωθεντων, cf. ll. 13, 18.

42-43. The signature of Theodosius is written in a hand of somewhat official type. δωρησαμενης is followed by what may be either a contraction or a mere flourish.

47. The scribe's signature is followed by a short inscription in shorthand.

PAPYRUS 1313.—A. D. 507.

AN agreement for the division of land at Hermopolis. The latter part is lost, so that the form the division took is uncertain. There are so many corrections in the last few lines of the remaining portion as to make it seem likely that the document is only a draft.

PAPYRUS 1015.—6th cent.

THIS is a portion of a contract for the surrender of property (ἐκχωρητικὴ ὁμολογία), but the description of the property is lost. The person making the surrender is presumably the first of the signatories, Aurelius Joseph; and the property is evidently in the Hermopolite nome. The document has been cancelled.

1. βουλευτικης τυχης: the phrase is new. It appears to denote some kind of impost.

5. τεσσαρεσκαίδεκατης would fill the lacuna best.

as often marks the end of a contract; but the signature of yet another witness has been added afterwards in a small and very cursive hand.

2. Μεχειρ ι τελ(ει) ι ινδικ(τιονος): it is very unusual to find τέλει with a month so early as Mecheir; but cf. vol. I, p. 198 note.

3. ευτελεστατη: the reading is clear, though the epithet is strange. It is not possible to read ευγενεστατη. της μακαριας: sc. μνήμης.

4. π/: sc. παρά. Αυρηλιων is probably a correction of Αυρηλιου.

9. Above the letters αχος there are traces of an υ, in which case τοῦ ἐσομένου διὰ τάχους may be restored.

12. εξαρτιω: quoted by Ducange in the sense of Navalia instrumenta. Here it seems to mean apparatus generally.

PAPYRUS 1003.—A. D. 562.

A MUTILATED lease of land in the fields of the village of Tesla in the Hermopolite nome. The conclusion of the document is lost, and being in a very cursive hand and somewhat damaged even the existing portion is difficult to decipher, especially towards the end.

2. επ—: possibly 'Επείφ. The date must be in the first half of the 11th indiction year (= A. D. 562-563) corresponding to the last half of the 21st year after the consulship of Basilus (= A. D. 562).

4. Σινακυρεως: the middle letters are doubtful, but it does not seem possible to read either Σινκερεως or Σιναγηρεως, which are known names of Hermopolite villages.

PAPYRUS 1005.—A.D. 598–599 (?).

LEASE (probably, though the loss of more than half of each line leaves the details uncertain) of a stable at Hermopolis. The document is dated in the seventeenth year of an emperor whose name is lost. Of the three emperors whose reigns were of sufficient length (Justinian, Maurice, and Heraclius), Maurice is perhaps the most probable on palaeographical grounds.

PAPYRUS 1007 b and c.—A.D. 558.

AS stated above, the two texts on the other side of the papyrus containing the text just printed are in different hands, but appear to be parts of a single document. The beginning of it is written on what is now the lower half of the papyrus, but the text above (which is in the same hand as a) appears to follow on immediately. It is a lease by Apollos, also named Phellos, from his daughter Eudoxia of a piece of land which had been given to her by her uncle. The place to which it relates is Tarruthis, a village in the Antaeopolite nome. From seven to ten letters are lost at the beginning of each line, which causes some obscurity in the latter part of the document, which is, moreover, left unfinished.

ALEASE of land at Thynis, a village near Hermopolis, which occurs also in several other papyri in the British Museum (1036, 1039, 1079, 1080). The parties to the deed have Jewish names (Joseph and Daniel), but the names of their parents (Christodorus, Paul, Martha) indicate that they were Christians, and the full Christian formula is employed at the head of the document.

12. ινδ°/: for this method of denoting the genitive cf. Pap. Schott-Reinhardt V, 9, and the 'Strassburger Qorra-Papyri' in the appendix to that volume.

21. ητοι καρπων κ.τ.λ.: this clause seems to be inserted to show that only the following year's crops are included in the lease, not those of the current year.

24. πεπληρωμαι: the termination is uncertain, but apparently a new sentence begins here.

25. αμματων: this measure of length (40 cubits) occurs in BGU. 319, l. 10, 402, l. 9, 872, l. 3. It is mentioned in the Oxy-rhynchus metrological papyrus (669), but its dimensions are not there preserved. The reference to the 64 αμματα of each αρουρα here is obscure.

27. αρουρης is written in a different hand, the space for it having apparently been left blank at first or washed clean of the original writing.

33. κυκλευτηριου: κυκλεύω and κυκλευτής occur frequently in the agricultural accounts in Pap. 131, but this word appears to be new.

19. του πρεσσου: here apparently a part of the building. Cf. Pap. 978, l. 10 (p. 233).

20. της αιθρου: such seems to be the reading. It may perhaps be another form for τοῦ αἰθρίου.

26-29. Cf. Pap. Fior. 13, ll. 15-19, and 73, ll. 16-19.

29. τοποθεσίας would suit the remains, if one could suppose it to be used to mean 'sites'.

PAPYRUS 1036.—6th cent.

PORTION of a lease of land, containing a statement of the rent and the συνήθεια or additional 'present.' The fact that the money is to be paid on the standard of Hermopolis indicates the Hermopolite nome, and the mention of the feast of Thynis makes it probable that the land is in the village of that name.

8. συνήθεια: in the Byzantine sense of 'toll' or 'customary present.'

εν τη εορτη Θυνεως: the same phrase also occurs, in a similar context, in Papp. 1036 and 1039 (not published). The village is mentioned in Pap. 1012 above (p. 265) and in several of the Leipzig papyri, and probably also in BGU. 553, B. ii. 9, 557, i. 18; but the festival does not appear to be otherwise known. Presumably Thynis is the name of the local deity.

23. Φαρμουθι: this is the most probable reading; i. e. the lease is to run from the day on which the contract is drawn up.

PAPYRUS 999.—A. D. 538.

2. Ενσει: cf. Papp. 994, l. 5, 1001, l. 5.

4. Presumably κατοικούντι (or αποδημοῦντι) ἐν πόλει κ.τ.λ. The middle letters of the name might be γα or πυ.

7. μετρων ογδοηκοντα: μέτρον as a measure of definite size, instead of as a generic term, occurs in Pap. 428 (vol. II, p. 313), where it apparently is $\frac{1}{15}$ of an artaba; and in Oxy. Pap. 9 verso an artaba is said to contain 10 μέτρα. In the Aphrodito papyri (8th cent.) a μέτρον normally contains 10 ξέσται, though in one instance (Pap. 1428) 8 ξέσται of ὄξος make a μέτρον.

9. For the supplement cf. Amh. Pap. 150, ll. 27-29.

11.]ων: corrected from ον.

PAPYRUS 1001.—A. D. 539.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT of a payment in advance of the price of $1\frac{1}{2}$ artabas of wheat and 10 κνίδια of wine. The document is almost complete but is damaged in places. The parties belong to the Hermopolite nome.

PAPYRUS 1319.—A. D. 544 or 545.

AN acknowledgement of a loan. The borrowers are already indebted for a previous loan, and a clause is inserted at the beginning of the document as to the validity of this. The date is 'after the consulship of Basilius,' which was in A.D. 541, but the mention of the 8th indiction-year shows that it is not the first such year that is meant, as might be supposed, but either the third (A.D. 544) or the fourth (A.D. 545), according as the 7th Pauni fell at the beginning or end of the indiction-year. In default of any indication to the contrary, it is safest to regard the indiction-year as beginning in the middle of Pauni (see vol. I, p. 198), in which case the present document belongs to the extreme end of the 8th indiction-year (= 1 June, A.D. 545).

PAPYRUS 1060.—7th cent.

RECEIPT given by Theodosius, collector of the gold-taxes for the district of Hermopolis, to the abbot Daniel for 23 carats in respect of the crops of the 7th indiction. Theodosius is described as acting on behalf of the church of Hermopolis, so that the collection appears to be ecclesiastical, and not a state tax. The property on which the money is paid evidently belonged to the church, or, at least, the latter had a right to a certain percentage of the produce. The following documents may be compared with this.

PAPYRUS 1072.—7th cent.

THE four documents inscribed on this papyrus are very similar to the preceding. They are receipts, all in the same hand and from Colluthus, προ(νοητής) μερίδ(ος) Ἑρμ(ου)π(όλεως), as agent for the ἀγί(α) τ(ο)ῦ θ(εο)ῦ ἐκκλη(σία) in Hermopolis, to various persons for the rent in respect of the crops of the 12th indiction. In c the locality for which he is προνοητής is different, and in d the name of a person takes the place of that of a locality. In two cases the amount is $22\frac{3}{4}$ carats, in one $22\frac{1}{2}$, and in the remaining receipt apparently $7\frac{1}{2}$, though the reading is not certain.

 abbreviated words here, is new. The words which follow probably give the place, ὑπὲρ κλήρου (or κληρονόμων) Α—.

4. Αλ^ε: the reading is doubtful, but cf. Papp. 1006, l. 16

RECEIPT given by the heirs of Cyricus, βοηθός, to Menas, a goldsmith, for $5\frac{5}{12}$ carats for the 6th indiction. PAPYRUS 1028.—7th cent.

THE last document in this section is a short account of money received or expended. The introductory preposition διὰ would suit either interpretation, but the latter sense would be more naturally expressed by the dative without the preposition. If the account is one of money collected, the first column represents receipts from the corporations of various trades, while the second gives the results of collections by certain individuals, each from a particular street (ρύμη). There is no heading to the account, but the occasion to which it relates would appear to be a festival of some sort. The latter part of it (ll. 18–25) is expressly said to relate to the πράσινον μέρος, the circus-faction of the Greens, and it is possible that the first part relates to the Blues.

The symbol (ϝ) for κεράτια (originally a κ followed by an oblique stroke) is represented throughout by a simple oblique stroke.

5. φουσκαριων: 'Puscaus, Puscae confector: maxime vero pro vini venditore.' Ducange.

7. ωραιοπωλ^ω: 'sellers of fresh fruit.'12. ισικιοπωλ^ω: ἰσίκιον is given by L. and S. as='a dish of meat minced very small.'14. γν^ω: probably = γνώσεως ('account') or γνωστῆρος.

18. Σ: i.e. καί; cf. l. 21.

του πρασινου μερ(ων): this can only mean 'the Green faction'; hence the account is probably a register of money collected by that faction. The previous entries perhaps relate to the Blues; and we may conjecture that the collections are made by the two factions for some special occasion connected with the circus. The expressions (ὑπὲρ) ῥύμ(ης) κ.τ.λ. apparently indicate that the persons named are collectors for the various streets.

19. i.e. δ(ιὰ) Ζαχαρία διακό(νου) (ὑπὲρ) ῥύμ(ης) τη(ς) ἀγί(ας) μεγ(άλ)ης Εὐφημίας.

21. The words from Μαριανο^ν to διακ^ο are crossed out. Over them is written Γεωργίου Δ . φ . . . Δ . . . ἰο . . ο^ν. The second name does not seem to be Διφιλου.

4. Private documents and letters.

PAPYRUS 776.—A.D. 552.

THE five documents which follow belong to the collection of papers relating to Flavius Apion of Oxyrhynchus and his heirs, of which several have been printed by Grenfell and Hunt in Oxyrhynchus Papyri, vol. I, nos. 133–139. Brief descriptions of the present documents are also given there (pp. 242, 243), but it seems worth while to print them in full, and to give facsimiles of three of them, which contain precise dates. The earliest in date is Pap. 776, which is an acknowledgement by Surus, son of Pebes, to Flavius Apion of the receipt of one large and one small windlass and a κυλλή κυκλάς for purposes of irrigation. The document is almost complete. Surus is resident in a village of the Cynopolite nome, which, however, is said to be under the administration (παγαρχουμένη) of Apion. The date is lost, but can be recovered from l. 18.

15. The verb (κατελογίσατο in Oxy. Pap. 137, l. 19) is accidentally omitted.

3. There appears to be a letter between ινδ°/ and αρχι. If it is α, it would be an unparalleled form of date, showing that the change of indiction-year was just taking place (for which more-over Mesoré 4 would be a very late day). It may however also be read as β, in which case the numeral has simply been repeated by mistake.

PAPYRUS 774.—A. D. 582.

AN acknowledgement, addressed by Aurelius Johannes to the heirs of [Flavius] Apion, in Oxyrhynchus, of the receipt of two large windlasses. The latter part is lost. It is dated in the 8th year and 4th consulship of Tiberius, and the 1st indiction. Tiberius dated his regnal years from his proclamation as Caesar in 574; but the present document is dated in Phaophi, some time after his death, and we can only suppose that for some reason the news of this did not reach Oxyrhynchus for nearly two months.

PAPYRUS 1075.—7th cent.

THERE is no address or signature to the following letter, but the fact that the writer addresses his correspondent or correspondents as ἡ ὑμετέρα μεγαλοπρεπῆς καὶ θεοφύλακτος πατρικὴ δεσποτεία makes it likely that the letter is to a bishop, and line 10 shows the writer himself to have been a παγάρχης or head of a pagus (see note). He writes to complain of the disrespect shown to him by one of his correspondent's labourers, and it seems probable that the disrespect complained of consisted in accusing him of extortion. The letter is complete, but a good deal damaged.

6. υιος: no doubt this is to be taken merely in a spiritual sense.

10. παγαρχας: these officials are mentioned in Justinian's Edict XIII, cap. 12. Stephanus gives a nominative πάγαρχος and Ducange in his Latin glossary has pagarchi, but the plural written here must come from a singular παγάρχης. In the papyri where it occurs (BGU. 304, 396, 403) the termination is uncertain. Cf. C. E. Zachariae von Lingenthal, De Dioecesi Aegyptiaca, p. 10, note 4, where the meaning of the word πάγος is explained as a district 'cuius ambitus κώμας καὶ τόπους complectebatur adeoque urbes praeter eas quibus βουλή concessa esset.'

19. ανεγκεφαλον: it is interesting to find this word used figuratively, just like our 'brainless.'

21. στραφωσιν: the verb is used in the sense of 'to punish.'

PAPYRUS 1081.—7th cent.

THE following letter is in a hand contemporary with that of Pap. 1075, and is very possibly addressed to the same person. The mutilation of the papyrus makes the tenour of the latter part doubtful. The writer has apparently received a requisition from the Arab governor, with which he protests he is unable to comply, and he begs the bishop to use his influence in his behalf. The reference to the ἀμίρας, or emir, shows that the document belongs to the Arabic period, after A.D. 640. There are two lines of undecipherable writing on the back.

2. αποψα: 1. ἀποψέ.

3. Ιβιωνος Πανεκτυρε(ως): a village in the Hermopolite nome, cf. Pap. Fior. 17, l. 8.

PAPYRUS 1032.—6th–7th cent.

AN unsigned letter concerning a labourer who seems to have run away and taken refuge with Menas the chief physician. The addressee is directed to fetch him back, with a promise that no inquiry shall be made into the βλάβη τοῦ χωρίου, which seems therefore to be the cause of the fugitive's flight. On the verso is an illegible address.

 10 τον προκουρατορα απελθατε..

2. κατεχομενος: unless this is a technical term, equivalent to ἐναπόγραφος, it must imply that the labourer in question, who has absconded, has been arrested.

4. Απανακιον: evidently the name of the γεωργός, cf. l. 5. It is not likely that it should be read Απα Νακιον, since a labourer would not have the ceremonious prefix "Απα.

γενησεται: this is a correction, the γε being written above the line over what looks like και.

10. This line is written down the left margin.

PAPYRUS 1041.—7th cent.

AN unsigned and unaddressed letter, the meaning of which is rather doubtful. The writer apparently complains that his correspondent has withdrawn his favour from him, and begs to be reconciled without delay. The letter is complete, written across the fibres of a short but wide strip of papyrus.

5. Hymns.

PAPYRUS 1029.—6th cent.

THE following document is a curious example of a Byzantine hymn. It is written in an extremely illiterate style, some of the obscurities of which may be attributed either to bad spelling or to bad grammar, and it contains two or three unknown words. It is clear, however, that it is a hymn to, or invocation of, the Trinity and the saints, and it may have formed part of a liturgy, as, though the cross at the beginning shows it to be a separate hymn, there are traces of writing above the first line. It is composed in verses of 11 syllables, each subdivided into three groups of 4, 3, and 4 syllables respectively. The construction is indicated in the case of the first four lines (= 8 verses) of the text as it stands, by dashes over the words, but not afterwards. The text is here printed as it is written in the MS., and its restoration is left to experts in the subject. Prof. Wilhelm Meyer, who has kindly read the text and made some suggestions refers for parallels to Pitra's Analecta Sacra, 1876, I. 538-542. On the verso is a hymn to the Virgin, in parts not less obscure than this.

+ οι ασωματος' φυσεις τον χαιρουβιν + ασικελτος' η υμνον' δοξολογιται εξαπτερα' γαρ ζωα' τον σεραφιν' + τοις απαους' της φωνης' η υπεροψη προ γαρ παντων' υπαρχις' ολον πατερ' + και συναναρχον' εχεις' εις τον υιον' 5 και εις ο τιμον φελλον πνευμα ζωην + τοις τριατος δικνην εις το αμελες προφυτων και μαρτυρων παντοις χωριν + ως αθανατον εχων τοις την ζωην υπερ παντων πρεσβευσαται ειλασμον + οτι παντοις υπαρχομαι εντινης 10 της δε πλανηστρης εν ταις του πονερου + τον αγγελον βοησομεν την οδηγ?

1. The first part of the line perhaps stands for ἡ ἀσώματος φύσις τῶν χαίρουβιν. In the second part Prof. Meyer suggests ἀσιγήτως ἐν ὕμνοις δοξολογεῖ, and similarly drastic restoration is needed throughout.

10. τον αγγελον κ.τ.λ.: perhaps = τῶν ἀγγέλων βοήσομεν τὸν ὁδηγόν, sc. Michael, who has the same title in Pitra, p. 538 (Meyer).

PAPYRUS 1029, verso.—7th cent.

THE present hymn, which is addressed to the Virgin Mary, is not quite so incomprehensible as that on the recto, but is still sufficiently puzzling in places, and is written in excessively bad Greek. It is not in the same hand as the other, but does not seem very much later.

1. ακαλια ομα: the reading is certain. Prof. Meyer suggests ἀγγαλλίαμα.

4. τον κυρεκμα: the reading seems clear. Qu. τὸ κήρυγμα?

5. ἰ. χαῖρε, κεχαριτωμένη, Ev. Luc. i. 28.

9. δικουσα: qu. for τεκοῦσα?

11. αξιωθειας: presumably for ἀξιωθείσα.

12. η μερα (or ημερα) την Χριστο(ν): the meaning may perhaps be ἡ μήτηρ τοῦ Χριστοῦ, but this is putting a rather severe strain even on this writer's illiteracy. Another possible restoration is γίνεσθαι, μήτερα τὴν χριστοῦ.

APPENDIX

CORRIGENDA TO VOL. II

THE following emendations are derived mainly from Prof. Wilcken (Archiv für Papyrusforschung i. 131 ff., iii. 232 ff.) and Messrs. Grenfell and Hunt (Classical Review xii. 434 ff.), with some from other sources, which are acknowledged below. All have been tested by reference to the originals; but no complete re-examination of the originals has been undertaken, and probably some published corrections have escaped notice. The list is consequently not exhaustive, but it is believed to contain the most important of the corrections which have been made in the course of the last nine years.

P. 2, Pap. 219 a recto, l. 3. $\iota\beta\iota\omega\beta\omicron\sigma\kappa\omega$ (Crönert).

p. 3, Pap. 219 b, l. 3. $\epsilon\nu\theta\nu[\rho\nu]$ (GH).

„ l. 4. Delete note.

„ l. 6. $\mu[\omicron\iota]\mu\epsilon\rho\eta\delta\nu\omicron$ (GH).

„ l. 7. $\alpha[\pi\omicron\mu]\epsilon\rho\omega\nu\pi\epsilon[\nu\tau\epsilon]$ (W).

Pap. 223. The symbol printed as < stands for 'aroura,' not 'drachma' (W).

p. 4, Pap. 227 a, l. 2. $\epsilon\gamma\theta\eta\sigma\alpha[\nu\rho\upsilon]$ (W).

p. 5, Pap. 220, l. 8. $[\delta\alpha\nu]\epsilon\iota\sigma\alpha\mu\epsilon\nu\omicron\varsigma$ (W) is possible.

p. 6, Pap. 220, col. 2, l. 1. $\omicron\mu[\omicron\lambda\omicron\gamma\omega]$ (W) is possible. The document is a bond for the appearance of a prisoner.

p. 7, Pap. 222, l. 8. $\tau\omicron\epsilon\pi\iota\beta\alpha\lambda\lambda\omicron\nu$ (W).

„ l. 14. $\delta\epsilon\delta\eta\lambda\omega\tau\alpha\iota$ (W) is very questionable.

„ l. 18. $\kappa\alpha\iota\iota\epsilon\rho\alpha\varsigma$ for $\eta\mu\epsilon\rho\alpha\varsigma$ (W).

„ l. 19. $[\delta]\rho\alpha\chi\mu\alpha\varsigma\delta\iota\alpha[\kappa\omicron\sigma\iota\alpha\varsigma]$ (W).

p. 10, Pap. 402, note on l. 3. The symbol ζ stands for $\acute{\alpha}\rho\tau\acute{\alpha}\beta\eta$ (W).

„ ll. 11, 12. Ισακίς is a proper name (W).

p. 11, Pap. 402 verso, l. 5. $\kappa\alpha\varsigma\epsilon\phi\iota\pi\pi^{\iota}$ (W).

„ „ l. 6. $\theta\omega\rho\alpha\xi$ is written at length, not $\theta\omega\rho^{\iota} =$ (GH).

„ „ l. 13. $\sigma\kappa[\alpha]\phi\iota\omicron\nu$ (W) is probable.

„ „ l. 28. $\alpha\lambda\alpha\beta\alpha\sigma\tau\rho\omicron\theta\eta\kappa\alpha\iota$ (W).

p. 15, Pap. 218, l. 3 note. $\pi\rho\omicron\sigma\gamma\rho^{\iota} = \pi\rho\omicron\sigma\gamma\rho\acute{\alpha}\phi\omega\nu$ (GH); cf. Pap. 879 in the present volume.

p. 28, Pap. 257, l. 269. $[\gamma\epsilon\rho]\delta\iota\omicron\varsigma$ (Crönert) is possible.

p. 37, Pap. 259, l. 48. $\text{Ταπετεσων}^{\kappa}$ (W).

p. 38, Pap. 259, l. 61. $\omicron\iota\pi\rho\omicron^{\kappa}$ (W).

- p. 38, Pap. 259, l. 63. ηχθησαν (W).
 p. 40, Pap. 259, l. 129. ηχ[θη]σαν (W).
 pp. 42-61, Papp. 260, 261. See C. Wessely, Studien zur Paläographie und Papyruskunde iv. 58-83, where a third papyrus of this group is published.
 p. 54, Pap. 261, l. 27. το ι(σον) κατακεχω(ρισται) β(ασιλικω) γρ(αμματει) δι(α) Αγαθου Δαιμ(ονος) βυβ(λιοφυλακος) [L ε Ουεσπ(ασιανου) μη(νος)] Γερμ(ανικειου) ξ̄ (Wessely, with slight modification by W).
 p. 55, Pap. 261, l. 58. ανει^λ τωι ε^λ Ουεσπ[ασιανου] (W).
 p. 57, Pap. 261, l. 106. Τιθοητιωνος (W).
 p. 66, Pap. 281, ll. 4, 5, 9. Read Πανεφρεμμιος and Τανεφρεμμιος (W).
 p. 67, Pap. 208 a, ll. 8, 9. ο απογρ, δι εμου τη (W).
 „ l. 11. ων και [ομο]μητριος (W).
 „ l. 13. Αβασκαντος (W).
 p. 69, Pap. 170, l. 3. Φα^ρ ια αρι^θ Φαμενωθ δι, (W).
 „ l. 7. W's reading, Επιφ α αρι^θ, makes sense, but is hard to reconcile with the papyrus.
 p. 70, Pap. 340, l. 1. δι, Διογενης επι^ε Ευποριων (GH).
 „ Pap. 460, ll. 3, 5. At the ends of these lines W reads σύ Ϛ (i.e. συμβολικοῦ τριώβολον), which is not impossible, though the supposed accent comes over the first letter rather than the second, so that it resembles ευ or επ.
 p. 73, Pap. 309, ll. 20, 21. Ηρακ^λ β^α γρ, δι Αμμ^ω β[οη^θ?] | εξ^η σ⁻, sc. ἐξηρίθμηκα συμφώνως, as in l. 22, where read ἐξηρι^θ (GH).
 p. 74, Pap. 327, l. 14. Delete indications of a lacuna (W).
 p. 77, Pap. 376, l. 1. Probably αγοραν^ο (W), though the first ο is only represented by a very short straight stroke dependent from the γ.
 „ l. 8. For ην π^α perhaps read η γεν^α, sc. ἡ γεναμένη. In this case W's conjecture for the beginning of l. 9, [υπο τ]ε, may be accepted.
 p. 79, Pap. 305, l. 2. It is possible to read του ευ^τ (sc. εὐτυχοῦς) υπεστα^λ κ, δε^ε, but the passage as a whole remains obscure.
 „ l. 5. απο Θε—— (W). It is not possible to read Θεαδελφιας (W) without extreme violence, but Θεσμοφορου (sc. Βερενικίδος Θεσμοφόρου) is quite possible.
 p. 80, Pap. 312, l. 7. For σει read σ^ν, sc. συμβολικοῦ (W).
 „ Pap. 319, l. 5. For Τεριεως read δι⁻ Εριεως (W).
 „ l. 7. For εξ^ε ικοστου read εικοστου (GH).
 p. 82, Pap. 472, l. 3. For τελος read υπερι (W).
 p. 84, Pap. 316 c, l. 1. W suggests παραεσ (= παρέσχε), which is perhaps possible; cf. p. 36 of the present volume.
 p. 85, Pap. 469 a, l. 2. Perhaps Ουαλερις (W).
 „ l. 3. For αρτ^α read ον^ο (W).
 „ Pap. 206 c, l. 7. Τυβι εβδομη (W).
 p. 86, Pap. 469 b, ll. 2, 3. απο Ιομ εξ (sc. ἐξάγων) (W).
 „ Pap. 206 d, l. 3. Νααρα— may be read, but the traces of the next letter do not suit υ (Νααραυς W).
 p. 87, Pap. 316 b, l. 2. For Ιστ^ο read ισαγ^ω (W).
 „ ll. 3, 4. For ημισυ τ^ε read τιμητα (W).
 „ Pap. 318, l. 3. Ανου^β πρα^γ (W).
 p. 90, Pap. 315, l. 3. [Ηφαιστ]^ε (GH).
 p. 91, Pap. 471, l. 7. For ξεστω read ξυστω, here and elsewhere in this phrase. Cf. p. 51 of this vol., note on Pap. 913, l. 5.

- p. 94, Pap. 351, ll. 9, 10. Πατις (not Πατης, as W) Ματαει (W).
- p. 97, Pap. 256 c, l. 3. δογμασι (W).
- „ l. 4. [πα]ραγενομενων (questioned by W) appears to suit the extant remains.
- „ ll. 4, 5. τα περι την [κωμην ε]δαφην λιμνα[σ]αι κ[αι] κατασ[πε]ιρ[αι] (W). For [κατα καιρον σπερ]μασι, it is perhaps possible to read και [κ]α[θηκου]σι γενεσι.
- „ l. 6. καθ ονδηποτεουν τροπον (W).
- „ l. 9. πυρ[ου] Συριακου πρωτου (W).
- „ l. 10. αποχην (W) does not seem to suit the remains. More might still perhaps be made of this document by further study and happy divination, and especially by the discovery of similar texts.
- p. 98, Pap. 256 d, ll. 7, 8. γεωργοι[s εις] δανηα (W).
- p. 99, Pap. 256 a, l. 11. καθαλου (= καθαροῦ) αδολου ακριθου (GH).
- „ l. 12. Perhaps χαλκερλωτω (= χαλκηλάτω) (GH); not χαλκειλατω (W).
- p. 100, Pap. 295, l. 2. γενη^μ β^λ (W).
- „ l. 5. υμων (W) is not written, though it may be intended.
- „ l. 6. κατηξα (W).
- Pap. 197, l. 1. Αυρη^λ Διοδωρος (termination doubtful) αγορα, βου^λ. [(W).
- „ l. 3. κατη[ξ]ατ[ε] (W).
- p. 102, Pap. 475, ll. 2, 3. εξοδιασαι παρα σθ̄ τω̄ εS γενη̄ δ L (partly GH, and partly W, but both omit the letters after παρα).
- „ l. 5. θη(σαυρου) (W).
- p. 104, Pap. 316 a, l. 5. δι^ω, sc. διώρυγι (W).
- „ l. 8. For η read —C = μητρός (W., cf. Viereck on BGU. 876, and Pap. 850, note on l. 8, in the present vol.). The abbreviation recurs in Pap. 321 b, cf. note on Pap. 254 verso,
l. 2, p. 230.
- p. 105, Pap. 321 b, l. 4. εν τη Επαγ(αθιανη), cf. p. 59 of the present volume, note on Pap. 841 a.
- „ l. 5. Στοτο⁷ υ¹ (GH).
- Pap. 321 c, l. 8. Delete latter part of note. Τερειως is the mother's name, like Τεκιασιος, though the symbol for μητρός is omitted.
- p. 107, Pap. 296, l. 7 note. The sum of 7 dr. 4 ob. 2 chalchi is the total of the tax and the προσδιαγραφόμενα, cf. Pap. 844, l. 9.
- p. 108, Pap. 474, l. 11. Πανεκας Πανεκα (GH).
- „ l. 15. Πανεσνευς (W).
- p. 109, Pap. 474, l. 27. [Μεγιστου].
- „ l. 28. For Ευσεβ[ους] read Σεβαστων (GH), a variation from the normal formula.
- p. 110, Pap. 451, l. 3. Ηρακ[λειδης] (W).
- „ l. 4. κατυκον = κατοίκων (W).
- „ l. 8. Sc. προσ(διαγραφόμενα) λ̄, κολ(λύβου) ι, συμ(βολικά) (GH).
- p. 113, Pap. 353, l. 11. GH supply χειρισμου after γραφην, from an unpublished papyrus.
- „ Pap. 329, l. 4. The first word is αρι^θ, very cursively written (GH).
- „ l. 5. Perhaps ιερευς (W), though the υ is strangely formed.
- „ l. 7. ισκρισε^ω (W).
- „ l. 8. For δρ read δS (W).
- „ l. 9. Ερμου is possible (instead of συμβ), and is supported by a Munich papyrus (W). The end of the line should be π ∫ σ ∫ (π = προσδιαγραφόμενα and σ = συμ-βολικόν, and similarly in l. 8).
- p. 114, Pap. 345, l. 2. Probably Ατρειους (Waszynski).
- „ l. 3. Ναβλας (W Ναβλα).

- p. 114, Pap. 352, l. 3. Probably αριθ Φαῶφι δι, very cursively written (W).
 „ l. 4. ιερ, γ S (W).
- p. 116, Pap. 164. On the interpretation of this text see Archiv i. 147, and Amherst Papyri ii. 123.
- p. 117, Pap. 255, l. 10. επι (= ἐπεὶ) συνεστακαμεν (W).
- p. 119, Pap. 306, l. 13. π[λ]ηρουντος (GH).
 „ l. 22. το αιρουν.
- p. 122, Pap. 193, l. 7, etc. For υρ read αρ, sc. αργυρικά (W). For με (l. 8, etc.) W suggests μετρήματα.
- pp. 143, 144, Pap. 188, ll. 63, 73. κλη = κληρονόμοι. The abbreviation appears to be written κλη^μ, which, if so, is a departure from the ordinary method of abbreviation. In l. 73 the last word is αγορανο^μ (W).
- pp. 145, 146, Pap. 188, ll. 136, 152. εποι^τ, proposed by W (with names Λευκοπυργου and . . ελα[.]των . . . respectively), is possible, but the ε is badly formed in each case.
- p. 147, Pap. 181, l. 13. Restore εξ υγ[ειους και επ α]ληθειας from Amh. Pap. 68, l. 33 (GH). In l. 19 the month Neroneus Sebastus should be equated with Choiach, cf. Fayum Towns, p. 296.
- p. 149, Pap. 276, ll. 14, 15. τω εκατον | [ταρχηι αν]αφερειν (GH).
- p. 150, Pap. 359, l. 9. W's supplement, S σ, suits the remains. In l. 10 εδηλωθη (W) is probable.
- p. 153, Pap. 196. A revised text by P.M. Meyer (based on corrections by GH and W) is printed in Archiv iii. 92-3. In ll. 14 and 15 the name appears to be Δόμνος rather than Δομίτιος. In l. 36 Meyer has inserted a superfluous των before κεφαλαιου.
- p. 154, Pap. 301, l. 1. It is possible to read πρων^τ αυλη (sc. προνοητῇ αὐλητρίδων), as suggested by W.
 „ l. 4. συν συρισταις. The beginning of l. 5 remains doubtful.
 „ ll. 12, 13. παραδωσωμ[ε]ν (W). At the end of the line it is possible to read παραλαβων, or παραλαβομν (W); less easily, παραλαβωσι (GH).
 „ ll. 17, 18. τους ισους (GH).

 „ Pap. 289, l. 3. Ενημεριαι.
- p. 185, Pap. 289, ll. 14, 15. Διο|νυσιου (Waszynski, W) is not possible.
 „ ll. 24-39. See Gradenwitz, Einführung, pp. 195-6. The exact restoration of the lacunas from ll. 10-15 is however doubtful. In l. 28 the papyrus has Ταμυσθας not -αν. In l. 31 G.'s restoration does not suit the remains; probably μενης (or -η) της πρασεως (substantially as W). Then δια του εν [κωμη Διονυσι]αδι (G).
- p. 187, Pap. 216, l. 27. εν μισθ[ω]σι μισθωμ[ατων] (W).
 „ l. 31. After Εριεως, add ως Lν [ου]ᵅ δα* μι* χᵃ αριῶ (GH). The readings are however somewhat doubtful.

- p. 257, Pap. 301, l. 15. η ενοχ[ο]ς ειην (W).
- p. 268. The evidence of the Geneva papyri as to the spelling of the name Ἀβίνναιος agrees with that given here. The second letter is β in 11 cases, μ in 5; the vowel following is ε in 2 cases, ι in 13, ει in one; and ν is followed by αι in 5 cases, ε in 6, and ει in 4 (?).

- p. 272, Pap. 245, l. 5. [στ]ρατιωτου (GH) is possible.
 „ l. 10. επηλθα (W).
 „ l. 12. εγω αυτος και η γυναι (GH).
 p. 273, Pap. 233, l. 12. υπογραφη (suggested by W. from Geneva Pap. 10, l. 17) does not suit the remains so well as συνγραφη.
 p. 275, Pap. 242, l. 4. εκερθησαν (W) is probable.
